The thirty-eighth annual meeting will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June 22-24, 1920.

THE price of bags at Chicago, March 3, was $62.

J. C. VAUGHAN, Chicago, returned from Miami, Fla., last week.

SUGAR men in the southwest are asking permits for Mexican laborers.

"GIPSY FULLER" is the way one catalogue house customer orders gypsophila seed.

BOTH English and French seedsmen report a record business this season since December 1.

THE S. F. Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, will discontinue their La Grange, Cook county, farm.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—A heavy demand in all lines of garden seeds is reported by the St. Louis Seed Co.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—It is rumored that the W. Atlee Burpee Co. will open a store on Market street.

HENRY METTE, Quedlinburg, Germany, in his large trade catalogue, just received, gives prices in shillings.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district are moving more lively this week, price in carlots being about $3.50.

VISITED NEW ORLEANS: L. W. Wheeler and Mrs. Wheeler, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Calif.

IT is reported the United States Grain Corporation will turn into the government treasury $50,000,000 profits.

COMMERCIAL travelers crossing into Ontario, it is said, must be vaccinated when they recross the line into the United States.

A PACIFIC Coast grower of freesias writes: "Two crop failures in succession is going to prove rather hard on many growers."

ADOLPH KRUHM, who was with the Beckert Seed Co. at Pittsburgh, Pa., has gone back to the Garden Magazine, New York.

MAIL advices from the south of France indicate that Narcissus Paper White Grandiflora are flowering well and promise a good crop of bulbs.

IT is reported that French inspection certificates will be issued for white Roman hyacinths the coming season. This report has not yet been verified.

TEXAS farm operations have been greatly delayed by lack of labor, and in consequence the business of seedsmen is affected to a considerable extent.

MAIL trade at New York is reported only fair to March 1, while Philadelphia dealers say business shows a fair increase. The New England seed trade has been snowed in.

TOLEDO, O.—The clover seed market opened unchanged for old seed, March 2, while October, the new crop month, was down 25 cents. Cash closed at $34.55 and October at $25.00. Timothy was practically unchanged, with March at $6.52½, April $6.47½ and May, $6.45.

CALIFORNIA reports one-fourth of an inch to one inch of rain at all stations March 2-3. Previously, it had been quite rainy along the west border and very dry in the central valley.

IT is difficult to understand why congress insists upon spending large sums for absolutely unnecessary free seeds, while the people of the entire country are so heavily burdened with other taxes.

BOARD OF TRADE.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade, March 3, were as follows: Timothy, $10.00 to $13.75 per 100 pounds; March $14.10 bid, $14.40 sellers; red clover, $45.00 to $53.00 per 100 pounds.

A SUPREME court decision of March 1 holds that the anti-trust act does not prohibit price fixing unless intent to create a monopoly is shown. From this, it would appear that wholesale seedsmen may insist that retailers do not cut packet prices.

FRANK G. CUTHBERTSON, of C. C. Morse & Co., San Francisco, Calif., passed through Chicago, February 28, on the last lap of his return from Europe, where he spent two weeks in France and three in Great Britain. Dreer's Cannas

This season we harvested the finest and largest crop of Cannas that we have evergrown.

KING HUMBERT

And all the other good varieties you should have are included in our list and the roots are heavy and firm.

PRICES. The prices quoted are for dormant roots, which can usually be supplied until about the first of April, after which pot plants will be sent out and in which the advance in price will be as follows: All varieties listed at $7.00 or less per 100 will be supplied in pot plants at $8.00 per 100 or $70.00 per 1000, and on varieties listed above $7.00 per 100 there will be no change in price between dormant roots and pot plants. ALL HAVE GREEN FOLIAGE UNLESS OTHERWISE SPECIFIED.

TWELVE SPECIAL VARIETIES

Carmine Beauty. Deep bright carmine flowers freely produced high above the heavy dark-green foliage which has a narrow red margin 4½ ft., 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

Cheerfulness. No more appropriate name could be given to this brilliant novelty. Its beautiful bright fire-red or deep orange flowers appear early and continue without interruption until frost. Add to the prevailing color a golden border and center with each petal flaked carmine-crimson and you may form some conception of this fascinating variety. 3½ ft. 10 cts. each; 85 cts. per doz.; $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1.000.

City of Portland. A wonderful bright rosy-pink, much deeper in color than Mrs. Alfred Conard or Hungaria; a free-flowering, vigorous grower. 3½ ft. 20 cts. each; $2.00 per doz.; $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

Fairy Queen. The dwarf, compact plants of this distinct novelty are covered with flowers from spring until fall. The plant rarely exceeds 3 feet in height. The flowers, of a clear rose-pink, are of medium size, good substance and borne upright on stout stems in great abundance. Each flower has a distinct cream-colored border.

We believe Fairy Queen will become one of the very popular Cannas. 60 cts. each; $6.00 per doz.; $50.00 per 100.

Flag of Truce. A large-flowered, creamy white with faint pink dots on each petal. The general effect is white. Not as white nor as tall as Eureka, but quite distinct and valuable. 4 ft. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.; $20.00 per 100.

Golden Eagle. A wonderful clear golden-yellow of free, upright growth. The flowers are produced in large clusters well above the foliage. 4 ft. 35c. each; $3.50 per doz.; $20.00 per 100.

Harmony. Great clusters of good-sized, well-formed Geranium red flowers are arranged on good stems in such a manner as to give the trusses an almost globular appearance. 3½ ft. 20 cts. each; $2.00 per doz.; $15.00 per 100.

Pocahontas (Bronze-leaved Olympic). Large oriental-red flowers borne on firm upright stems, just high enough above the foliage to show the entire head. The foliage is a dark bronze-green with emerald shadings; the ribs a darker bronze. 4 ft. 20 cts. each; $2.00 per doz.; $15.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

Poppy. Intense poppy-red. Large perfect florets in good trusses over greenish-bronzy foliage. Rich and effective. 5 ft. 20 cts. each; $2.00 per doz.; $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

Remarkable. This effective bronze-leaved variety stands out boldly among other sorts, not only on account of its height (6 ft.), but because of the beautiful scarlet-carmine trusses of bloom surmounting the rich green-bronze foliage. 20 cts. each; $2.00 per doz.; $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

Surprise. The brightest red Canna we have. It surpasses in brilliancy such popular varieties as Meteor and Lafayette and produces its great trusses with equal freedom. 4 to 5 ft. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.; $25.00 per 100.

Sweet Potatoes in Hotbeds.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Please give me complete cultural directions for growing plants of sweet potato in hotbeds and the amount of seed needed to pull 10,000 plants.

Illinois. O. W. E.

According to a sweet potato specialist of the United States department of agriculture, five or six bushels of good seed stock should, under favorable conditions, be sufficient to produce 10,000 plants.

Where it is necessary to grow sweet potatoes in hotbeds, planting in the beds should be done six or eight weeks before weather conditions permit planting in the fields. In order to obtain a quick growth of large stocky plants, bottom heat is necessary, the simplest method of applying which is by the use of fresh, rapidly fermenting horse manure. The hotbed should also be well protected from north and west winds. The excavation under the bed should be 12 to 18 inches deep and before putting in the manure, it is a good plan to pile it and turn it over two or three times in order to make it uniform throughout. The manure should be placed in the excavation to a depth of eight to 12 inches and well trampled. If dry, it should be watered in making the hotbed, as moisture is essential to the decomposition by which heat is produced. As soon as heating starts, sand is spread evenly over the manure to the depth of three or four inches, and when the soil temperature drops to 80 or 85 degrees F., the potatoes are placed on the surface and covered with sand to the depth of one inch.

Where large quantities of sweet potato plants are required and it is difficult to secure sufficient manure for hotbeds, the heat can be supplied by means of a stove or furnace with flues running under the bed. The flue heated bed is made six or 12 feet wide and as long as necessary. The stove or furnace should be so placed that it may be fired from the outside or just inside of a door opening into the space beneath the bed. The stove or furnace is usually connected with 6-inch chimney tiles, which may run the entire length of the bed or discharge the heat into the open space beneath the floor of the bed 25 to 30 feet from the entrance. At the opposite end from the furnace a wooden chimney collects the gases and smoke and carries them to the open air. As the boards forming the floor absorb the moisture from the soil, there is very little danger from fire, but when wood is used for fuel, it may be well to place a wire screen over the ends of the tiles to prevent the passage of sparks. From four to six inches of sand or loose soil is placed on the floor and the potatoes are bedded on this. Where a steam or hot-water boiler is used in heating a greenhouse, residence or other structure, it can often be employed to very good advantage in heating the sweet potato bed. The temperature can be regulated more easily where steam or hot-water is employed than where other methods of supplying heat are used. The best results are secured when the pipes are placed near the bottom of the hotbed pit, the soil being put on a tile or board floor resting on pipe or wood supports so as to leave a space of a few inches between the bottom of the pit and the floor.

The temperature of the plant bed should be about 80 to 85 degrees F., at the time the seed is bedded and should gradually fall until it remains stationary at 70 to 75 degrees F., at the end of six weeks, or before planting out time. The air temperatures beneath the sash or other covering should run between 60 and 80 degrees and during bright days it must be controlled by ventilation. As soon as the potatoes are bedded and covered with soil, the bed should be thoroughly watered. Later waterings should be given when the soil becomes dry, the quantity of water required depending somewhat upon the method of heating employed. Water should never be poured on in a single stream, but by means of a sprinkling can or through a rose or nozzle on the end of a hose. The success of the crop depends largely upon the proper management of the plant bed in order that the right kind of plants may be produced. Where very large beds are in use, it will be necessary to keep some one most of the time caring for the watering, heating and ventilation.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—In the matter of Harold H. Nicholson, bankrupt, individually and as member of the firm of Wanoka Greenhouses, a hearing of creditors and other persons interested will be held at the post office building, this city, at 2:00 p. m., March 19, to show cause why discharge should not be granted.

LENT CURTAILS SALES.

Notabiy slower business in general lines, with funeral work still very heavy, has been the rule here since the beginning of Lent. Local offerings are showing a steady increase, especially for the various spring flowers, so that the failure of California shipments to pick up, as had been expected, is not causing trouble. Pot hydrangeas during the past week, took well, as might have been expected for first arrivals of the season. Social decorations are practically nil. On the other hand, there seem to be about as many cut flowers sold as could be expected. Tulips and daffodils are big sellers, the former being both potted and cut, and snapdragons have been featured in several shops. Some fine pot cyclamen are still available, and lily of the valley has been more plentiful. This has lessened the demand for freesias for weddings. Carnations have shown some improvement as to keeping qualities but still leave something to be desired on this score. The local crop of roses is not up to the demand and California shipments have not filled this breach. The supply of sweet peas has been increasing, but the demand kept pace and no changes in prices were necessitated.

NOTES.

Recognizing the growing importance of the Pacific northwest, from the trade standpoint, the A. L. Randall Company, of Chicago, has named a permanent representative to travel out of this city. Mr. Slicker has been placed in charge of Washington, Idaho, British Columbia and Oregon, and anticipates a good business.

Fred H. Rowe, of McCoy's, has returned to work after being confined for more than two weeks by influenza. He says that every effort will be made to have this firm in its new home on Second avenue by two weeks before Easter, as the structure is being rapidly pushed to completion.

Frank Chavenka, who has been connected with the Butte Floral Company until lately, and who was succeeded by Gus Berkman, spent a part of the week calling on his old friends in the trade here. After an extended visit with relatives in Kentucky, he plans to go to New York.

Rosaia Bros. have been featuring their own cut of orchids and lily of the valley in late displays, and have moved both offerings freely. This house has shown some of the finest Murillo tulips seen here, and these have been featured in late sales of fancy baskets.

Felix Rosaia featured Lorraine tulips and white Dutch hyacinths in small birch covered baskets, holding one bloom of each in a window display for two days last week, and disposed of several hundred.

A novel funeral piece was made last week by Kenney's Home of Flowers consisting of a pilot wheel of violets and sweet peas, which measured about 50 inches across, for the funeral of a local mariner.

Harry Crouch, of the Woodlawn Flower Shop, reports a growing interest in pot stock, and the display benches at the entrance of this shop have been given over almost entirely to this.

George B. Weigand, of A. Weigand Sons Co., Indianapolis, Ind., called on the retailers here last week. He has been making a pleasure trip covering the entire Pacific coast. H. M.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—A large attendance at the meeting of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, February 18, enjoyed the very interesting lecture of John K. M. L. Farquhar, of Boston, Mass., who spoke on "English Gardens."

"Hamburg Late Pink" Chrysanthemum

Picture was taken Dec. 28, 1919, and will give a good idea of what "Hamburg Late Pink" looks like when grown to single stems and planted six inches each way.

"Hamburg Late Pink" is an improved late pink Maud Dean, having more petals, and if grown for late will hardly ever show an open center.

The average grower of chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle, and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. "Hamburg Late Pink" has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but, for late pink, one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November by taking an early bud, but some of the flowers will show open centers; but by selecting late buds, after October 1st, most of the flowers are cut during December, and would advise to select late buds, as the later buds will hardly ever show an open center, and some flowers can be had even in January.

Keeping qualities are excellent, and where a graceful pink flower is wanted, "Hamburg Late Pink" cannot be surpassed.

"Hamburg Late Pink" will be disseminated in the spring of 1920. Plants will be ready March 1st, 1920, and all orders will be filled in rotation.

AN invention for recording the growth of trees has proven successful at the Missouri botanical garden. Dr. B. M. Duggar has the machine, known as the dendrograph in operation on poplar and sycamore trees.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—The Rev. Dr. Edmund M. Mills, at a meeting of the Syracuse Rose Society, February 19, was elected to the presidency for the tenth consecutive term. Erl Bates, secretary, and George E. Thorpe, treasurer, were also re-elected, the tenth term in both cases.

The Late John C. Olmsted.

John C. Olmsted, eminent landscape gardener, and senior member of the family that for many years has held pre-eminence in that profession, died at his home in Brookline, Mass., on the night of February 24, as announced in our last issue.

Mr. Olmsted was born in Geneva, Switzerland, September 14, 1852, during a temporary visit of his parents to that city. His father, Dr. John N. Olmsted, died soon after, and his mother some years later married her late husband's brother, Frederick Law Olmsted, who adopted the boy as his own son. He studied under his stepfather, attended the Knapp School in Plymouth, Mass., the Englewood Military Academy and the Yale Sheffield Scientific School, from which he graduated in 1875, receiving the Ph. D. degree. He took up landscape gardening, and was for a time in New York in the offices of Calvert Vaux, with whom the late Frederick Law Olmsted was associated in the planning and laying out of Central Park.

He became the partner of his stepfather, and later, of Frederick Law Olmsted, Jr. He had previously spent a year with the fortieth parallel survey in the Rocky mountains, 1869-70, and another year studying in Europe, and during his undergraduate years, studied botany, natural history, landscape gardening and kindred subjects. He and his partners designed many of the finest parks and park systems of this country, including those of Boston, of Essex County, N. J. (Newark); of Rochester, N. Y.; Hartford, Conn.; Louisville, Ky.; Milwaukee, Wis.; Seattle and Spokane, Wash., and the South Parks of Chicago. Among his other achievements were the planning of the grounds of the Chicago Columbian exposition, the Lewis and Clark exposition at Portland, Ore., and of the Canadian industrial exposition at Winnipeg. He also planned many minor parks and grounds.

Mr. Olmsted was a member and for some time president of the American Society of Landscape Architects, and a member of the Boston Society of Civil Engineers, Boston Society of Architects, American Association of Park Superintendents, Massachusetts Horticultural Society, Municipal Art Society of New York, American Forestry Association, Appalachian Mountain Club, Boston Museum, Fine Arts Association, Boston Society of Landscape Architects, and the Century, the Reform and National Arts clubs of New York.

In 1899, he was married, in Brookline, to Sophia Buckland White, who with two daughters, the Misses Carolyn and Margaret Olmsted, survive him. Private funeral services, only the members of the family being present, were held on the morning of February 27 in the chapel at Mount Auburn cemetery, Boston. A. F. F.

Public Parks' Decay.

The broad fact in connection with the decay of public parks, which may be seen in nearly all our American cities, is that we Americans are better at starting things than we are at taking care of them afterwards. We employ our Olmsteds and our Vaux to create beautiful parks, and then leave them to the tender mercies of men without education in the profound art and science of the making and care of pleasure grounds. There is no art or science which demands a deeper or broader education than this. And the difference between expert knowledeg and utter neglect in such a matter can be noted fully in a single day by comparing the appearance of the Arnold Arboretum with that of Central park in New York or Franklin park in Boston.—Boston Transcript.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—Isaac Okke is planning to build two houses at Burton street and Kalamazoo avenue this spring.

GRAFTON, MASS.—Leonard C. Midgley, of Worcester, has re-opened his range here. James C. Schouler will be in charge.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK.—The Vestal Greenhouses suffered a fire loss of about $20,000 February 14; not covered by insurance.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—The Warrendale Floral Co., A. Lauritzen, proprietor, recently suffered the loss of its potting shed and two automobiles by fire.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—August Swenson, the veteran florist, has purchased a residence in California and will make his home there during part of the year.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Seeds for March Sowing.

The middle of March is the proper time for the sowing of the main crop of summer annuals. The seedsmen have seen that the growers have the catalogues, and the lists of the wants for the year should be made out at once, if not already done, and the seeds procured and sown. How often have we seen good growers spending valuable time during the busy days of May and June hunting for some small stock that could have been easily grown, but was neglected at the proper time. It is a good time now to look back at the sales of the last year or two and note what lines of stock were in short supply or were carelessly omitted. Such matters as this are the little things that count in a successful business, for the time taken in hunting up and procuring the cheaper kinds of stock during the busy season more than eats up all the profit received in handling it. The seeds that should be sown now are almost endless in variety, and they include asters, Phlox Drummondii, zinnias, marigolds, balsams, antirrhinums, begonias, calendulas, celosias, cobæas, cosmos, gauras, mignonette, nicotianas, nasturtiums, petunias, salpiglossis, ricinus, salvias, scabiosa, stocks, thunbergias, and others that may be demanded. With the exception of Cobæa scandens, mignonette and ricinus, which should be sown in pots, these can all be sown in flats and as soon as large enough transplanted to pots or spaced in flats, and good stock be had for summer bedding.

Lilacs for Easter,

A large variety of blooming plants can be grown for Easter, and dwarf, shapely lilacs are appreciated by all flower lovers, and the cut sprays have now become a standard winter flower. For the pot plants the imported budded stock is preferable, but for cut blooms any lilac may be lifted, and they force quickly and easily in a warm house. The varieties most grown for pot plants are Marie Lagraye, white, and Charles X, purple. Four weeks in a temperature of 65° will bring them into flower. The plants when placed in the greenhouse should be syringed several times a day in order to assist the buds to swell and kept in a dark place. As soon as the buds begin to open the plants can be placed in full sunlight. The common lilac can be forced in the same manner. A bush which is well set with flower buds, and these are easily distinguished from the leaf buds, can be lifted and planted in a bench and will furnish fine sprays of flowers. If the plant is kept shaded from the sun by spreading a heavy cloth over it the flowers of the purple varieties will be white when forced. The plants will require plenty of water, for they make but little root growth and bloom upon the vitality which has been stored.

Rambler Roses.

The plants of rambler roses that are intended for Easter blooming should now be showing color, and if they are not they will require quite a little forcing to have them in the best of condition for that date. If the plants are at all pot bound, watering with liquid manure will be of great assistance to them and stimulate the flowers and make them much larger, and an addition of soot to this will intensify the color. The plants will often, when setting the buds, make long growths from the base of the plants; these should be cut out, for they are taking much strength that should go into the flowers. These canes should be made into cuttings and propagated and will make small plants for next year's growing or can be planted outside and grown on for stock for the future. There is always a good demand for well grown pot ramblers for Memorial day and early June, and plants started now will be in the best of condition at that time. They can be started in a cool house and frequently syringed until the eyes break, when they can be moved into warmer quarters and full sunlight. For June decoration, there is nothing better in blooming plants than Crimson Rambler and the other rambler roses and hydrangeas; they make a beautiful combination and are also very decorative for porches.

Iceland Poppies.

A beautiful cut flower for summer use not often grown is the Iceland poppy. While it is a perennial, yet it can be treated as an annual if the seed is sown early and the plants transplanted. Seeds sown in March will bloom the coming summer, and the varieties of color range through the yellow and orange to white. The petals have a peculiar satiny texture, are beautifully crumpled, and if the flowers are picked in the early morning they will stand in water for a long time, and are very decorative. There are few annuals that will attract more attention than a vase of these lovely poppies arranged with appropriate green, and besides they have a delicious frangrance. They are easily grown, and if the flowers are kept picked will continue to bloom all summer. Another poppy that can be grown for cut flowers is the Shirley poppy, but the flowers do not last as well as the Iceland poppies.

Boston Orchid Show.

The orchid show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society will be held in Horticultural hall, Boston, March 24-28, and for the purpose of interesting a large number of people in these beautiful plants, the advancement in the culture of which during the past quarter century has been remarkable, will have on display rare specimens from all parts of the world. It is estimated that the value of the total display will exceed $300,000 and it is believed applications for space will exceed the capacity of the exhibition halls.

Albert C. Burrage, who has the largest private collection in the United States, will stage a fine display from his 20 or more houses at Orchidville, near Beverley Farms. This arrangement will include trees, palms and other tropical vegetation with orchid plants growing on them as they do in their native haunts, each plant displayed, however, to show to the best advantage.

Assistant Director E. H. Wilson, of Arnold Arboretum, has announced that its exhibit will include about 130 Japanese azaleas never before shown in this country. These are now being groomed for the show at the Sargeant greenhouses at Brookline. There will also be numerous other displays of various plants, although orchids will predominate, more than $3,500 in prizes in addition to gold, silver and bronze medals being offered for competition in this section alone.

LONG BEACH, CALIF.—Herbert Mace is giving up his business here to engage in missionary work.

WHITE PIGEON, MICH.—A. E. Kunderd, of Goshen, Ind., has acquired the 125-acre farm of S. Wood here for gladiolus culture.

GREENSBURG, IND.—Henry Hennington has bought Mrs. Emma Hamilton's greenhouses, which he has been operating the past year on lease. The consideration was $13,000.—W. B. C.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Time Zone Map of United States.

Baum's Home of Flowers, Knoxville, Tenn., one of the leading florist establishments of the south, has issued a time zone map of the United States and Canada and has mailed a copy to every member of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, with which organization the firm is also identified. The map, 9x12 inches, which may be framed and hung in the office for reference, shows the divisions governed by Atlantic, eastern, central, mountain and Pacific time, sectional lines making it possible to determine at a glance the difference in hours between the point of delivery and the city in which the order is taken.

In the communication which accompanies the map, the Baum letter-head prominently features the slogan, "Say it With Flowers" and also calls attention to the fact that "All Knoxville Florists Are Closed Sundays by Agreement."

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

It is spring, or so near, that it can be played strong. There has been a wonderful change in the market in the past two weeks. One would scarcely believe it possible. Flowers of all kinds are now so plentiful that they can be featured in window and store decorations, in special sales, and in every way brought to the notice of the public with such effectiveness that they cannot fail to know they are abundant and much lower in price.

A shower effect in window decorating gives an idea of profusion, and yet does not take half the stock that the effect produced would indicate. Small vase baskets, with handles, that contain from eight to twelve daffodils and a little green, when suspended from the top of the window at various heights, give a decorative and pleasing effect. The bottom or floor should have a few larger baskets or vases containing the same flower, and a few boxes nicely filled, ready to be sent out. A vase or two of well budded pussy willows and short sprays of the same in the baskets and boxes, add a touch of spring. A price card will soon start them on their way.

It is a good time to circularize one's trade with a description of the various flowers now in stock, which can be called "spring blossoms." Interesting things can be said of orchid flowering sweet peas, calendulas, lilac, tulips, daffodils, pansies, stocks, wall flowers and the beauty of the newer varieties of roses. Prices can be quoted to show how they are now within the reach of every purse. There is also a splendid line of flowering plants, such as azaleas, lilies, primulas, heather, rambler roses, hydrangeas, daffodils, hyacinths and tulips, in pots and pans, also pansies. All of these, when featured in some way, as placed in handle baskets, or having the pots and pans papered or decorated with mats, are much more attractive, and in their display, add greatly to the dressed appearance of the store's interior.

Although we have spoken frequently of this featuring of the stock, and the inviting appearance of the store, the lack of it is one of the most pronounced failings in the great majority of flower shops. So often, one sees plants setting about the floor almost as they have been left by the growers, at times still carrying the grime of the greenhouse on the sides and bottom of the pot. Trim the most ordinary looking plant up with white paper on the pot, and tie with cord or fibre ribbon the color of the flower, and its appearance is greatly enchanced. A few such decorated specimens, nicely arranged on the counter, or on a show table or two, makes a beauty spot in the store, which is at once attractive and increases the sales of such stock very materially.

The speed of any business is in the hands of the driver. He can, by putting on a little more power, as a nicely decorated store front, an interesting window that compels the passersby to stop to take a look, by carrying a full line of seasonable plants and flowers, and presenting them in an attractive up-to-date manner, and by newspaper and circular advertising, combined with superior service, increase the pace so fast, as to surprise even himself, and his force will have their hands full in keeping up to his campaign.

Sweet peas are now the quantity flower. They should be kept to the front and proposed for all kinds of wreaths or sprays, working splendidly in combinations with other flowers as well as by themselves. For the corsage, they are always in favor, are at their best in wedding bouquets, and most beautiful in table decorations. In fact, there has never been a flower introduced more popular or capable of so many and varied uses.

Easter is drawing very near. Any spare minutes used in preparatory work now, will help to take away the grinding strain of the last and busy week. Much of the success of this harvest time depends on the planning and preparatory work. Early ordering insures the first choice, salable stock. Every after-Easter inventory, reveals that the left overs were the fag ends of the growers' stock, that were taken because it was the best to be had at the time. It is better to be without such plants, as either they do not sell, or fail to give satisfaction to those who select them.

In the excitement, do not forget the national publicity campaign. Flowers are now going to be plentiful, and the splendid work the committee is doing to make them more popular, should be supported liberally by all in the trade. The committee has secured the best advertising talent in the country, as is evidenced by the success of the wonderful slogan. Every florist, and all interested in the craft, should be taxed a five or ten dollar bill for this alone. Many in the business, use the four wonderful words on their car, their stationery, tags, etc., but the little five or ten dollar check has yet to be started on its way to John Young, 1170 Broadway, New York. Sign one today and get it off by the first mail.

Sunday Closing.

The very laudable effort of the trade in cities where it has been the custom to open on Sunday, to bring about a general movement for the closing of all flower shops on this first day of the week, is to be highly commended. Sunday, nowhere in all this broad land, is regarded as a day of business. It is a day of worship or rest or leisure, as the individual is so inclined. With few exceptions, stores, factories and establishments of all kinds, where labor is employed, are closed, all outdoor operations are discontinued, and in every way, it is recognized as a time when all business is to be set aside. In emergencies, when mechanical or repair work has to be done on Sundays, men receive half as much more, or even double pay, as an inducement for breaking their day of rest. There is a class of stores, that from the nature of their business, such as druggists, dairy men, bakers, barbers, cigar shops and small candy dealers, which keep open for at least a part of the day in nearly every community.

FORCED LILACS IN TUB.

Florists cannot by any manner of means class themselves as dealers in such necessary articles as drugs, and they surely do not want to run their stores on Sunday for the money there is in it. In most cases, it will be found that one keeps open because the other fellow "up the street" or "around the corner" is also on the job. This encourages flower buyers to defer ordering in advance, as they know they can go either before or after church, or at any time, and get what they want.

There are, perhaps, many who do not know how generally, as regards the cessation of business, the Sabbath is observed in Philadelphia, Pa. No cut flower stores ever stock up and open for business on Sunday. It has never been the custom, and we trust, never will be. There are Sunday deliveries for birthdays, funerals and other occasions, and while parts of the force are on duty to get these orders out, new business is tabooed. There is no fresh flower window display, and, as a rule, the front door is locked. Every effort is made for Saturday night deliveries, so as to have Sunday entirely clear. Theatres, movies and saloons are all closed. Barbers used to keep open until noon, but some years ago, they got together and perfected a Sunday closing movement, which is now rigidly enforced. There is no thought by the trade that anything is lost in a business way. One wholesale house is open for a couple of hours in the morning to supply stock, nearly all the demand being for flowers for early Monday morning funerals.

Where it is now the custom to keep cut flower stores open on Sunday, it will be found, as before mentioned, that one does it, and his neighbor then also finds it necessary, so as to hold his trade, which action, for fear of losing prestige, keeps all the shops in line.

Co-operation in the trade is rapidly coming to the front as a means of bringing business helps and smoothing the road to make it easier running for all. Let the florists of any community get in accord on this question of Sunday closing, and it can be carried out without the least friction. There is no secret to success in handling flowers; it is entirely a matter of hustle and good business management. The little business that is to be obtained by opening the shop on Sunday, is as nothing compared to the proper observance of the day, and its freedom from all business cares.

National Publicity for Flowers.

When the far reaching results of our campaign are so noticeable as to promote interest such as is shown in the following letter, it is time that the large body of florists who have not yet subscribed to our campaign fund should appreciate what is being done for them:

"JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y,
National Publicity Campaign.

On my recent trip south and west, I took particular notice of the publicity campaign, and was much gratified and pleased to see the good impression it made upon the public, and its beneficial results to the trade. Indeed, the slogan, "Say It With Flowers", expresses so much in all conditions of life, be it love, friendship, sickness, death, etc., that it has taken a strong hold on the public, and I really believe that the increased demand in flowers is, to a large extent, owing to it and the advertising in general. All of which impressed me very much, and made me feel that the advertising crusade ought to be supported liberally. So when I reached Omaha, and dropped in to see J. J. Hess, of Hess & Swoboda, he easily detected the weak spot in my armor, and neatly extracted a promise from me of a further contribution to the fund on the part of my firm. Therefore, you will please find enclosed check of my firm for $100.00 as an additional contribution to the publicity campaign, and hoping that it will help the good cause along, I remain,

CHAS. F. MEYER.
President of Corp. of Chas F. Meyer."

Our slogan is, undoubtedly, forcing its way rapidly into the public mind. It is not a mere jumble of words, as most other trade slogans are; it is straight to the point with its message, and permits of no misunderstanding. Hardly a day passes when there is not received at the secretary's office some proof of its reception by the public.

Of late, the cartoonists on the big newspapers seem to have taken it up, and we receive many clippings showing its use. All this is publicity, and its great value is fully recognized.

We sometime ago were advised that a proper appraisement of our slogan's value would be a million dollars, but it is safe to say now that it is worth to us a great deal more. It should be remembered, though that this great asset would speedily fade away if the slogan were allowed to fall into disuse. Only by using it continually can we maintain its value, and to assure this, we must have the money to carry along our campaign.

And, all things considered, it is such a little we ask. We have been going along on the volunteer system of contributing, which many of our staunchest supporters declare to be a wrong procedure. But we did hope, and hope still, that it will serve our purpose. We never for one moment thought that a wideawake florist would be a "slacker," but if we are to judge from our returns so far, there is a big army of slackers, and we are quite sure that the majority of those in this army do not really want to be there. Either they do not understand our campaign, or they are negligently putting off the writing of a cheque with the thought that any time will do. They are wrong. We need their support now, right at this very time. Our publicity committee has struggled along in the face of great difficulties for the want of money—ready money—to work with. It has often incurred liabilities in anticipation of being able to meet them from our collections, and has come through, as a member of the committee express it, "by the skin of our teeth." All this anxiety you, Messrs. Non-Subscribers, can relieve or prevent. This committee is working for you, for your interests, for your prosperity. Will you not pay your way, at least in the proportion that you would pay for a trifling service, which is all that is asked? Your share of the expense is within your own estimate. You can make it $5 if you please, or as much as you wish. If you only do a $5,000 business, a $5 contribution would amount to just one-tenth of one per cent. Can you afford it? Certainly, you can—it is hardly the cost of a box of cigars.

The publicity campaign is conceded to be the best thing ever promoted in the interests of florists. Support it and you support your own enterprise.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

J. Harper Hetherington.

PRES.-ELECT WASHINGTON FLORISTS' CLUB.

J. Harper Hetherington, one of the youngest and most prominent members of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., was unanimously elected president of that organization at its annual meeting, March 2, and will assume office in April.

Mr. Hetherington was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 31 years ago. He is the son of the late Joseph H. Hetherington, who served more than 30 years in the employ of Robert Craig & Company, in that city. Here was where the new president obtained his first knowledge of the florist business. While going to school, he worked in the Craig establishment during his spare time. At the age of 15, he was regularly put on the payroll of the concern. About four years later, he went to work in the Century Flower Shop of H. H. Battles, remaining about four years. From there he went to Washington and secured employment with Fred H. Kramer, at 916 F Street, Northwest, and 18 months later he joined the Washington Floral Company. For the past five years, he has been manager of this concern, which enjoys a healthy and growing wholesale and retail business.

Mr. Hetherington has been quite active in club affairs, especially during the last year, and aided materially in the success of "Say It With Flowers" Week in Washington.

Florists' Club of Philadelphia.

At the regular meeting of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, Pa., March 2, which incidentally was "ladies' night," J. Otto Thilow's illustrated lecture on floriculture in Australia, and the W. Atlee Burpee Co's. exhibit of new sweet peas, drew a record attendance of about 350 members and their friends. The entire roof garden of the Adelphia hotel was used for the occasion. Everybody greatly enjoyed Mr. Thilow's lecture. The speaker was at his best, and his many beautiful pictures of well known greenhouse plants, but scarcely recognized in the luxuriousness of their native habitat were a revelation.

The display of Burpee sweet peas even excelled that of last year. There were over 40 vases of distinct varieties, all superb flowers, exquisite in form and coloring.

The Jos. Heacock Co. staged exceptionally fine Christmas Pink, lavender, and white sweet peas; also, vases of Hadley, Premier and Columbia roses, superb flowers all of them. The estate of John Stephenson's Sons exhibited a vase of very fine Sunburst roses of exceptional color.

William Kleinheinz, gardener to Joseph Widener, staged 11 vases of cut acacia sprays, all different varieties, the fragrance of which filled the room. These were very much admired.

The vases of Carnations Benora, Mrs. Ward and Belle Washburn, all splendid flowers, were exhibited by Edward Reid. Three fine vases of sweet peas were also included in his entry.

Alfred M. Campbell presented a forward of his Easter stock in a table of very well grown formosum and giganteum lilies, in pots. They were well budded and splendidly clothed with foliage. French hydrangeas with heavy trusses just commencing to show color, accompanied the lilies.

After the meeting, refreshments added to the delight of a social half hour. It was one of the best attended and owing to the presence of so many of the fair sex, the most enjoyable meeting ever held by the club.

AMPLE SUPPLY WITH LESSENED DEMAND.

Business remains about the same as at the last writing, with a somewhat lighter demand and stock more plentiful. Buyers can always pick up job lots at bargain prices at any time during the day. American Beauties are still scarce, which is a good thing, as the demand has been light. Roses are more plentiful, and prices much lower, with Columbia, Premier and Ophelia the favorites. Bright weather the first of the week brought in a larger cut of carnations but so far there has been no surplus. The supply of sweet peas is on the increase, and prices are about one-half what they were two weeks ago. Bulbous stock is in heavy supply, with light demand. The supply of Dutch iris and snapdragons is light and bring good prices. Baby primroses, mignonette, calendulas and forget-me-nots are arriving in large quantities and are hard to move at any price. Violets are also a drug on the market. The supply of plumosus and Sprengeri is sufficient for all demands.

CLUB MEETING.

The meeting of the florists' and gardeners' club was held in the basement of the North Side Library. There was a good attendance to welcome the new president, John Basset, who performed his duties in a most businesslike manner. The exhibition tables carried the finest specimen Cyclamen persicum gigantium ever shown in this city. This, together with Brompton stocks, and Primula obconica, came from Sewickley Heights, brought in by W. Thompson. Peter Hopman, of New Gallilee, staged a gorgeous exhibit of Dutch Iris Rembrandt. John Danbach showed a fine lot of baby primroses, and Roderick Ross, brought from Dixmont, callas and cineraries.

Mr. Colyn, a regular annual visitor from Holland, gave a striking demonstration of the Dutch modes, "Past and Present," in the propagation of the hyacinth; also, a brief history of the same, which was instructive and entertaining.

The feature of the meeting was a most entertaining lecture on "Soil Fertility," by W. H. Weisman, of the School Gardens Commission.

added to the McCallum staff and will be in charge of the firm's display rooms at 239 Fourth avenue, New York. Display rooms have also been opened in San Juan, Porto Rico, in charge of John de Chouden. The new branches are now doing business, tables, shelving and fixtures having been installed.

NOTES.

Wm. Q. Potter, formerly of this city, but for the past several years located in Cleveland, O., was a welcome visitor this week. Mr. Potter says he is out of the wholesale business for good, and will take up farming on his place near Cleveland, the coming summer.

John Bax, well known grower, and for the past several years employed by the McCallum Company at its plant at Evans City, Pa., died February 29 of influenza and pneumonia.

The Altimo Culture Company, of Canfield, Ohio, is cutting some fine orchids, which they are sending to The A. W. Smith Flowers Stores Co.

The E. C. Ludwig Floral Company is receiving some nice Primula obconica from their greenhouses at Ludwig Station, Pa.

E. C. Tipton, of the McCallum Company, has just returned from a visit to Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago.

M.

Washington Florists' Club.

J. Harper Hetherington, manager of the Washington Floral Company, was elected president of the Florists' Club of Washington at its meeting on March 2, being chosen without opposition when G. E. Anderson, former vice-president, refused to be a candidate for the office. Other officers elected were A. E. Gude, vice-president; William F. Gude, re-elected treasurer; Z. D. Blackistone, financial secretary, and G. V. Schultz, of the Leo Niessen Company, secretary. Members of the executive committee are Otto Bauer, Charles P. Groce, George C. Shaffer, David G. Grillbortzer, Adolph Gude and Theodore Diedrich. The new officers will be installed at the April meeting of the club. This meeting will not only be a lovefest, but an "oyster feast," as well.

Resolutions of appreciation of the work done for the club by Mr. Anderson were adopted, in which he was highly commended for his unceasing efforts to make visits of out-of-town florists to the club always a success and a credit.

The value of college education in the training of horticulturists and floriculturists, was the subject of an address by Professor A. S. Thurston, of the Maryland State Agricultural College, who spoke upon the work done by the college along this line.

The disposition of surplus stocks of flowers was taken up and discussed as to the best method of handling this problem. The offering of flowers in quantities at low prices to customers who would take advantage of such an opportunity was suggested by Z. D. Blackistone. It was also suggested that local merchants might use quantities of stock for distribution as souvenirs on openings, special sales or anniversaries. The use of flowers in the lobbies of motion picture and other theaters, already regular features in several of the larger houses, and their display in vases in the best jewelry stores, were also suggested as a method of building up a larger business.

Although "Say it With Flowers" week is just barely over, florists here are not going to let the public forget the slogan, and a plan for a ball team was presented by Herbert M. Sauber and Arthur Shaffer. The team, it was suggested, would secure considerable advertising of the project. The team will be composed of the employes of the stores, wholesale establishments and greenhouses.

With one of the worst storms of the winter two days ahead, the florists took up the discussion of outings for the coming summer, one proposal being for a boat trip to Old Point Comfort. Another, to precede the Old Point Comfort trip, was also proposed, and a committee was appointed to decide upon the place and date and make other preliminary arrangements.

MARKET FEELS SHARP PRICE DECLINE.

This week has seen a sharp drop in the prices of roses and carnations. The former have been held at very high figures since Christmas, owing to the short supply, but this seems to have ended. The sudden increase in the supply, together with the falling of the shipping demand, due to the Lenten season, has been the cause. There is a very fair supply of first class American Beauties. The latter are still high in price as practically the entire cut is being supplied by one grower. Carnations are now to be seen on the street corners in great quantities. As a rule the offerings are very fine but the market is not able to absorb the great supply. Orchids, principally cattleyas, have shortened up considerably of late. Gardenias of the best quality are coming in a little more freely and are taking the place of cattleyas to a large extent. There is still a large supply of violets. The outside demand for this stock keeps prices at about normal. The best freesias of the season are now being received from Half Moon Bay. Daffodils are now at the height of the season. Enormous cuts are being handled by the wholesalers. The crop of tulips seems to be about over. Quite a few Dutch hyacinths are coming in and meet a demand for spring flowers. Lily of the valley is quite plentiful, but is being held at high prices. There are no lilies on the market as yet and none are promised until Easter week. Ferns and asparagus are rapidly becoming more plentiful.

NOTES.

John Carbone, the orchid specialist of Berkeley, is greatly concerned over the embargo on cattleyas and other orchids. He usually imported two or three houses every year to replenish his stock, but finds it impossible to secure any new stock. He has not a great deal of faith in seedlings. He has grown them for many years and speaks from a long experience. He says that the imported stock is the only one which will show profits to the grower of orchids for cut flowers.

Victor Ferrari, manager of Ferarri Bros.' greenhouses, says his firm is shipping large quantities of orchids to Los Angeles every week to supply the demand in the southern city. He reports Laddie to be the best seller among the carnations and intends to increase his plantings of this variety very much this coming season.

The Art Floral Company, P. Vincent Matraia, manager, has received an order which will include the decorating of the California, Imperial and Portola theatres for the coming year. Great quantities of palms and other foliage plants, as well as cut flowers, will be required.

Charles W. Ward, of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Eureka, is spending a few weeks in town and is a daily visitor at the wholesale market. He is consigning large shipments of bulbous stocks, principally daffodils, to this market this spring.

Louis Matrani, formerly proprietor of the Belmont Florist, is looking for a suitable location to engage in the wholesale florist supply business. He is well known to the trade here and will no doubt make a success of his new undertaking.

George C. Roeding, of the Fancher Creek Nurseries, of Fresno, has been re-elected president of the state board of agriculture for the coming year. His nurseries of Fresno and Niles are now at the height of the busiest season in their history.

Shibuya & Tchida have commenced work on the propagation of chrysanthemums for the coming season. All the latest novelties will be given a trial to determine which will prove good commercial varieties.

Frank R. Mills, of Palo Alto, is shipping a large crop of carnations. His lily of the valley is also fine. He reports a splendid trade since the first of the year.

Martin A. Poss, of San Mateo, has been very busy with funeral work during the past few weeks. He has a few lots of begonias and cyclamen at present.

J. A. Axell says the shipping demand for daffodils and violets remains as strong as ever, but that the outside call for carnations has fallen off to a great extent.

Albert O. Stein, on Sutter street, says that Lent is having very little effect upon his trade, and he still notes a strong demand for all flowers.

The Hillsborough Nurseries are sending in a splendid cut of Mrs. Chas. Russell roses which is commanding the highest market price.

The E. W. McLellan greenhouses at Burlingame are now cutting the finest Hadleys that have come into the market in a long time.

Alfred Cuneo, of the Art Floral Company's staff, is still in St. Joseph hospital, slowly recovering from his recent illness.

JAMES T. LYNCH.

LOCAL SUPPLY IMPROVES.

Ideal weather conditions have again given the local growers control of the market. Roses have picked up materially, the quality of the carnations has shown steady improvement, and other arrivals have held up so that shipments from California have been materially reduced. The spring offerings are the market leaders, but the better quality of roses and carnations has caused these two lines to clean up as fast as the stock arrives. The local cut of orchids has fallen off a little but it is still large enough to care for current needs, and the supply of lily of the valley has increased greatly. Local growers are sending in the best sweet peas of the season, and the prices have been maintained despite the increased arrivals all along the line. Violets are meeting their usual good demand. Gardenias have been in the same class as orchids, in lighter arrival, but still large enough stocks to handle the regular business. Store decorations and funeral work have formed a good share of the business. The usual Lenten slowness has been a partial factor of late, but this has not been the cause of any losses to the trade. In most cases, it has manifested itself in a changed demand, pot plants and cut flowers suitable for the home replacing the former business in corsages and social decorations.

NOTES.

A reduced supply of gardenias has been offset by a large cut of lily of the valley from the Hollywood Gardens' range, according to Mr. Holmes of that firm. Acacia brought in from California has been a leader in decorations and low glaze holders for the spring flowers have also been good sellers of late.

The Woodlawn Flower Shop used pot cinerarias in the deeper shades to form the mass background for the light colored spring offerings in one window last week, and found that their immediate stock of this flower was cleaned up quickly.

Mrs. L. McCoy returned this week from a long visit in California. She says that growing conditions in the south have been far from ideal of late, and that there will have to be more and more stock grown in the northwest for its own needs.

Rosaia Bros. report some let up in the cut of orchids, but a plentiful and increasing supply of lily of the valley.

Ophelia and Rose Premier and freesias. Sweet peas in the orchid shades have been more than popular.

The Burns Floral Company has been receiving some of the finest orchid sweet peas that have been seen here this season. The size and keeping qualities have both been all that could be asked.

Fred M. Young, of Portland, Ore., who last June took over the greenhouses of the Martin & Forbes Company, was a visitor this week. He reports an excellent shipping business.

A steady gain in business is reported by Kenney's Home of Flowers, and the increased supply of stock has made possible more elaborate window displays. H. M.

Cincinnati, O.

SUPPLY PLENTIFUL IN ALL LINES.

Now that lower prices are country-wide in their scope, it is necessary to maintain a certain amount of publicity to this effect, in order that the flower buyers may know that Nature's most beautiful gift is again within their reach. The past 60 days will linger long in the memory of everyone; the grower will now have to be satisfied with smaller returns, while the retailer will be put to the test to bring lagging patrons back into the fold. While quotations from outside sources quote very low prices on stock, when purchased in thousand lots, the average florist does not buy everything by the thousand. Especially is this a fact during Lent, when social functions are few in number. Roses at $100 per thousand are still fairly quoted at 25 cents in lots of one hundred and less. Short-stemmed stock is $8 to $10 per hundred. Carnations have reached the point where they do not sell out clean daily, $6 being the previaling price per hundred for the best stock. Narcissi and freesias maintain a steady demand at about $6 per hundred. Calendulas remain firm at $3 to $4 per hundred. Sweet peas are plentiful, and the prices range from $1 to $2 per hundred for the different grades. The demand for violets is only fair. The best stock is bringing $1, when sold in small quantities. Single daffodils remain firm at $6 per hundred. Tulips also hold their price well, the better grades moving at $6 to $8 per hundred. In green goods, leucothoe has been scarce; Plumosus from the south and smilax are in good supply.

PUBLICITY NEEDED.

What this city needs, is a little aggressive publicity of a co-operative nature to show the public why they should indulge in flowers now. Efforts in this direction in other cities have met with good results. Prices have been so high, that people have simply refused to buy, and no doubt, these same people would welcome the opportunity to purchase at a moderate price. Flowering plants are meeting a brisk demand. Were azaleas available more sales of a higher class would be made. Cyclamens are running out, but Primulas obconica and malacoides, cinerarias and pans of hyacinths, daffodils and tulips fill the void. With Easter only a little over three weeks away, few are realizing that their plant orders ought to be in by this time in order to get what they expect to handle. Lilies in pots will be leaders, with rose bushes a close second. Bulbous stock will be more sought than ever.

NOTES.

E. C. Gillette is handling a fine grade of Princess of Wales violets.

L. H. Kyrk is receiving nice shipments of forget-me-nots, baby primroses and wallflowers.

The Wm. Murphy Co. is supplying the trade with sweet peas in quantity.

Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange is handling home grown lily of the valley of good quality.

C. E. Critchell is feeling all right again. K.

OBITUARY.

Frederick William Bruggerhof.

Frederick William Bruggerhof, head of the firm of J. M. Thorburn & Co., New York, and for many years one of the most conspicuous figures in the American seed trade, died at his home in that city, 33 West Fifty-first street, March 8, in his ninetieth year. For some time he had been growing gradually weaker, but visited the store almost daily, his last visit being March 4. Mr. Bruggerhof was born in Germany, being brought to this country as a child. He entered the seed business when quite young, in a branch store of Grant Thorburn, located at St. Louis, Mo. In 1847, he became a member of the firm, and has been practically the head of it upwards of 60 years. Well known in the seed trade, Mr. Bruggerhof was president of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League many years, the directors of that body presenting him with a loving cup on the occasion of his eightieth birthday, October 15, 1910. He was long a prominent citizen of Connecticut, maintaining a home at Noroton, and had been a member of the assembly and state senate. He is survived by one son and three daughters.

Mr. Bruggerhof was undoubtedly one of the best informed men in the American seed trade. A California seedsman and collector of tree seeds, the sources of which are obscure, remote and difficult to locate, reports calling on him a few years ago with a list of some 50 or more varieties of rare tree and shrub seeds collected on the Pacific coast. Mr. Bruggerhof looked over the long list and checked three only as items in which he was interested. The seller noted that the three items checked were kinds which he alone could furnish at the time, well illustrating Mr. Bruggerhof's wonderful knowledge of the sources of even these scarce items. His knowledge, however, was not confined to the stocks of the wandering collector, as he was even more familiar with the sources of every variety of vegetable and flower seed in America and Europe.

The firm of J. M. Thorburn & Co., one of the oldest and best known seed establishments in the United States, was founded in 1802 by Grant Thorburn in very modest quarters at 20 Nassau street, New York, interesting in comparison with its present building, a modern structure at 53 Barclay street, extending through to 54 Park place, housing a business that in its 118 years growth, passed successfully through many early periods of threatened disaster.

In 1808 the business narrowly escaped destruction by fire which began in an adjoining building; and in 1814, the expenditure of the entire capital, and more, in unsuccessful attempts to raise seeds, etc., that could not be imported during the war, brought the business to a complete standstill, but in 1816, through financial aid extended by a friend, Grant Thorburn, made a new start and for nine years withstood the attacks of several powerful competitors. In 1826, the firm, then known as G. T. Thorburn & Son, purchased what at that time was referred to as a commodious two-story brick building, 40x60 feet, on Liberty street, and in this establishment a valuable assortment of birds was added to a large stock of seeds and bulbs. In 1844, under the name of James M. Thorburn & Co., the firm moved to 15 John street, with gardens and greenhouses at Astoria, L. I. In the fall of 1898, they were compelled to vacate the John street property, occupied for more than 50 years, the structure having seen condemned, and for a number of years occupied a building on Cortland street.

In 1906, the company moved to its present quarters at 53 Barclay street, a model five-story structure with basement and sub-cellar, which had been completely remodeled although a new building, to meet every requirement of the business.

In 1895, J. M. Thorburn & Co. was incorporated with Mr. Bruggerhof as president.

APPRECIATION.

I have known Mr. Bruggerhof for more than 40 years, more intimately during the last 20. His activity, combined with upright character, made for him a foremost place in the seed trade of America. Widely known, respected by all, beloved by many intimate friends, he kept on in an even way, seeing many younger men fall by the wayside. He was liberal in thought and acts, a busy, kind-hearted man who has rounded out to the full a well spent life. As he passes from us, he leaves as a most endearing monument, a business founded upon integrity and faithfulness.

S. F. WILLARD.

Mrs. M. R. Morgan.

Mrs. M. R. Morgan, of Bridgeport, West Va., for whom the yellow chrysanthemum, "Mrs. M. R. Morgan," originated by her husband, was named, died March 3, following an illness of four days with influenza and pneumonia. The deceased will be remembered by a host of friends she made while her husband was foreman at the establishments of the Hayman Greenhouse Co., Clarksburg, West Va., Weber & Sons, of the same city and the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa. Mrs. Morgan was born in Knoxville, Tenn., in 1881, and her burial took place there. M.

Mrs. Albert Hornung.

Mrs. Albert Hornung, wife of one of the progressive young growers of Cincinnati, O., passed away suddenly of pneumonia, March 2. Mr. and Mrs. Hornung were married only last fall, and the shock to the bereaved husband was no greater than to their many friends in the trade. The many beautiful floral pieces were evidence of the high esteem in which the deceased was held. K.

Mrs. John Breitmeyer.

Mrs. John Breitmeyer, mother of Philip and Fred Breitmeyer, Detroit, Mich., died March 9.

PONCE CITY, OKLA.—R. S. Brewer will open a flower store here.

WILMINGTON, N. C.—McDermott, Nicholson & Co. have been incorporated by T. L. Croteau, C. H. Blaske and S. E. Dill, to deal in horticultural products; capital stock, $11,000.

YANKTON, S. D.—The Sioux Falls Argus says a contract has been placed for $11,000 worth of glass, which will be used in a range of 60,000 square feet to be erected here by a local seed concern.

"Talk Tax."

On Friday, February 27, a southern department store advertised roses and carnations at 37½ cents per dozen, saying "Cut flowers that you pay $2.50 to $3.50 per dozen for every day in ....., a sale that enables you to 'Say It With Flowers' without the customary excessive 'talk tax'."

Say it With Flowers.

The Bankers Life Insurance Co., of Des Moines, Ia., employes some 800 girls at its home offices in that city, and the president of the company personally presents each young lady in the firm's employ with a corsage bouquet on her birthday. There are many heads of similar concerns in the country who would be glad to do likewise if the matter were properly called to their attention.

Orchid Society.

A special meeting will be held at Horticultural hall, Boston, Mass., Thursday evening, March 25, with a view to organize a national orchid association.

American Rose Society.

The annual meeting of the American Rose Society will be held in Grand Central Palace, 46th and Lexington avenue, New York, at 3 p. m., Tuesday, March 16, 1920, in connection with the flower show.

This will be a most notable meeting and there should be a large attendance. On this occasion the Gertrude N. Hubbard gold medal will be presented to E. G. Hill, Richmond, Indiana, for "Columbia", the best rose of American origin introduced during the last five years. Dr. E. M. Mills, of Syracuse, will make the presentation. The annual election of officers will occur at this meeting, and other important business will be transacted.

E. A. WHITE, Sec'y.

Ladies' Society of American Florists.

Through the courtesy of President A. L. Miller of the Society of American Florists, the members of the Ladies' Society of American Florists are invited to avail themselves of the privileges and comforts of the booth which has been donated by him, and make it their headquarters at the New York flower show, March 15-21.

President Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy has issued a call for a meeting of the board of directors of the ladies' society for Thursday, March 18, at 2 p. m., at the Grand Central Palace, New York. Several matters of importance must be attended to and every member of the board is urged to attend or appoint a proxy.

The appointment of Mrs. A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y., as auditor of the Ladies' Society of American Florists for 1920 has been made by the president.

MRS. ALBERT M. HERR, Sec'y.

Minnesota Corn Borer Quarantine.

The fact has been determined by the United States department of agriculture and state authorities that a new and dangerously injurious insect, the European corn borer (Pyrausta nubilalis), not now known to exist in the state of Minnesota, is present in the states of Massachusetts, New Hampshire and New York.

The state entomologist, under authority conferred upon him by amendment to chapter 206, Laws of 1913, said amendment having been passed by the state legislature at its 40th session, does hereby declare a quarantine against the entrance into Minnesota of all corn on the cob, corn cobs, or any portion of the corn plant, except shelled corn or shelled corn products, from the states of Massachusetts, New Hampshire and New York, said quarantine to be effective on and after March 10, 1920. These prohibitions shall also apply to any portion of the above quarantined products when used as packing material for other commodties or manufactured products.

A. G. RUGGLES,
State Entomologist.

Express Companies and Private Control.

Although express business of the country becomes a private enterprise with return of railroads to private management, the former express companies do not resume operation for the present and perhaps not at all. Whether separate companies are to resume business individually and if so, when, remains to be determined. At present they hold the position of stockholders in the American Railway Express Co. The latter has taken over their equipment and offices and welded them together into one national organization, eliminating duplicated facilities almost entirely. Whether such a "monopoly" has been permanently legalized is an open question, but apparently the new railroad act has done that for a period of six months. Individual companies are not likely to be eager to get into the field at once as, under present rates, revenues do not cover operating expenses.

Lord & Burnham Profit-Sharing Plan.

The Lord & Burnham Co., well known greenhouse builders, has adopted a profit-sharing plan, intended to promote the interests of its employes and at the same time by giving them a common interest toward closer co-operation with the stockholders promote greater efficiency, thrift and prosperity for all. Under the plan, the divided earnings are actually a share in the profits of the company and in no way affect the rate of the employes' wages or salaries. The distribution of earnings is graded according to length of service, participation in the benefits of the plan becoming effective after any employe has been in the service of the company for 11 months or more. After deducting wages and annual interest of seven percent on the investment, one-half of the balance will be divided pro rata among the employes in the proportion their annual wages bears to the income from the business set aside as above stated.

FLORISTS' CLUB TO HAVE EASTER SHOW.

Arrangements for an Easter show for the members were made at the March meeting of the florists' club. It was decided to hold this on the night of March 25 at the Albany Cut Flower Exchange, 611 Broadway. The date is 10 days before Easter, and it is expected that the growers and retailers will be able to make a good showing of some of their Easter stock. Louis H. Schaefer, the secretary, was instructed to write to growers in this section relative to exhibits for the show. The members postponed the April meeting one week; that is, from April 1 to April 8, on account of the nearness of Easter to the date for the regular meeting. Two new members were elected: W. J. Wotkins, of Hudson Falls, and W. H. Van Hoesen, of Round Lake.

GLOECKNER HONORED.

At the annual meeting of the Unconditional Republican Club, William C. Gloeckner, well-known florist, 97 State street, was elected president. Mr. Gloeckner began his presidency with an earnest appeal to the young republicans of the city to join the club. He is a member of the Albany club, chamber of commerce, Rotary club, Wolfert's Roost country club, Albany Lodge No. 49, B. P. O. Elks, and a number of the local Masonic bodies. The new president of the unconditionals has always been an enthusiastic promoter of the welfare of the city, and under him the unconditionals look for a year of activity and prosperity. R. D.

FALLING PRICES ON ALL STOCK.

The past week saw a decided change in market conditions, with flowers of all kinds plentiful and a natural decline in prices. Sweet peas were offered in abundance for the first time this winter and prices were low. There was no glut in roses, with plenty to supply the demand in all grades. The public had an agreeable surprise in being able to buy carnations of good quality at $3 per dozen. Some very fine callas were also offered at very reasonable prices. Good orchids were cheap and excellent acacia was offered in the way of a novelty.

PUBLICITY PLANS.

Joseph Merritt, chairman of the publicity committee, and W. F. Ekas, president of the florists' club, have accomplished great things for the success of the percentage plan for securing funds for the advertising campaign. It is planned by the committee to start things going at once if agreeable to those who have signed, and this will be decided at the regular meeting of the club.

EXPRESS EMBARGO AFFECTS TRADE.

A strike of express handlers and clerks employed by the American Railway Express Company which started March 6 has seriously affected the shipping trade and is costing the wholesalers and growers in this vicinity thousands and thousands of dollars every day not to mention the loss of the out-of-town retailers and wholesalers who depend upon this market to a large extent for their supply. Some of the dealers are making shipments by parcel post while others have managed to get stock through by taking it by trucks to other cities and making shipments from those points. This is not very satisfactory, however, and is rather costly but the dealers have their customers' interest at heart and are making every possible effort to have the stock reach them. The men are striking for an increase of $35 per month in wages and there is no telling just how long the fight will last, but it appears almost certain that the embargo will stay on indefinitely until the situation clears up. The supply of stock in the market now is considerably heavier than it was last week owing to the strike, consequently the local retailers are able to receive what they need at bargain prices. Everything in cut flowers is in large supply including American Beauty, Mrs. Chas. Russell, Columbia, Premier and all the other roses, carnations, sweet peas, calendulas, daisies, tulips, jonquils, narcissus, lily of the valley, lilies, callas, freesias, snapdragons, orchids, violets, stevia, mignonette and Paper White narcissus. Green goods are scarce, especially plumosus and Sprengeri. The outlook for Easter points to a large supply of cut flowers, a fair number of pot lilies and few rambler roses and hydrangeas.

Every Consignor a Partner—
Every Buyer a Booster.

In behalf of the Retail Florist we have for years been showing our OPPOSITION to cut flower sales to DEPARTMENT STORES—who buy only at times of a LOW MARKET and find it good advantage to announce CHEAP SALES, to lead the public into the belief that the legitimate RETAIL FLORISTS ask too much for their flowers.

If you have this trouble to contend with, render your protest with us and we will have your letter placed in proper hands FOR A REMEDY.

THE EXPRESS STRIKE.

The fifth day of the strike of express handlers and clerks brought assurances from officials of the American Railway Express company that the backbone of the walkout is broken and the yards are being cleared of accumulated express matter. They claim more than 1,000 of the striking employes have returned to work, but this is denied by the leader of the 3,000 men who quit. The strike is gradually dying out, and it would not be at all surprising to hear at any moment that it is over. It cannot end to soon to please the trade, for it has already proved to be costly, coming at a time when stock is most plentiful. Shipments are being made by parcel post and express through roundabout channels, but everyone is eagerly looking forward toward a quick settlement.

NOTES.

The directors of the Allied Floral Association held a meeting at the Hotel Randolph, March 4, when the following officers were elected: George Asmus, president; August Poehlmann, vice-president; Hilmer V. Swenson, secretary, and W. J. Smyth, treasurer. The other directors are John Michelsen, Paul Klingsporn, Otto Amling, Eric Johnson, A. Lange and Peter Pearson.

August Jurgens, Jr., with the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, is the proud father of a twelve-pound baby boy.

The Wholesale Cut Flower Association held a special meeting at the Hotel Randolph, Tuesday evening, March 9, when dinner was served. The meeting was largely attended and was called to ascertain if something could not be done to better trade conditions. Owing to the express strike it was decided to place the matter in the hands of the committee representing the association on the board of directors of the Allied Floral Association, which will report at the next regular meeting.

Peter Reinberg, well-known wholesale florist, president of the board of county commissioners and the county forest preserves, for eight years alderman for the twenty-sixth ward, and a former president of the board of education, celebrated his sixty-second birthday, March 4. Mr. Reinberg's many friends in the trade, all join in wishing him continued good health and prosperity.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is booking a large number of orders for lilies for Easter for both pot plants and cut blooms and are looking for an early clean-up in this item notwithstanding the fact that it has at least 150,000 flowers to offer. Some splendid French hydrangeas are seen at the greenhouses and should find a ready sale owing to the general scarcity of blooming plants.

At Damm Bros.' greenhouses the lilies are in splendid shape for Easter and should nearly all be ready about the time they are needed. Zech & Mann will handle their output as usual this year and are now busy booking orders for same.

A. L. Vaughan & Co., report business as good as can be expected, owing to the express strike, and are making every effort to get shipments through to their customers.

Wietor Bros. have moved a large quantity of carnation cuttings this season, and new orders are so numerous that they expect to clean up completely in a short time.

Roy Bohlander of Melrose Park will add 20,000 square feet of glass to his present range this year. The John C. Moninger Co. has the contract to furnish the material.

The local delegation for the New York flower show next week will include A. Henderson, Paul R. Klingsporn, George Asmus and Fred Lautenschlager.

Albert Koehler, secretary of the American Bulb Co., has arrived safely at Rotterdam according to a cable received by President Miller the other day.

Andrew Chronis, proprietor of the Alpha Floral Co., is the proud father of a baby girl, who arrived at his home last week.

Fred Benthey underwent an operation last week at the Ravenswood hospital, and is reported to be progressing favorably.

Miss Edna Frauenfelder, who has been on the sick list for several weeks, is recovering from a nervous breakdown.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. are offering some of the finest lupines that have been seen in this market for some time.

W. N. Rudd has postponed his lecture course at the State University, Urbana, being laid up with a cold.

Mrs. J. E. Pollworth has recovered sufficiently from pneumonia to be removed from the hospital to her home.

Mrs. H. L. Simpson, 3656 Odgen avenue, is enjoying a pleasant visit at Long Beach, Calif.

Chicago Florists' Club.

Owing to the blizzard, but a very small number of the trade were able to attend the monthly meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club, held at the Hotel Randolph, March 4, president Waters in the chair. The following were elected to membership: C. A. Wrigley, 130 North Wells street; Albert Koehler, 172 North Wabash avenue; Vincent Neil, 172 North Wabash avenue; H. W. Miller, 324 West North avenue, and Herbert Stone, 4011 Milwaukee avenue. On account of the activity of Secretary Lautenschlager, a long list of new names was presented for membership, including: Chas. S. McCauley, Geneva; Wm. Langhout, 172 North Wabash avenue; Lorenz P. Geiger, 4905 Quincy street; Edward Clody, 3912 North Clark street; George Wienhoeber, 41 South Wabash avenue; A. Hall, 4700 Sheridan road; H. E. Bruns, 3040 West Madison street; Fred Stielow, Niles Center; C. Clemensen, 7801 Exchange avenue; Nick Damm, Jr., Morton Grove; James R. Paul, 1112 Lawrence avenue and Ernst Weiss, Elmhurst.

Chairman Morton announced the following co-workers on his garden committee: Ed. Goldenstein, of Vaughan's Seed Store; Ralph B. Howe, of the W. W. Barnard Co.; John P. Degnan, of A. Henderson & Co., and Everette R. Peacock, of the Everette R. Peacock Co. Mr. Morton, speaking for his committee, stated that more than 175,000 high-cost-of-living gardens will be started in the city this spring. This committee has laid plans to co-operate with local garden clubs and school garden managers in an advisory capacity to advance the interest in horticulture. Booklets on garden work will be distributed. An appropriation of $100 was voted for the use of this committee.

Secretary Lautenschlager explained the coal ordinance recently passed by the city council, saying it was originally drafted to regulate the resale of coal. Owing to the omission of the words "for resale" all industries purchasing coal in carlots would be required to take out a license costing $1,500. The Chicago Florists' Club and other industrial organizations entered strenuous protests against this ordinance and requested that it be repealed or amended to exempt florists and all industries obliged to purchase coal in carlots. From all indications, this re-

President Waters demonstrated the latest methods of coloring cut flowers as applied so extensively to St. Patrick's day requirements. Mr. Waters is an expert in this line, and some unique color combinations were shown during the evening. It developed that the March 17 green was the quickest color to show its effect, approximately 30 minutes being required.

The Joy Floral Co., Nashville, Tenn., sent an extensive exhibit of seedling carnations, and A. Kirchner, of Defiance, O., furnished some blooms of his pink sport of Enchantress Supreme. Unfortunately both exhibits arrived in poor condition, and the exhibitors were requested to send another display for the next meeting.

President Kohout, of the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago, now known as local of the national growers' association, was scheduled to present a report in behalf of this organization. Owing to the inability of Mr. Kohout to attend, his report will be presented at the next meeting.

The next meeting will be held at the Hotel Randolph, April 8, at 8 p. m.

GOOD DEMAND WELL CARED FOR.

Business has been quite active during the past week. The demand has been satisfactory, and with a good supply of flowers. A large volume of trade is reported. Prices are not as high as formerly. Funeral work has been quite heavy, and most of the florists report as much business as during the heighth of the influenza epidemic. On the other hand, there has been an exceptionally large number of parties and receptions. Some weddings were also scheduled for the week, and taking it all in all, trade never was better, except at special occasions. Roses are coming in well and the quality is exceptionally good. Prices range from $4 to $7 per dozen. The principal roses on the local market are Ophelia, Russell, Sunburst, Premier and Columbia. Carnations are also plentiful and sell in the neighborhood of $2 to $3 per dozen. Sweet peas are going well at 50 cents to $1.50 a bunch. There is also a good demand for jonquils, tulips and freesias and the supply is good. Callas are now in the market and are eagerly purchased. Florists are now able to announce that Easter lilies will be ready on time. For a while there was some doubt if they would be out, but now it is believed that fully 75 per cent of them will be in bloom. This relieves the situation for Easter business, which looms up exceptionally big. J. W. L.

FEBRUARY MAKES GOOD RECORD.

February proved a busy month, with good volume of sales at satisfactory prices. There was a steady call for funeral orders, both local and out-of-town, and many orders had to be declined, due to the fact that sufficient stock to fill was not available. Plant sales were good during the entire period and the demand is still holding firm. The weather, in general, was mild, averaging several degrees above normal, which condition helped to stimulate production, and present supplies are now nearly adequate. Considerable bulbous stock is in evidence at present, with prospects of a plentiful supply for Easter. Other offerings, usual for this occasion, appear normal.

NOTES.

Alex. Marquardt is back in his old position as superintendent at the greenhouses of Chas. P. Mueller, after a sojourn of nearly two years in California. He thus bears out the local axiom: "They all come back to Wichita."

STOCK NOW IN GENEROUS SUPPLY.

The market has changed in three weeks from a condition of extreme scarcity to one of great abundance in every line. A few things on the list, such as calendulas, mignonette and sweet peas, are greatly in excess of any demand, the first two being particularly difficult to move. The first words of one of the commission men regarding the market is: "Bottom dropped out." Another said: "Shot to pieces." "There is no market," quotes another, while a fourth declares there were no prices quoted on some of the stock, but it had to be moved, and they just did the best they could. Roses are more plentiful, but clean up fairly well at somewhat lower prices. It is much the same with carnations, which, however, are only bringing half the prices of two weeks ago. Callas and Easter lilies are now coming strong, with prices holding better than for other things. Daffodils have slowed up and about reached the bottom in price for the year. There are not many tulips. Snapdragon is very good, although some of it is too soft. Violets are at their height, and on cold, stormy days, when the street men cannot work, they are difficult to move. Cattleyas are also in excess of the demand, or at least returns are now greatly below those of a month ago. Quite a little lily of the valley is now coming into the market, but meets with a cold reception. It will apparently take some pushing to have it regain its former prestige. Take it all in all, while there is an excess of flowers in a few lines, and notwithstanding the pessimistic reports, the situation presents nothing serious, and is not much different from other years at this time. The contrast of the extreme high figures of the past winter with those of today, makes things seem much worse than they really are. The out-of-town trade is said to be holding up much better than that of the local stores, who, although very low quotations are quoted for quantity lots in certain lines, seem afraid to stock up and take a chance. One commission man called up a number of stores and offered violets, fine, fresh stock, at $5.00 a thousand, without one favorable response. He then sold the lot of 4,000 to a street man for the same price, who disposed of them all before nightfall at a good profit. Street men with trays of violets, calendulas and sweet peas, take in $50 to $60 a day in fair weather, which proves that people will buy flowers, if their attention is called to them, and they are presented in an attractive manner. One of the wholesalers, in speaking of market conditions, stated that from now on, the retailer could make more money than in any other three months in the year. Flowers of all kinds are plentiful, will become more so, and continue moderate in price to the end of the season. The trouble with most flower shops is that they do not push their business as they should. Flowers during the winter, on account of their scarcity, were abnormally high. Now that they are so cheap, they should display them freely and see to it that their trade, and the public generally, are fully informed of the changed conditions. He added: "We have lots of stock and want to sell it and will meet any man half way, who is willing to take a chance."

March 8.—The demand about equals the supply. The cold weather of the past few days held down this morning's shipments, for which there was a fair clean-up at quick moving prices, the policy being to keep things on the go and avoid accumulations.

LILY OF THE VALLEY.

One of the most popular of cut flowers for years was the lily of the valley. When the main supply of pips was cut off on account of the war, the stock that managed to get through was very inferior, and the flowers produced, very poor. In consequence, of these conditions, the demand fell off until people appeared to forget there was such a flower. Now that it is coming in again, nobody appears to want it, and although the pips are very expensive, the flowers go a-begging. Growers should not despair however, as lily of the valley will come back just as soon as first class stock in quantity is assured, as it has a refined grace and beauty, together with fragrance, that will always keep it to the front.

NOTES.

There will be a lecture under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society at the New Century Club, 124 South 12th street, March 16 at 3:30 p. m. The subject, "Herbaceous Perennials and Bulbous Plants That We All Should Know", will be in the capable hands of E. I. Wilde, of Pennsylvania State College. An exhibition of flowering plants and cut stock will be held at 2 p. m., prizes being offered in eight classes.

A 40-mile gale and snow storm, March 5, combined to make one of the worst nights of the winter. Not much damage to greenhouses was reported, although the smoke stack at the Gilbert Woltewaite greenhouses at Wyndmoor, was blown down, and it was with great difficulty the frost was kept out of the houses.

Charles Eimerman, a popular associate members of the florists' club for many years, died March 1. He was very fond of bowling, a close friend of the late Wm. K. Harris and others who daily gathered on the old club alleys for a bowling matinee.

The annual report of the secretary of the Philadelphia Vacant Lots Cultivation Association for 1919 shows that 1,122 families raised $90,000 worth of produce. Only seven gardens were forfeited for neglect.

Russell roses, carnations, fine sweet peas and choice cattleyas were leading features of Leo. Niessen Co.'s stock the past week. Gardenias were also seen in quantity.

George Aeugle has pretty well recovered, and is seen at the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co.'s establishment every day. Lilac, carnations and roses are quantity stocks.

Extra choice, long stemmed sweet peas are seen in quantity with the Jos. Heacock Co. Nothing better has been shown in the market this season.

A. M. Campbell's Laddie carnations and Easter lilies at his Strafford greenhouses are worth going miles to see.

BLIZZARD DEMORALIZES BUSINESS.

Business was in a stagnant condition during the past week and the finish was worse than the beginning. The latter condition was brought about by the storm which struck the city on the night of March 5. The day had been cloudy, with light dashes of rain, which in the evening, increased to a downpour. Near midnight, with a falling temperature, snow, driven by a 75-mile gale, arrived and the blizzard was on. As the city was slowly emerging from the effects of the previous snowstorm, this last was from every viewpoint, a hard blow. But little stock reached the market on time on the morning of March 6. Some rose stock arrived from New Jersey in the afternoon, but too late to be of much service for that day. As it was the same cause that held back the stock, reduced even the light demand of previous days of the week, as many people would not venture out in the high wind, though the snow stopped falling about daylight. Earlier in the week there was good sunshine and heavy supplies of all staple stocks, excepting American Beauties and orchids, kept pouring in, and in the last mentioned there was more than enough to supply the demand. Gardenias, tulips, yellow narcissus and minor stocks were practically in a glut. Carnations were hanging fire at $3 to $5 per 100. There was always a movement in tea roses, but in general the rose market was greatly depressed. In all lines, there was good stock, the problem being to dispose of it. Nor can much hope be grasped for a better market before the Easter trade begins. The flower show opens March 15, and past experience has shown that here, at least, a show week is always bad for business.

March 8.—The weather is a little milder, with stock arriving with more regularity. There is about the usual amount of March buying.

NOTES.

Aubrey Nash, of Hentz-Nash, Inc., has devised a unique and enterprising scheme to have rose growers properly grade their stock. He has had made a large number of grading sticks of maple, varnished, numbered and marked for the different grades. These he has shipped by parcel post to rose growers all over the country. In the literature which accompanies each stick, he says in part: "We have made sure that this stick is to be practical. It is similar to the hand-made ones which the late firm of Moore, Hentz & Nash sent to some of their growers years ago. The data for the measurements was obtained by the late Mr. Jonathan Nash." Having a sense of humor, Mr. Nash displays on his folders a skeleton picture of the old grading stick, asleep, and over it this inscription: "Let's wake him up." Mr. Nash has gone to some expense to carry out his plans, and we believe his efforts will be appreciated by the trade. We may add, that we have noticed in times of scarcity, that by some mysterious process, No. 2's became No. 1's, and so on upwards.

The retail business at 2188 Broadway, that for the past 17 years has been successfully conducted by Alexander Vlachos, as the Astoria Florist, has been bought by Herman Berkovitz and J. Max Nitzschke, who have taken possession. Both are clever and experienced men in the retail line. Mr. Vlachos is not in good health, and believes he can recuperate by, for a time, residing in a milder climate.

It is announced, that in addition to those previously mentioned in these columns, a number of other wholesale florists will join the Wholesale Florists' Inc., when they remove to the Siegel-Cooper building on or about April 15. The florists will occupy the first floor. All the other floors have been taken by the Interchurch World Movement on a 10-year lease.

Leo Klein, the retailer of Lexington avenue and 60th street, had a flower booth in the bazaar held by the women's auxiliary of the Jewish People's Relief of America, which was held in the 71st regiment armory, February 22-23. He was quite successful and greatly appreciated the assistance given him by the wholesale florists.

On the evening of March 17, the employes of the Joseph Trepel flower stores will hold a banquet and reception at the Willoughby Mansion, Willoughly and Throop avenues, Brooklyn. The committee in charge has spared no efforts in the arrangements for this event, which will include a 10-course dinner, followed by dancing.

Indications point to a good supply of Easter plants. Retail buyers who have visited the range of Anton Schultheis at College Point, report that he has a great stock of the roses, Dorothy Perkins and Tausendschon, as well as heathers and hydrangeas.

Joseph S. Fenrich is receiving exceptionally fine stock of the roses: Double White Killarney, Columbia, Premier, Russell and Hadley from the Duckham-Pierson range, Madison, N. J.

On the night of March 5, high water put out some of the fires at the range of the Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., making it necessary to put in a lot of oil stoves to save stock.

William Sullivan, salesman for the Dolansky-McDonald Co., is now receiving a fine quality of acacia, besides orchids and a good variety of other stock.

The ball of the Lacedemonian Association will be held in the Waldorf Astoria on the night of March 18.

William Mackie is handling an exceptionally fine quality of sweet peas and Darwin tulips.

A limited quantity of Darwin tulips is now on the market, wholesaling at $2 per dozen.

A. F. F.

New York Florists' Club.

The New York Florists' Club met in its hall in the Engineering building on the night of March 8, President Henshaw in the chair. There was a good attendance and discussion of the approaching flower show, and club banquet proved interesting, the president, secretary, C. H. Totty, Arthur Harrington, Max Schling, President Miller of the S. A. F. and a number of others expressing their views. Secretary Young stated that more space has been sold than for any previous flower show. The tea garden will be an important feature, and a ball is to be given in connection with it. There has been a good sale of trade tickets, the bidding being lively.

Roman J. Irwin announced that the sale of banquet tickets had been good. There were many bids for tickets at the meeting.

The following were elected to membership: C. B. Schultheis, College Point, N. Y., Samuel Salzburg, New York, Richard Gerling, Irvington, N. J., L. Lowenthal, New York, A. F. Kohlmann, Tomkinsville, N. Y., Anton Ruzicka, Chatham, N. J., A. M. Campbell, Philadelphia, Pa., Charles Moles, New York.

The exhibition committee reported: "Results on view, look them over." In both quality and variety, they were fine. A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., exhibited dark pink seedling carnations from Mrs. C. W. Ward and Good Cheer. It has been named Hope Henshaw. C. H. Totty Co., Madison, N. J., showed two vases of the rose, Frank W. Dunlop. Adolph Lewisohn, Ardsley, N. Y., (John Canning, Gr.) staged a vase of Leptosyne maritima. Henry M. Robinson Co., New York, exhibited vases of variegated freesias grown by A. J. Anderson, Manhasset, N. Y. C. H. Brown, Greenwich, Conn., exhibited a pink seedling carnation. Emil Fardel, Great Neck, N. Y., staged a new freesia. A. Demeusey, Brooklyn, N. Y., exhibited his pink sport of Carnation Enchantress. Traendly & Schenck, New York, displayed the rose, Dark Pink Ophelia. Herman Mammitch, Rockville Centre, N. Y., exhibited pink sweet peas, sport of Rose Queen. H. B. Marinelli, Montvale, N. J., had Malmaison carnations and gave a talk about them.

The death of Frederick W. Bruggerhof, the well-known seedsman, of J. M. Thorburn & Co., was announced. Mr. Bruggerhof died on the afternoon of March 8, at his residence in New York.

A number were proposed for membership.

Charles H. Totty made an interesting and instructive address on the "Commercial Development of the Rose." He was given a rising vote of thanks.

Anton Schulteis, of the committee to federation clubs, reported in detail on the work accomplished.

Chairman Herrington of the essay committee promised a talk on orchids for next meeting, by J. P. Marston.

At the May meeting there will be a talk on irises, illustrated with lantern slides. The exhibition committee expects to show orchids and spring flowers at this meeting.

Robert Berry, a life member of the club, who has spent several years in the south, was present and spoke briefly. He raised a laugh by saying he had spent two hours in finding the hall. A. F. F.

Milwaukee, Wis.

LITTLE CHANGE IN MARKET CONDITIONS.

There is no change in market conditions since the report a fortnight ago. Stock in all lines is ample to meet any and all demands. With the ceasing of social activities, due to Lent, and less funeral work, conditions are so different from what they were previous to St. Valentine's day that it takes a good deal of explaining to the buying public. Still, there is no cause for worry for normal conditions will prevail in a short time and all will be forgotten.

CLUB MEETING.

The sudden drop in temperature on the night of the monthly florists' club meeting, March 4, when the thermometer slumped from 40 at 7 a. m. to 8 above by midnight, kept some of the regulars, who had planned to come and bring some stock away. Announcement of the annual spring display of cut flowers and plants nevertheless brought out a creditable showing, which was both interesting and instructive. A committee of two disinterested members made the following report: B. E. Haasch—Exceptionally well grown cinerarias, begonias and ferns. Greenwood Carnation Co.—Honorable mention, well grown as to color, size and stem, Beacon, Edna, Matchless, Nancy, Alice, Good Cheer, White Wonder and several seedling carnations. Kamp & Spinti—Very good quality snapdragons, sweet peas, stocks and yellow daisies. Hugo Locker & Sons—Honorable mention, extra fine sweet peas, Carnation Belle Washburn and calendulas. Heitman-Oestreicher Co.—Well grown Winsor carnations, fine pink sweet peas and Calendula Orange King, some measuring 4½ inches across. Otto Eggebrecht.—Extra fine single violets, Princess of Wales, Holton & Hunkel Co.—Honorable mention, fine cut Easter lilies, Hoosier Beauty and Premier roses. Schroeder Floral Co.—Honorable mention, vase of Jas. Livingston's dark pink seedling carnations. C. C. Pollworth Co.—Special mention on Russell, Columbia, Enchantress, Supreme, Edna, C. W. Ward, variegated sport from Ward, extra large white seedling, and Laddie, the latter measuring 4½ inches across: also, a very fine Orchid Trianæ plant with 13 open flowers.

The happy thought of our new president, Henry Welke, to appoint a membership committee and make a drive for new blood resulted in admitting 10 new members at the meeting. They are: Court T. Riebs, A. C. Spinti, E. J. Gregory, Arthur and Alfred Eggebrecht, A. Griebler, Carl Menger, Arthur Locker, Lindor Maletski, and R. Haasch. There is also a very active entertainment committee, who promise to take care of the social end and make things interesting. The next event on the program will be a bowling party, to be followed later by a May ball, annual picnic, and who knows what not.

NOTES.

Mrs. H. V. Hunkel has our sympathy in the loss of her mother, Mrs. Christine Smith, who died March 3, age 72 years. Mrs. Smith came from St. Louis, her home, before Christmas, and was nursed by her daughter ever since. William C. Smith, well known wholesaler of St. Louis, is the only other child. Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Hunkel accompanied the remains to St. Louis, returning March 6. The deceased was a sister of William Edlefsen, pioneer florist of this city, but now residing in Lorane, Oregon.

March 8-13 was style week throughout the city, and the large show windows of the downtown department stores, were lavishly and artistically trimmed by the A. F. Kellner Co., who have been exceedingly busy of late, preparing for this occasion.

Mrs. F. Ernst, at 37th and North avenue, is on the sick list, threatened with diphtheria.

From reports, bulbous stock in pots, pans and boxes is very popular and selling readily.

Otto Eggebrecht was confined to his bed a few days last week with stomach trouble.

Henry Welke and C. C. Pollworth spent March 2 in Chicago.

HEAVY SUPPLY WITH CURTAILED DEMAND.

The weather during the latter part of the past week turned decidedly colder with more snow, and in consequence, shipments from the east were delayed. Stock, however, is now arriving in large quantities and the demand has shortened as have prices, so that retailers who are fortunate in having plenty of funeral work are getting the advantage of joblot figures. Violets sold as low as $7.50 per 1,000. Carnations are down to from four to six cents and roses in short grades are offered at five and six cents. Daffodils are a little less plentiful. Callas are in good supply and Easter lilies can be had in quantity from this time on. Swainsonas, sweet peas, mignonette, calendulas, freesias and narcissi are part of the daily supply. Greens are more plentiful.

NOTES.

The meeting of the florists' club, March 1, attended by nearly 70 retailers and growers, was a very interesting gathering. After an excellent supper, the minutes of the last meeting were read and then publicity became the main topic of discussion. Several plans were presented including the Milwaukee percentage basis, and a committee was appointed to report on the matter at the next meeting, at which time plans for the coming convention of the Society of American Florists to be held in this city, August 17-19, will also be discussed. A good increase in membership was also reported.

The thirty-eighth annual meeting will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June 22-24, 1920.

THE price of bags at Chicago, March 10, was $62.

THE Kansas winter wheat crop is estimated at half a yield.

MILWAUKEE seedsmen are said to be importing large quantities of Turkistan alfalfa.

VISITED SEATTLE: C. W. Scott, New York, and Hamakichi Suzuki, Yokohoma, Japan.

THE variegated alfalfas are said to yield better than the common varieties in New York state.

MILFORD, CONN.—F. H. Woodruff & Sons are issuing this season a catalogue for the mail order trade.

VISITED CHICAGO: Thos. W. Chisholm, representing the Braslan Seed Growers' Co., San Jose, Calif.

THE Chicago Daily News, on March 9, began running garden matter supplied by the National Garden Bureau.

H. B. MCCULLOUGH, of the J. M. McCullough's Sons Co., Cincinnati, O., is taking his vacation at 2021 Seventh avenue, Los Angeles, Calif.

THE department of justice will audit the books of the principal beet sugar companies operating in Colorado to find whether they have been making unreasonable profits.

FREDERICK WILLIAM BRUGGERHOF, president of the J. M. Thorburn Co., New York, and dean of the American seed trade, died March 8. See obituary elsewhere in this issue.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district are going out steadily at about $3.50 in carlots. Inquiries are still coming in from the south and most buyers are unusually conservative as to quantity.

O. L. COULTER is now with the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y., in charge of that firm's Pacific coast interests in California and Washington, with headquarters at Stockton, Calif.

TOLEDO, O.—The clover seed market opened inactive, March 8. Cash closed at $33.55 and October at $25.00. Timothy was practically unchanged, with March at $6.40, April $6.40 and May, $6.35.

THE Alaska pea has been a bad actor; starting at 16 to 18 cents per pound, the price has wobbled all around until some stock was sold at the canners' convention and since as low as 10 cents.

ED LEONARD, of the S. F. Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, and Miss Edith Patterson were quietly married last month. S. F. Leonard writes from Florida that the weather is unusually cold there.

OAKFIELD, N. Y.—Pea growers in this locality have incorporated under the name of the Oakfield Co-operative Association, the object being to secure a uniform price for their product in western New York. I. C. Reed is the president.

THE free seed appropriation, amounting to nearly a quarter of a million dollars, has been eliminated from the agricultural bill by the senate committee, but so far the senate has taken no action in the matter.

BOARD OF TRADE—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade, March 10, were as follows: Timothy, $10.00 to $13.00 per 100 pounds; March sold for $13.50; red clover, $45.00 to $53.00 per 100 pounds.

CALIFORNIANS are being urged to join in a "save the water" movement. The appeal, issued through the railroad commission, declares that the present water supply is the lowest, and that even if normal rainfall occurs during the rest of the rain season, there will be a water shortage for domestic, irrigation, industrial and power purposes.

The Late Frederick William Bruggerhof.
See Obituary, Page 403.

THE cantaloupe seed business has gone into the hands of the produce commission trade, some dealers handling 10,000 pounds of a variety direct to planters and usually take over the sale of the crop produced from this seed.

THE American Mutual Seed Co., A. A. Berry & Co., and the Dave Peck Seed Co. are given the compliments of the Rural New Yorker, as to their business methods, in its issue of February 28. Seedsmen should procure a copy.

WHAT ails the New York seed houses that it becomes necessary and worth while for the Macy department store to run a page seed advertisement in Country Life? Is there such an overflowing rush for seeds and gardening tools that regular houses fail the public?

THE castor bean growing operations promoted in Florida in the spring of 1917 by government authority, and the growers' claim of damages on account of unsuitable seed supplied, add a bad chapter to the long story of government attempts to take the seed business away from trained seedsmen.

IN Sweden and Norway, Dutch bulb travelers are charged a license of about $120 each per season. Such bulb concerns, with travelers in this country, no matter how many they employ, are paying neither license nor income tax, making competition with local houses that much more severe.

THE Brown Bulb Ranch, at Capitola, Calif., has greatly strengthened its executive organization in the addition of Alonzo J. Brown, for more than 20 years president of a prominent bank at Noblesville, Ind., father of James A. Brown, the general manager, who will assume the duties of secretary and treasurer, and W. C. Roberts, former member of the University of California faculty in soil chemistry, who takes the position of superintendent of production.

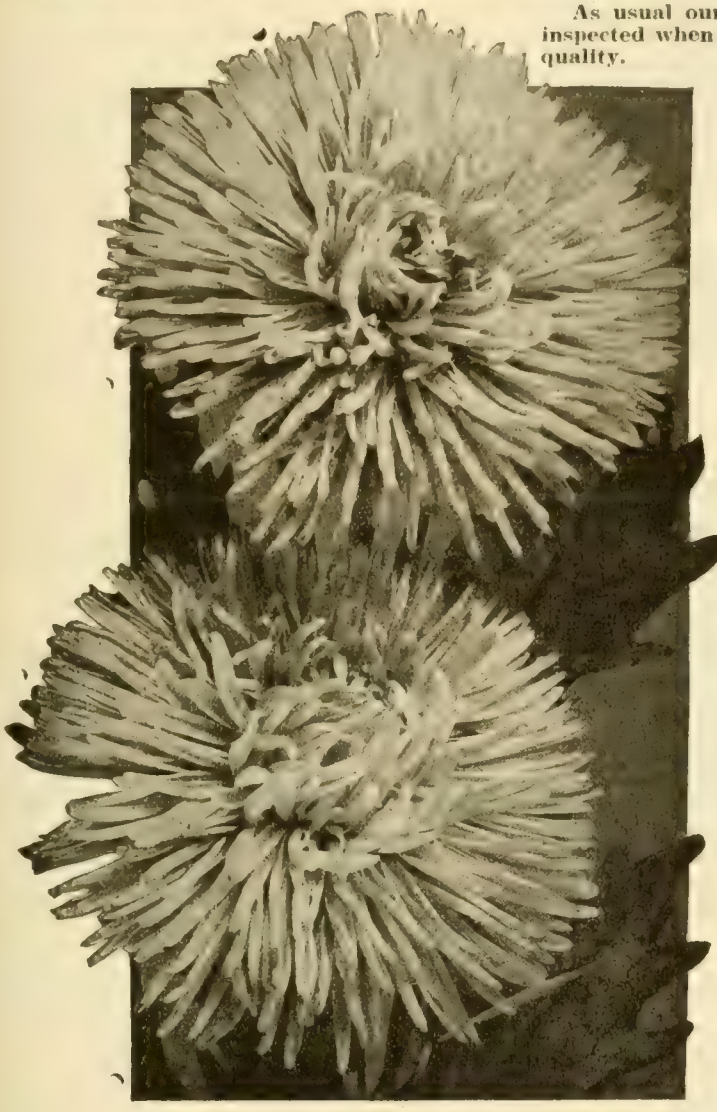
DREER'S FAMOUS AMERICAN ASTERS.



Typical Flowers of King Asters

As usual our Asters are American grown and were carefully inspected when in bloom and feel sure they are unsurpassed for quality.

Dreer's "Crimson Giant" Aster.

A superb late-branching variety, with perfect double flowers of rich rosy crimson, full of fire. Fine for cutting, showing up well under artificial light. 40 cts. per trade pkt.; $2.00 per oz.

Dreer's Superb Late Branching Asters.

The finest Asters for late August and September blooming.

The plants form strong, branching bushes, 2 to 2½ feet high, bearing on long strong stems their handsome Chrysanthemum-like flowers, which, under ordinary cultivation, average 5 inches across. The form of the flowers, together with the length of the stem, places them at the head of Asters for cutting. They come into bloom from two to three weeks after the average type, usually being at their best during September, and filling in the gap between the general run of Asters and Chrysanthemums. We offer eight beautiful and distinct colors, viz.:

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
Azure Blue. A rich, deep lavender	$0.30	$1.50
Pure White. Extra fine stock	.30	1.50
Shell Pink. An exquisite shade	.30	1.50

Astermums.

This strain of Giant Comet Asters was first exhibited at the Florists' Convention in 1912, and their immense size and Chrysanthemum-like appearance created a sensation. They closely resemble Crego's Giant, but come into bloom fully two weeks earlier. We offer three colors.

Crego's Giant Comet Asters.

Royal Asters.

One of the best Asters of recent introduction, and might briefly be described as an early flowering form of our Superb Late-Branching variety, having all the good qualities of the latter but coming into bloom in July or early August and lasting in perfect condition a long time. We offer five beautiful and distinct colors, viz.:

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
Lavender. Soft lavender violet	$0.50	$2.50
Purple. Rich deep violet purple	.50	2.50
Rose Pink Rosy-pink, shaded white	.50	2.50

New Red Aster "Sensation."

This is the reddest of all Red Asters, the color being a rich garnet or ox blood red which glistens in the sunshine like a live coal. The plants are of free-branching habit about 18 inches high; the very double flowers, averaging 3½ inches across, are borne freely on stems a foot long from early in August till the close of September. The intense color shows up well when cut, and makes a very brilliant bit of color in a bed or border. 50 cts. per trade pkt.; $2.50 per oz.

"Hamburg Late Pink" Chrysanthemum

Picture was taken Dec. 6, 1919, and will give a good idea of what "Hamburg Late Pink" looks like when grown to single stems and planted six inches each way.

"Hamburg Late Pink" is an improved late pink Maud Dean, having more petals, and if grown for late will hardly ever show an open center.

The average grower of chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. "Hamburg Late Pink" has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but, for late pink, one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November by taking an early bud, but some of the flowers will show open centers; but by selecting late buds, after October 1st, most of the flowers are cut during December, and would advise to select late buds, as the later buds will hardly ever show an open center, and some flowers can be had even in January.

Keeping qualities are excellent, and where a graceful pink flower is wanted, "Hamburg Late Pink" cannot be surpassed. "Hamburg Late Pink" will be disseminated in the spring of 1920. Plants will be ready March 1st, 1920, and all orders will be filled in rotation.

OTHER AMERICAN ASTERS

Lavender Gem. One of the most charming sorts. The flowers are of a true lavender shade and the petals are gracefully curled and twisted, and the blooms are borne on long stems		.35	2.00
Peerless Pink. The flowers are enormous, globular in shape, many five inches across, of a most delightful and pleasing rich shell pink. First flowers appear about the middle of August, but the plant is at its zenith about four weeks later		.25	2.00
Crimson Giant. This shade has been one which has seemed to lack intensity of color, but in this variety the blood red blossom is particularly bright		.35	2.00
Sensation. The reddest of all red asters, the color being a dark rich garnet or ox-blood red which glistens in the sunshine like a live coal. The plants are of the free branching habit, about 18 inches high, the double flowers averaging about 3 inches in diameter are borne freely on stems about 12 inches long		.35	2.00
Soleil D'Or (Golden Sun). Best Yellow Aster		.25	....
Mammoth Non-Lateral Branching White. 2 ft. This is without doubt the largest Aster on the market. Many of the flowers will measure four inches in diameter. The plants grow about two feet high with a low branching habit, and the flowers which are borne on non-lateral stems are full, with petals curled and incurved, making the flowers appear like a cross between an Ostrich Feather and a Giant Branching	¼ oz., 65c.	.35	2.40
Mammoth Non-Lateral Branching Blue. 2 ft. Very like the preceding except the flowers are a medium shade of blue	⅛ oz., 50c.	.35	3.00
American Beauty. Rose Pink. 2½ ft. Is similar in type of flower and growth to the well known Late Branching Asters, but differs in that all the large blossoms are produced on much longer and heavier stems. It is the first of a new strain of late branching habit, and of robust growth. The flowers are fully double to the last and are a most lovely shade of bright carmine-rose, almost identical with the World-Famous American Beauty Rose. Each plant forms a perfect bush	¼ oz., 65c	.35	2.00

Market Gardeners

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

E. A. Dunbar, Ashtabula, O., President; Louis F. Miller, Toledo, O., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; H. J. Cheney, Grand Rapids Mich., Treas. Next annual convention September 1920.

THE farm labor shortage in the southwest is acute.

TOMATO shippers in the Imperial valley, California, predict shipments should be double those of last year with the first car moving about April 10.

ELWOOD, IND.—Work has been started on a large house by the Van Camp Packing Co., which will be devoted to tomato plants to be furnished free to farmers.

HOLLAND, MICH.—E. H. Golds, of Marigold Lodge, has built a $20,000 range which will be devoted to early grapes, melons, tomatoes, strawberries and flowers.

ANACORTES, WASH.—Market gardeners in this section are devoting considerable land under shade to Hydrastis canadensis, or orange root, which last year commanded $5.25 per pound, with indications of higher prices the coming season.—H. M.

THE farmer who revels in moving pictures and motor cars made possible by double prices for wheat and corn now finds that his children and hired man are getting double wages to make the motor cars, while his farm overrun with weeds will hardly yield enough produce for his own existence.

Frost Damage in Florida.

Reports received from agents of the United States department of agriculture state that frost on the morning of March 2 did severe damage to tomatoes on the east coast of Florida, with an estimated loss of $5,000,000 to fruit and vegetables in the southern part of the state. From Delray south, most of the remaining acreage of snap beans was destroyed. At Miami, the thermometer dropped to 34 degrees, the lowest ever recorded in that city for March. Crops in the Fort Myers district were not affected.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, March 9.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen box, $4.00 to $5.00; celery, Florida, crate, $3.50 to $4.00; leaf lettuce, per tomato box, 20 to 25 cents; radishes, per dozen bunches, $1.00 to $1.10; tomatoes, per crate, six baskets, $4.50 to $5.50.

New York, March 8.—Celery, per crate, $3.00 to $3.75; cucumbers, per dozen, $2.25 to $3.25; mushrooms, 75 cents to $2.25 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 10 to 50 cents; lettuce, per dozen, 12 to 30 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $3.00 to $6.00.

Forty-fifth annual convention will be held at the Congress Hotel, Chicago, June 23-25, 1920.

STURGEON BAY, WIS.—The Co-operative Orchard Company, with a tract of 800 acres in which are more than 64,000 bearing cherry trees, has been reorganized with a capital of $500,000. P. P. Donahue, of Milwaukee, heads the new organization and James G. Martin is manager.

SEATTLE, WASH.—Thomas Wylie, well known nurseryman, reports advance bookings of orders for all the stock that he can supply this spring. 'Efforts to get stock from other Pacific coast nurseries, show similar conditions existing elsewhere. One eastern Washington firm has sold so far ahead that its salesmen have been withdrawn from the road.—H.M.

AN examination for nut culturist to fill one vacancy in the bureau of plant industry, United States department of agriculture, has been announced by the government civil-service commission. Applicants should apply to the commission at Washington, D. C., or to secretaries of the board in other cities for Form 2118, stating title of examination, which form must be executed and filed not later than April 13, 1920.

Kansas City, Mo.

CARNATIONS AT GLUT STAGE.

With a few sunny days and the decrease in funeral work during the Lenten season, cut stock shows a big increase in supply. Roses are plentiful to the point of a glut, especially in reds which are offered at buyers' prices. Rose prices have fallen considerably, some very good flowers being offered as low as eight cents. Jonquils at times were plentiful and in fact went begging, but in other bulbous lines there was no surplus. During the early part of the month sweet peas dropped all their buds and stock now offered is bringing $2 per 100. Easter lilies in pots are showing great improvement as the warm days advance and from reports a good supply will be in on time, as well as generous offerings of bulbous stock, hydrangeas, cyclamens and cinerarias. Most noticeable among the features of the present well supplied market is the fact that department stores are again able to handle flowers at low prices.

NOTES.

Local growers are fairly well prepared for Easter, but in a few instances, lilies will have to be pushed to have them in on time.

TRADE MARK

SHREDDED CATTLE

MANURE

PROTECTS YOUR CROP

It is direct heat dried and sterilized, weed seeds, grass seeds, fungus and disease germs destroyed in a direct heat rotary drying process that does not change or destroy any of the valuable elements in crude manure.

Air dried manures cannot be sterilized and usually carry excess moisture that actually makes them cost more per ton than WIZARD BRAND even at the same or a lower price.

Look for the WIZARD BRAND Trade Mark tagged or printed on every bag. If it is not there you are not getting WIZARD BRAND protection for your crop and pocket book.

Your dealer can get WIZARD BRAND for you if you insist or we will quote with freight rate on any quantity from a bag to a carload promptly.

FLOWERS PLENTIFUL, DEMAND LIGHT.

Flowers, after being on a high price rampage for the past few months, have finally started to decline and are again within reach of the purse of the average person. Roses are now far more plentiful, and the public can again buy fair stock at $2, $3 and $4 per dozen. Carnations are gradually coming stronger, and prices are falling. Sweet peas are no longer scarce, and the quality is splendid. Tulips and jonquils are a factor on the market. However, the demand, due to the Lenten season and the decrease in deaths, has lightened considerably, but is still fair. The supply of bulbous stock is rapidly increasing, and there is a good call for plants such as tulips, hyacinths and primroses, many preferring them to cut flowers.

NOTES.

The farewell reception tendered by the florists' club to S. N. Peck and wife, last week, took the form of a banquet held at the Commerce Club dining room. It was a great success, and was attended by over 50 florists, representing every branch of the business anxious to pay their meed of respect to these pioneer florists. George Bayer presided as toastmaster and kept the florists in constant laughter by his reminiscences of the early days in the flower trade. All of those who responded to toasts expressed their appreciation of the sterling character, the reputation for integrity in all business dealings, and the self-sacrificing character of the retiring florists. Mr. Peck has been engaged in the business for many years and will celebrate his seventy-fifth birthday in April. They have sold their business on Superior street, and will spend the rest of their days in quiet retirement, cultivating the flowers they loved so well. A handsome traveling bag was presented to the couple by the florists as a mark of esteem and best wishes. Mr. Peck was treasurer and secretary of the local club for many years, and was always a hearty worker and booster for organization.

A. E. Warning, Broadway florist, fell into the clutches of the police last week when he was arrested for selling fire-arms without a permit. He purchased a revolver from a stranger and then resold it. Later the revolver proved to have been stolen. Mr. Warning had no intention of breaking any law, but was fined nevertheless.

Schramm Brothers are producing a fine lot of hyacinths, tulips and daffodils in their houses, and report a brisk demand. Their Easter lilies are in fine shape, and Frank Schramm predicts a record-breaking business.

Max Spanner's decorator believes in taking advantage of all national holidays and links up his window displays with them. He had a fine trim for Washington's birthday that attracted much attention.

Harry Heinl is spending these blustery March days watching his big crop of Easter lilies, of which he hopes to have a bigger and better supply than ever.

John Koelker is cutting some splendid sweet peas which find a ready sale in the retail flower shops.

Spring.

"It's all in how you look at things—if there's a northeast breeze
That comes and shakes the snow from where it's clinging to the trees,
Why, then's the time to set your mind on balmy days of spring
And you can see the orchards where the apple blossoms fling
Their gleaming petals in the air until they leap and dance
And catch the silvery sunshine in their airy fairy dance."

W. D. Nesbit.

NEW YORK SPRING SHOW.

Under the Auspices of the Horticultural Society of New York, the New York Florists' Club and the American Rose Society, at Grand Central Palace, March 15-21.

A Splendid Exhibition.

The New York spring show was opened in the Grand Central Palace, Monday, March 15, at 2 p. m., Mrs. Woodrow Wilson flashing the signal by pressing a telegraph key in Washington, D. C. Although the extremely cold weather had greatly handicapped the growers, many of whom had to contend with long distance hauling over very rough roads, everything was ready on time. From the exhibits in place during the opening days and the attractions to follow, it is thought that the show will equal, if not exceed, that of any previous exhibition. An event of importance was the visit of General Pershing, accompanied by a body guard of soldiers and marines, at 4 p. m., Monday. He was entertained in the tea garden, and made a hurried inspection of the show.

The plan of the main floor presented a different and much improved arrangement over that of previous exhibitions. Instead of the usual center aisle, which opened a vista of the entire depth of the hall, as visitors reached the top of the steps at the main entrance, the beautiful group of flowering plants and bulbs, arranged for effect, exhibited by Adolph Lewisohn, covering 400 square feet, came into view, and was flanked on either side by spaces of equal size, filled temporarily with specimen flowering plants in various classes. These gave way on Tuesday to the displays of cut roses by commercial growers covering 300 square feet, arranged for effect. To the right and left of these groups, wide aisles led toward the center of the hall, but which were in turn blocked by the magnificent rose gardens of F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., and A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn. Between these artistic settings, was a magnificent group of acacias and imantophyllums exhibited by W. B. Thompson, Yonkers, N. Y. Either side of this display, the center aisles continued to the middle of the hall, where a wide space contained F. R. Pierson's group of ferns, arranged around a fountain basin 20 feet in diameter. To the left of this was the elaborate Dutch garden of John Scheepers & Co., Inc., New York. Balanced on either side of the central section, to the right of the Pierson Exhibit, the rock garden of the Detmer Nurseries, Tarrytown, N. Y., made a splendid showing. Continuing to the western end of the hall, the central aisles were again laid farther apart, along one of which came into view on the right the orchid section, and on the left, the beautiful gardens of flowering plants exhibited by Payne Whitney, Manhasset, N. Y. The other central isle was flanked by A. L. Miller's magnificent group of pot Easter lilies, the superb fern exhibit of the Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, Pa., on one side, and the border planting of spring flowering bulbs of John Scheepers & Co.

Artistic Grouping.

The Adolph Lewisohn exhibit, covering 300 square feet, was one of the best arranged groups of foliage and flowering plants ever seen here. It was artistic to a large degree, each specimen being placed to show its beauty of bloom or foliage to the best advantage and add its color harmony to the whole decoration. The prominent plants were crotons, oncidiums in long, sprayed bloom, rising from a bed of adiantum colored with Primula malacoides, pink and white and other short flowering plants. The sides and background were tall acacias, buddleias, Tausendschon roses, chorizemas, Easter lilies and cibotiums. Another entry from the Lewisohn estate was the 400 square foot group; the beauty spot that burst into view as the visitors entered the hall, was bewildering in its great wealth of color. It appeared to contain every kind of greenhouse plant that could be flowered at this season. The whole was most harmoniously arranged, both as to form and color. Acacias, buddleias, Tausendschon and American Pillar roses, nemesias, lilacs, larkspur, Cineraria stellata, Easter lilies, genistas, lupines and double poppies stood out prominently, while the ground work was composed of Primula malacoides, white and pink, and a grouping of Begonia Cincinnatti. The central feature was a fountain. All together it was a finished and most artistic arrangement, a great credit to John Canning, the gardener, under whose direction the plants were grown and arranged.

The garden effect, covering 400 square feet, of Payne Whitney, Manhasset, N. Y., Geo. Ferguson, gardener, was a mass of bloom. Primulas veris, malacoides and obconica, Cineraria stelleta, genistas and lilacs were the quantity plants. A sun dial was the center, and a round bed was encircled by a narrow path, which led out to the aisle. This was bordered with pots of lily of the valley. A high lattice fence in the rear made a good background. Adjoining this, Adolph Lewisohn covered 300 square feet with rambler and hybrid tea roses, all very well flowered, and artistically arranged.

Attractive Booths.

Several greenhouse construction firms erected sample houses and others had decorated office space. President A. L. Miller, in connection with the New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association, had a prettily decorated booth in this section. Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, had an office space, and Hartman, Sanders Co., of New York and Chicago, had a large exhibit of pergolas and garden furniture.

The American Rose Society had a nicely decorated enclosure in the northeast corner of this section to which its American flag gave a patriotic note.

The tea garden on the balcony floor was decorated in a canopy of bunting of all the allied colors, it being conducted under the auspices of the Allied Loyalty League. The decorative garden effect, hedges, wild smilax, Roman seats, statuary, etc., were arranged by H. H. Burns, whose work was much admired.

The F. R. Pierson fern group in the center of the cross aisle, around the fountain, was a beautiful, restful picture. The large cibotiums raised high at either end, with their lace-like fronds, relieved the heavier green of the many varieties of nephrolepis, which are a specialty of the nurseries at Tarrytown.

The Dutch gardens of the John Scheepers Co., Inc., New York, was ideal in its conception, and finished in every detail. A neat, white paling enclosed the space which was divided, its length and width with a narrow pebbled path. A large octagonal pergola with fluted columns and arched over the top, all decorated with wild smilax, covered a space which, decorated with wicker garden furniture, looked very inviting. The four beds in the center of the garden, surrounding a bird bath, were filled with Couronne de Or tulips. A wide border next the fence encircled a real grass plot. The inside of the border was edged with evonymus. Hyacinths, tulips and daffodils gave a wealth of color to this arrangement. Tall cedars at the end and on one side, made a fine background. A beautiful border of tulips in variety, centered with Easter lilies, was also by the same exhibitors.

The rock garden of the Detmer Nurseries, Tarrytown, N. Y., covering 500 square feet, was greatly admired. There were three mounds of rocks, which with the various plants, looked very realistic. A stream of water, as from a spring, coursed along from one end of the rocks to the other. English primroses, irises, dwarf Japanese azaleas and Daphne Cneorum were also features.

There was the annual tug-of-war between F. R. Pierson and A. N. Pierson, Inc., in the rose garden exhibit covering a space of 500 square feet. Both gardens were artistic to a marked degree; nothing had been left undone that could possibly add to natural outdoor appearance. The judges deliberated for a long time, and finally gave the coveted blue ribbon to A. N. Pierson, Inc. A heavy, low, white, rather massive fence encircled the garden. This was well covered with Hiawatha roses in full flower, which against the white background, gave a fine color effect. The border contained Tausendschon and hybrid teas, while next the grass, was an edging of dwarf Baby Elegant. At the rear, a Greek temple-like pagoda and rostrum was covered with Hiawatha, with standards of baby rambler and well-flowered White Dorothy Perkins banked as a background. A white pebbled path divided the garden. The velvety green grass plots on either sides had border beds of Mrs. Cutbush. The corners and posts of the gateway were decorated with plants of the new climbing rose, Emily Grey, a beautiful orange yellow with glossy foliage. The whole effect was that of a well kept garden of roses in full flower in June.

The F. R. Pierson entry was beautiful in design. The plan showed a number of beds separated by well pebbled paths. The center grass plot had a round bed as the feature, surrounded by corner pieces. In the rear, in front of the curved pergola, was a round bed encircling a sun dial. A curved stone garden seat between this and the pergola, was backed with a border filled with baby rambler roses. A brown sanded fence enclosure around the garden was covered with Tausendschon roses. At each post were standard plants of Frau Karl Kruschki. The various beds were filled with hybrid teas, each a different variety, among them Mme. Ed. Herriot, Mme. Leon Pain, Radiance, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Mrs. Wakefield, Christy Miller, Mrs. H. T. Hillas, White Killarney, Prince de Bulgarie, Marie Adelaide and Cardinal. The four arched entrances and the pergola were entwined with Tausendschon roses. It was complete in every detail and left nothing to be desired.

Foliage and Flowering Plants

The group of foliage and flowering plants entered by W. B. Thompson, Yonkers, N. Y., had as its prominent features the magnificently colored specimen plants of Dracæna Victoria, Cineraria stellata. Primula malacoides and obconica, cyclamens, spiræas and amaryllis were the principal flowering plants, with choice palms and crotons to releive the color. The whole made a beautiful setting.

The Marinelli carnation exhibit of some 500 blooms from four to five inches in diameter made a unique and beautiful display. Many of them were of Enchantress color and there were all hues of the rainbow, except the yellow tones, which were lacking. A large vase in the center, filled with flowers of a lavender shade was very striking. The majority of the flowers (they were all cut) were exhibited in separate glass tubes, but there were several vases containing fairly long stems. The ball-like appearance is caused by a very short calyx, from which the outside petals fall down, making an almost perfect ball. These were exhibited by H. B. Marinelli, Montvale, N. J. Merveille Francaise is the largest of the varieties, some being nine inches in their curvature, having a great depth. It is certainly a wonderful flower.

Max Schling's beautiful window, with its artistically arranged baskets and vases of orchids and other choice flowers, was constantly surrounded by an admiring throng. The background of the enclosed space was decorated with a large landscape of vast extent, with a glimpse of a city at once side, and hamlets dotted here and there over large mountain ranges. A telegraph line, over which was an inscription, "In two hours, we deliver flowers to any city," told its own story. A feature was a changeable illuminated sign, called an attractograph, which presented artistic creations in flowers colored to nature that were in many cases life size. The frame was about 20 inches square, the pictures occupying at times the entire space. As an attractive window feature it is one of the most up-to-date methods of displaying pictures of plants and arranged flowers so far introduced.

The F. R. Pierson booth, or rather, decorated space, had as its features an array of ornamental flower vases and holders, a number of them filled with choice, long-stemmed roses. Ferns in commercial sizes were also prominently displayed.

The Charles H. Totty Co.'s space was gay with its vases of beautiful roses and flowering and foliage plants. Some of the roses were arranged in silver cups, won by Mr. Totty at various floral exhibitions. The various displays of pergolas, summer houses, garden seats and other like furnishings were quite extensive. There was great variety in the various structures and furnishings there being something to suit every location.

Wm. H. Duckham, Madison, N. J., had an enclosed and nicely decorated space, to which choice ferns and vases of handsome roses gave grace and a charming color effect.

The Rose Display.

There was a splendid exhibition of cut roses staged by commercial growers on Tuesday, the vases of 100 each being numerous and particularly fine. The arranged displays of 1,000 blooms, covering 300 square feet, entered by F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., and Traendly & Schenck, New York, were magnificent. Traendly & Schenck captured the first prize, second honors going to the Pierson entry. There were also exhibits from private growers staged on Tuesday, which included in addition to cut roses, various bulbous and herbaceous stock, occupying space on the balcony floor. Camellias were also a feature, Wm. R. Coe, of Oyster Bay, N. Y., exhibiting over 150 choice cut blooms.

Alfred Kottmiller's bride's table of white camellias and lily of the valley was very artistic.

Carnations and sweet peas were the features of Wednesday's display, a report of which will be given in next week's issue.

The Orchids.

The orchid display was not so extensive as in some former shows, but the quality of the cut blooms and flowering plants was easily up to the standard. Joseph Manda's first prize collection of cut blooms comprised 80 vases, many of them containing handsome sprays, and others, six or more flowers of a kind. A number of brasso-cattleyas of various crosses were wonderful in their size and coloring. Cymbidiums were also a feature. A collection of nine varieties of hybrid cymbidiums in pots made a fine showing. His six hybrid cattleyas in their distinct form and colorings were very beautiful.

Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., exhibited a collection of 25 plants in flower, the varieties being cymbidiums, cattleyas, cypripediums and oncidiums. A group of choice cattleyas, oncidiums, phaleanopsis and cymbidiums was also staged by James B. Duke, Somerville, N. J., Arthur E. Miles, gardener. Several very fine brasso-cattleyas were prominent in this display. A group of 12 orchids in 12 varieties by the same exhibitor were exceptionally fine.

Arthur N. Cooley, Pittsfield, Mass., showed 50 vases of cut orchids, which contained rare cattleyas, among them being fine brassos and sprays of phaleanopsis.

A specimen Cattleya labiata with 24 flowers was staged by Bertrand H. Gardner, Ramson, N. J., Wm. Turner, gardener. A fine plant of Dendrobium nobile was exhibited by Miss L. D. Bliss, New Canaan, Conn. Very distinct were the seedling cypripediums, of which Kretcham Bros., West Nyack, N. Y., were the exhibitors.

Miscellaneous Features.

A. N. Pierson staged six very handsome plants of a type of Adiantum Farleyense which were much admired.

Harold J. Pratt, Glen Cove, N. Y., had several entries of orchids, the flowers of which were very odd and interesting.

Mrs. F. A. Constable, Mamaroneck, N. Y., James Stuart, gardener, exhibited a fine group of acacias, several of them large plants. A number of tubs of clivias, or imantophyllums, with their huge clusters of orange colored flowers, bordered this group.

The mammoth specimen kentias of W. B. Thompson, Yonkers, N. Y., and the handsome Caryota urens and Areca lutescens, staged by Mrs. F. A. Constable, had great decorative effect in their various locations.

The nemesia group of Adolph Lewisohn was wonderful in its great variety and wealth of color His crotons in two classes were well colored handsome specimens.

Trade Display.

The sides of the exhibition hall were given up to trade displays. On the north, the first space was covered with a pergola which housed the display of Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J. Next came the "store" of Max Schling with its 12-foot show window and artistic arrangement of cut flowers and plant baskets. Chas. H. Totty & Co.'s well arranged enclosure was filled with choice samples of their plant and cut flower stock. A number of exhibits of garden furniture, pergolas, arbors, etc., occupied the balance of the north wall spaces. On the right of this aisle, the Central park conservatories arranged a large display of fine foliage and flowering plants, prominent among which was a large coffee tree some 15 feet in height, conspicuously filled with berries. These were arranged by Chief Gardener Olsen of the park. The entrance to the Dutch bulb garden of John Scheepers & Co. was also on this aisle. The very complete exhibit of A. N. Pierson, Inc., occupied about half the space along the south wall. This was roofed with a handsomely decorated pergola and contained a splendid exhibit of foliage and flowering plants. Roman J. Irwin and Maurice Fuld, New York, had adjoining sections in which their specialties were well displayed.

A. N. Pierson's arrangement of greenhouse, stove and flowering plants was very harmonious in its color effects, the dominant tone being purple, from the large number of well flowered bougainvilleas. A few genistas gave a touch of sunshine. Dracænas and pandanus were the principal foliage plants. The rock garden of the Detmer Nurseries extended to this aisle. The Muller Sealey Co.'s decorated garden space, and the Doubleday Page & Co. booth completed the exhibits on this section.

The Robert Craig Co.'s exhibit of nephrolepsis in variety was a splendid display of very well finished plants in all sizes. Several of the large specimens of Harrisii, Boston, Scottii and Teddy, Jr., were exceptionally well done. This group was most artistically arranged.

At the east end of the main floor, the Prospect park greenhouses had a fine group of foliage and flowering plants, a feature of which, mounted on tall, slender pedestals, were fine plants of Columnea gloriossa, the long, pendant, vine-like branches of which, with their scarlet blossoms, were very decorative.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Easter Preparations.

In order to save money, time and worry, right now one must be making use of every spare moment in preparing and getting ready for the busiest week in the year. By this time much of the work should be under way, such as the selection and ordering of the plant stock. So many will leave this important duty to the last minute. They are called up by the growers to find out when they are coming out? "Oh, in a day or two." "Yes, you said that last week. You had better hurry for the stock is going fast." Then when at last they arrive, and find the best selected, they blame the grower for not looking out for them.

Last year's record of the Easter business, if one was made, is now most valuable for reference. Many important facts pertaining to the stock, both plant and cut flower, and the store management, that were forgotten, are brought fresh to mind and prove a great help, in avoiding the mistakes and profiting by the successes of the last Easter.

Of late years, plant baskets have become an important and most profitable stock to carry. Too much thought cannot be given to the preparation of a varied assortment of these splendid sellers. It is very important that a good line of baskets should be on hand, or if not, no time is to be lost in securing them. Quite a number of the trade have these receptacles, painted in one or two sets of duotone colors, which they feature this year, and which are exclusive with them. This is good business, as they then always have something different to show their customers in answer to their question, "What have you new this year?" The rectangular willow box, with handles at each end, gives variety and a very different effect. Pot covers for six and eight-inch pots are good stock, giving a plant just the finish that some desire and are willing to pay for. All these are good features, and should be ordered liberally, as any left over, are available for use all through the season for either plants or cut flowers.

If there are not enough made up magnolia wreaths, better get at them now than have to do it when the rush is on. It is certainly bad management to crowd into the last few days what can be done much better at this time. Frames that are likely to be used for cut flowers, such as wreaths, crosses, etc., should all be mossed and ready; in fact, all kinds of such preparatory work should be looked after and out of the way. To have to stop and moss up a frame during Easter week, is nothing short of a crime.

All kinds of printing and stationery should be in good supply. Tags, tag envelopes, order sheets, customers' cards and envelopes, are all important. Do not just think there are enough. Look, and be sure. The Easter invitation, or store circular, should be out and in the hands of customers and others before Palm Sunday. Whatever newspaper advertising is thought necessary, should all be decided on not later than 10 days before Easter. It is well to use the electros of the national publicity committee; they connect up with their advertising and are much better and cheaper than any you could have made.

Give some thought to the store arrangement of the plant stock, so as, if possible, to make a more intensive use of the limited space. Frequently, it is found, quite a lot of room can be gained, by turning things around a bit, and then one wonders why it was not thought of long ago. Temporary shelving over counters are a great help at this busy time. If it is necessary to get an annex or extra store for use as a receiving and shipping department, it cannot be secured any too soon. It is very discouraging in answer to an inquiry to be told, "I am sorry, but I rented it yesterday." Sometimes, a roomy basement is available, and is found to answer very well.

Often plants are to be shipped out of town, for which crated boxes should be prepared. Such packing takes a lot of time without these being in readiness for instant use.

Insist that growers clean their pots, particularly on the bottom, before they are sent in. Some are conscientious in this matter; others only make a stab at it, and do not seem to care. It is the job of the greenhouse man, and he should be made to deliver his pots clean.

Crepe paper pot covers can be made in sizes to fit pots from four to eight-inch, and bulb pans. Flexible, hard building paper, cut the proper size, makes very good patterns from which to cut the crepe paper. The edges can be bound together with a hand stamping machine, using wire staples, or sewed on a sewing machine. When ready for instant use, they save much time, and only require a thin tasselled cord around the bottom to give them a nice finish.

All these, and many other preparatory moves of a helpful nature, are possible, and relieve the trained workers of all such details, so that they can devote all their energies to the greater problems of the Easter business.

Featuring Easter Plants.

It is astonishing what a difference a little decorative touch will make to a flowering plant or combination of them in pan, box, or tub. To begin with, each pot should be covered with crepe or plain white paper, bound around with tape or tasselled slender cord the color of the flower. It is not necessary to have all decorated before being sold, but enough in each group should be so featured as to make them stand out from the others so as to attract favorable attention. It takes time and material, but the stock is there to be sold and the dressed appearance given by such decoration, adds 25 to 50 cents to the value of the plants, which can be further augmented by the addition of a few pussy willows and a bow of fibre, chiffon, or more expensive ribbon, which gives an artistic finish that is a wonderful force in the selling, and returns as well, a good profit on the cost.

Pussy willows can be used to splendid advantage, together with laurel branches or leucothoe sprays, in filling in the pot to make up for the lack of the natural foliage about the stem, which is common in rhododendrons and similar plants. Handles can be simulated with pussy willows, several sprays stuck in either side of a pot, arched over and intertwined to form a handle. With a good decoration on the pot, there is at once given a basket appearance. Shorter sprays may be used for the same purpose, which stand upright, and with pieces fastened diagonally across, give another form of handle.

An ordinary flat of tulips or daffodils, the box covered with crepe paper, and an arching of pussy willows from each corner, tied in the center, and the whole given a decorative finish with chiffon bows of a good contrasting color, presents an effect that adds immensely to its appearance and value.

Hydrangeas, blue, pink and white, while very showy in themselves, are helped wonderfully by covering the greenhouse tub with a mat, or substituting a white receptacle of the same size with gilt bands, or hand painted flowers. Placing these plants in duotone colored baskets, with correctly shaped handles, pink for the blue, and blues for the pinks, with blues or green shades for the white, tied with contrasting bows of silk or chiffon ribbon, give a finish that is sure to attract and quicken the sales. Many other plants may be treated the same way, and will, safeguarded from want of water by the tin linings of the baskets, add days to their life in the dwelling.

Round and oval wicker baskets, with side handles and tin linings large enough to hold rambler roses, hydrangeas, lilies, genistas and other plants from eight to ten-inch pots, should be used as much as possible for this stock. A knot of ribbon on the plant, connected diagonally with a band of the same to a showy bow, tied to one of the handles, provides a decorative touch that is sure to be admired.

Rectangular shaped boxes of skeleton willowware with painted or gilded tin linings, and handles at either end, are very attractive when filled with plants from four or six-inch pots, according to the size of box. Lilies, hydrangeas, or baby rambler roses, all of one color, look very well in these holders, particularly if attention is paid to color contrasts and finished with a little ribbon decoration.

Easter lilies, a number of plants together, in shallow white tubs with gilded bands, have a very finished appearance. Common, ordinary buckets, with the handles removed, painted white and bands gilded, make very good looking tubs. The supply houses always carry a line of wicker covers, with or without tins, for bulb pans from six to twelve-inch diameter, and the same sizes for pots. These are very good stock as they come in all duo-tone colors, and are at once a finished decoration. The same kind of covers made of birch bark add variety and their natural appearance will suit buyers who may not like the painted articles. These birch holders are very good for pans of pansies and Bellis daisies.

There is no question but these various forms of decorating and featuring plants are a great help in adding to their attractiveness, and this art should receive careful study by all retail store men.

Easter Plants.

What plants to stock up with at Easter, is always the problem of the store man. There are, to be sure, standards, such as giganteum lilies, rambler roses, hydrangeas and Holland bulbs, that are sure to appear as his quantity items, the only question regarding these being where are the best plants to be obtained. Belgian azaleas were always a great favorite, and while there will be a few, as provided for in last spring's importations, there is nothing like the old assortment, and these are said to be the last. Hinodigiri and other of the small flowered Japanese hardy types, that have been grown by nurserymen for border and lawn planting, force very well, and will in a measure, take the place of the more gorgeous Belgian sorts. While there will not be as many giganteums forced as formerly for Easter, the quality of the stock was never better. The plants are robust, well clothed with foliage of a good height, and very well set with buds. Many of the larger sized bulbs have sent up several shoots, which always make preferred pot plants, and are also especially valuable for cutting.

One of the most popular of the Easter offerings is the small tub, painted white, with the bands gilded. This filled with several pots of lilies, to form one large plant is generally a first selection with many buyers. Lilium candidum can be forced to good advantage. A number together, in a low pan or tub, make something choice for a particular customer. The hydrangea, on account of its wealth of bloom, is one of the most decorative of the Easter assortment. The old Otaksa, with its enormous heads of pink flowers, and Thos. Hogg, the white Japanese, have been largely superseded by the newer French varieties of the hortensis type, which in their great range of color, are truly superb. Avalanche, an immense white; Bouquet Rose, Baby Bimbinette and General de Vibraye are splendid types of this class. The blue varieties add greatly to the color assortment. They are grown into all sizes, the larger specimens being very handsome. Well flowered miniatures in four-inch pots are in great demand, being largely used in giving color to combination plant baskets.

Rambler roses are most popular at this time, their great wealth of miniature flowers in clusters, their slender branches, which are trained on globes, pyramids, umbrellas and other forms, as well as handsomely flowered pot plants of the large, and also of the baby type, making them among the best sellers of the Easter stock. Tausendschon is first choice, then Excelsa. Dorothy Perkins and Lady Gay are wonderfully fine when grown cold, their flowers showing brilliant shades of pink. Hiawatha and American Pillar are superb single flowered varieties. American Beauty and Magna Charta make splendid pot roses for Easter.

As a large, showy, full-flowered plant, the bougainvillea is sure of a place. These are now grown by specialists into fancy shapes that are entirely covered with bloom. The lovely genista, with its yellow tasselled sprays, is also one of the best of the Easter offerings. Well grown standards are particularly handsome. The six-inch pot size is handled in large quantities. These should not be held too long in the stores. They lose their brilliant appearance after two days.

There is nothing more choice than the heather. The white and pink, and the lovely cupressina, which in small sizes is so much used to lend an elegance to plant baskets, are the cream of every stock.

Spiræa japonica types have always been a feature at Easter, but unless grown here, will after this season, be but a memory. A few that were imported last spring, will be available.

Cineraries, with their bright, varicolored heads of bloom, are seen in every stock, particularly that of the grower-retailer, who is always sure to have a good-sized block for Easter.

Pelargonium Easter Greeting is one of the most showy of its type. When well flowered, it is a gorgeous blaze of color. A drop of gum arabic in the center of each flower will hold the pedals together for a long time, otherwise they are apt to shake off in transportation.

Well flowered Deutzia gracilis is a valuable plant at this time. Its hardiness makes it especially appropriate for the lawn or as a cemetery lot decoration, where it can be planted out. The hardy yellow Primula veris and English primroses, add variety, and when planted into pans, several together, are very showy.

Bulbous flowering plants, hyacinths, tulips, daffodils, etc., in pots and pans, are one of the most important sections of the Easter stock. Except for those who sell on the street or in stores where only low priced plants are carried, and where as a rule purchases are taken home by those who buy them, single plants of hyacinths do not pay to handle as the delivery eats up all the profit. Eight, ten and twelve-inch pans of hyacinths, tulips or daffodils are, however, very showy and salable, and can be turned at a good profit.

Pansies and Bellis daisies in pans, when well flowered are very inviting and spring like. If potted up for a week before, they will become covered with flowers, which profusion makes them very attractive. These are not to be placed on sale in the store except in lots that will clean up every day, as it is their brilliant, fresh appearance that sells them.

There are a number of flowering plants, that when well done, add variety to the Easter assortment, among others Mabernia or honey bell, stock gilly, wall flowers, calla several together, geraniums, Primula obconica, lily of the valley in pots and pans, begonias of the Vernon type, etc.

Easter Church Decorations.

The average retailer cares very little for the decoration of churches at this busy time; in fact, fights shy of such contracts, as unless a specialty is made of this branch of the business, with a large stock of palms and other foliage plants and all the accessories in good supply, it will be found very difficult, and greatly interfere with the increased trade of the store. As a rule, at the best, it is not profitable. The smaller churches will never have over $25 to $50 to spend, and for the latter price, will expect much for the money. Some of the Episcopal churches in the large cities arrange for quite elaborate decorations, but if plants have to be bought for the work, the decorator will have a hard job to figure out a reasonable profit.

Preparedness is a great factor in all work of this character. As soon as the contract is taken, those who will have charge of the job, should go to the church, look over the ground, make a pencil sketch and all necessary measurements for shelves, window ledge boards, set down number and size of foliage and flowering plants, height and number of pedestals, how much southern smilax, laurel or hemlock branches can be used to eke out the palms and get foot measurement and sizes of any crosses or other designs that are to be made of cut flowers. Specifications stating exactly how the various palms, flowering plants, cut flowers and designs are to be placed, should be written out in detail, which used for reference when the work is in progress, is a great help.

In all such decorations, when plants are placed in a warm church building to remain over night, and then be at their best until the close of the day, the greatest care must be taken to see that they do not dry out. All flowering stock should be placed in tin or galvanized buckets that fit into pot covers, with any intervening space filled in with sphagnum moss. When well saturated with water before being placed, they will then keep fresh without danger of wilting for at least 24 hours. Rambler roses, spiræas, hydrangeas, genistas, rhododendrons, azaleas and lilies, the most available plants for this work, all require to be well watered when in full flower, and are never safe unless such reserve supply as is provided by the buckets, is made for them.

The Azalea indica is the most effective of all flowering plants for church decoration, but unfortunately, they are now almost out of the market. A good substitute where a similar mass of white is necessary, is a rack frame with sloping shelves, on which can be placed white hydrangeas lying at an angle that brings all their flowers to the front. Pyramids of white can also be made with the necessary framework. All wood work used should be painted green, as should also all buckets, which conceals as well as preserves them. Leave the wire handles on the buckets as they are not in the way and much easier handled.

Frequently, it is found necessary to light up banks of green with pots of lilies, which it is found difficult to place or find support for when the decoration is in place. A very useful device for this work is a tin tube painted green, 10 to 12 inches long and two inches in diameter. This should have a good sized, stout wire hook soldered to one side at the top. When filled with water, and hooked on to a pot cover or stout palm leaf or other plant, it will support one or two lily stalks and give the same effect as a growing plant. Heads of hydrangeas will also keep if well filled with water before being placed in the tin tube.

Where large palms stand out individually, they can be made much more decorative, if placed in an extra-sized pot cover. The space gained is then filled in with flowering plants out of pots, the soil wrapped in cheese cloth. A few variegated vincas to hang over the front, make a good finish. Pack any crevices with damp sphagnum moss, which, when watered, holds the moisture a long time.

Boards or boxes of plants for window ledges greatly expedite the work if filled a few days before, as the foliage and bloom all turn to the front. Short branches of laurel or hemlock can often be made to take the place of valuable plants with just as good effect. It takes but a few minutes to place these in arranging the decorations, and they present a much better finish than hastily and loosely arranged plants, the pots of which are always hard to conceal.

The palms, pedestals, pot covers, etc., for the various decorations should be brought together a day or two before they are needed, in which case, they are better divided up. Without this selection, it often happens that there is very little left for the last two or three on the list, and there is then trouble that might have been avoided by better apportionment at the start.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

The wonderful and sudden increase in the supply of flowers, and the great drop in prices, came like a thunderbolt from a clear sky. The retailer now has the opportunity to try out all kinds of publicity, the central idea of which should be to acquaint his customers and the public generally, with the fact that flowers of all kinds are now very plentiful, and particularly, that prices are greatly reduced. Frequent imitation typewritten letters, calling attention to new plants or cut flowers, or suggesting various uses for flowers, cannot fail to arouse interest in the store and its stock. Major O'Keefe has said that people do not have to be told of the beauty of flowers, but it is necessary to remind them of their uses, and that such information cannot be laid before the people too often. Flowers have a mission, which is to cheer the sick room, for birthday greetings, as an annual remembrance for the cemetery, carry congratulations for wedding anniversaries, for the coming of the stork, to brighten the dinner hour, or just a few for the library table. The various flowering plants as they appear, afford an opportunity for the store to get in touch with its patrons.

To get business, one must be constantly on the alert, doing everything possible to keep his store in the public eye. This is particularly true in dull seasons, or when the demand for some reason falls off. The street flower merchant as a rule sells to people who had no previous intention of buying, but purchased because the particular stock offered looked so beautiful. Had the day been stormy neither the street man nor his customer would likely have met and the stock would have remained unsold. This goes to prove that people will buy flowers if they are brought to their notice. In every large city, thousands of dollars worth of cut flowers are sold every fair day by the street men. Men who stand on street corners with trays of nicely made bunches of sweet peas, violets or other flowers, frequently take in from $50 to $60 a day, all from people who would not have gone into a flower shop to buy them.

It is but two weeks to Palm Sunday, and every spare minute should be utilized in preparatory work for the great event. Every step forward that is possible at this time relieves the great strain of the rush hours of the last few days.

Take a look over last year's orders, and see if they do not suggest where bookings may be made that might, perhaps, go elsewhere. A fairly good line of flowering plants and made-up plant baskets should now be carried and well displayed, a forward of the Easter assortment.

Now that roses are cheap, a window filled with vases, each containing a dozen or more of the various kinds in the market, all correctly labeled, is sure to attract attention. Do not neglect the names, legibly written, as the reading of these hold the onlooker to the inspection of the last vase.

A stunning show piece is a large basket of calendulas. These flowers are now very cheap, and when nicely arranged, and finished with an appropriate ribbon, present a brilliant color effect that is not possible with any other flower. They should be well soaked before making up, and if possible, have all stems in water.

Now is the time to push the replacing of the evergreens in window and porch boxes, also pansies and Bellis daisies. All commissions, such as these should be finished and out of the way before Palm Sunday and customers will, in most cases, allow them to be sent for and filled, if their attention is called to them.

There is always a number of Easter weddings. While the most important are no doubt booked by this time, many leave it to the last minute, and some profitable work of this character can still be picked up if the proper bid is made for it. A wedding window, with decorated kneeling stool, a few sample bouquets, etc., is apt to bring inquiries at this time. Sextons of churches frequently know of such events, and these minor officials, servants of the people, are well to have upon your staff.

Do not forget to feature the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, at all holiday seasons. There is certain to be a lot of out-of-town business. Let your customers know that plants and flowers can be delivered anywhere, and this will add materially to your profits.

Express Conditions Easier

Express officials at Chicago say they are now (March 17) taking shipments for Kansas, Texas and Oklahoma points.

Easter Prospects at Washington, D. C.

Continued adverse weather has been a source of considerable worry to Washington florists with the near advent of a comparatively early Easter. This city has escaped the terrific storms that spread over the north and west, but it has had its share of cloudy weather, with a larger number of rain and snow storms than usual.

"The date is a little against us," said David G. Grillbortzer, of the Washington Floral Company, speaking of Easter coming on April 4. "The delay in getting the Japanese bulbs to the United States set the growers back a great deal; they had to speed up production, but I feel confident that unless we have an unprecedented amount of adverse weather, most of the local growers will be right 'on crop.' The plants this season will be much better than during the past two years. In Alexandria, we have between 5,000 and 6,000 pots bearing from three to 15 flowers each. The hydrangea plants are looking excellent. We will have about 1,500 pots. The wholesale price in this market will probably be about $3 up. It is impossible at this time to predict the price of carnations. I believe that there will be enough to go around, but orders should be placed early to secure a choice of stock." W. N. S.

Grimm & Gorly Removal.

Grimm & Gorly, prominent retail florists of St. Louis, Mo., in a cleverly illustrated advertisement in the Post-Dispatch of that city, March 9, announce the removal of the firm to its new store, 712 Washington street, a splendidly equipped establishment the details of which were described in our issue of January 3, page 1237.

Easter Plants at Philadelphia, Pa.

The growers of this city, who make a specialty of flowering plants for the Easter season, have long been noted for the excellence and number of their various stocks, and this year, in spite of the many handicaps, finds them quite up to their high standard.

The Robert Craig Co. has an immense assortment, the leading features of which are giganteum lilies, in pots, and French hydrangeas. The accompanying illustration of one of their lily houses gives a good idea of their robust, sturdy growth, the pots on pedestals showing the size of individual specimens. The hydrangea house is a picture, the plants are particularly well budded, all shades from pure white to dark blue. A large house of rambler roses, tied in globes, pyramids and baskets, is well set with buds. There is also a house of Magna Charta and teas. A house filled with genistas is exceptionally well set with buds, all very shapely plants. Any grower would be proud of such stock. Hinodigiri azaleas, a mass of buds, look very promising. There are also a lot of nursery grown Azalea indica, which will carry a cloud of white blossoms. A new double daisy of Mrs. Sander type, is white with a yellow petaled center; it is called Craigii, and is a distinct novelty. A house of these will make splendid stock. There is also a large block of marguerites. Deutzias, American grown Spiræa japonica and pot lily of the valley, together with an immense assortment of ferns and fancy foliage plants, rounds out a splendid Easter stock.

A. M. Campbell, an enterprising grower, is a lily specialist and has the largest stock of giganteums grown for cut flowers in the United States. The accompanying illustration is of one of five houses which contain over 50,000 plants being brought along for the Easter market. He expects to handle over 200,000 flowers in the two weeks previous to Easter. Another picture is of a house containing 15,000 plants, all 24 to 30 inches in height. A close inspection shows the extreme vigor of the plants, which are the admiration of every grower who sees them. A block of hydrangeas are timed just right. A house of 8,000 Laddie carnations is an interesting sight.

Wm. K. Harris has a splendidly grown lot of Easter stock including rambler roses, lilies, deutzias, hydrangeas, genistas and a fine assortment of Belgian azaleas, which just escaped the embargo last spring. Ferns, rubbers and pandanus are features.

H. I. Foust, Merion, Pa., offers Easter lilies and Hinodigiri azaleas and hyacinths in pans. The azaleas are particularly fine.

Aschmann Bros. have a large stock of lilies, hydrangeas, primulas and a block of spiræas, also a lot of bulbous stock.

W. & H. F. Evans, Rolandville, are proud of their hydrangeas, which are exceptionally well flowered, while the Floracroft Gardens at Moorestown have two houses of exceptionally well grown French hydrangeas, and a good sized block of Easter lilies.

Godfrey Aschmann has a good lot of lilies, hydrangeas and cinerarias. Zeiger & Sons offer very well grown ramblers, and a block of Easter lilies. Hydrangeas are also seen here in good form. Macaw Bros., Norwood, have a house of trained rambler roses that are exceptionally well budded. J. Wm. Colflesh's Sons have several houses of well grown stock, of which Easter lilies, hydrangeas, daisies, duetzias and bulbous stock are leaders. K.

ORCHID NOTES.

Easter Orchids.

Dendrobium Wardianum was formerly looked upon as a nice and showy orchid for Easter blooming, a well-flowered plant in a greenhouse or flower shop always proving attractive. Unfortunately, this species, since its introduction about 62 years ago, has never been successfully cultivated. Previous to 1919, importations of this fine dendrobium could be depended upon annually from Burma and Assam, those coming from the first named place being considered of a stronger and better growing type. For two or three years, these plants would flower beautifully, after which they would gradually degenerate. At the present time, few can be found in the United States, available for Easter decorations. Furthermore, the federal horticultural board has placed an embargo against the inportation of this and other orchids for commercial purposes and as they have proved averse to cultivation in this country, will be looked upon as rarities in the future. While wonderful progress has been made in raising orchids from seed, laelias, cattleyas and cypripediums are practically the only types that have been experimented with to any degree of success, and these are as an acorn to an oak tree compared with the vast number of species and varieties that have heretofore been imported from the tropics, which may be placed in the same class with Dendrobium Wardianum. D. nobile is one of the oldest orchids for Easter use and seems to adapt itself readily to artificial cultivation. It certainly should receive more attention than it does at this season.

Oncidium Marshallianum flowers at this time, producing a number of yellow blooms on strong spikes. O. sarcodes, when well grown, sends out racemes six feet in length, covered with numerous chocolate-colored flowers. O. concolor, a dwarf-growing species producing recemes a foot or more in length, with flowers much the color of the English primrose, is quite interesting at this season, as is O. Cavendishianum with its many pretty yellow blooms of a peculiar shape produced in strong racemes. Unfortunately, these oncidiums have not proved thrifty under cultivation and may become rare for Easter use. Likewise, useful at this time are Phalaenopsis Schilleriana and P. Rimestadtiana, known as the moth orchids, the first named producing long racemes with 50 or more pink flowers that are most showy under artificial light, while the latter is pure white with flowers quite large and very useful in bridal bouquets. There will still be available, Vanda coerulea, the blue orchid, for any who wish this color. These spray varieties are growing in popularity each year, yet no grower, either in Europe or America has succeeded in raising any of those mentioned above in any quantity from seed, and as affected by the federal horticultural board's ruling may become flowers of the past, at least for commercial purposes.

Cattleya Schroederae has long been looked upon as an Easter variety, and under ordinary conditions seems to thrive. This is one of the few cattleyas that has a sweet odor which more than makes up for its pale color, although some of the types of recent introduction are much darker than the old variety of 25 years ago. Easter being early this year, not many C. Mossiae can be looked for, but at the present time, seedlings of laelia-cattleya and brasso-cattleya are produced in quantity and find many buyers. Some Cattleya gigas and C. speciosissima are seen in some places.

Cymbidium seedlings are now becoming popular. Their long racemes of bright flowers are most attractive and their good keeping qualities add further to their value for the florist trade. This seems to be one of the orchids that has been improved by the hybridist and grows unusually well with some, while others appear not to be able to manage it. Atmospheric conditions seem to be the sole reason for failure to succeed with this sort. When this is overcome and the less the fleshy roots are interfered with, the better cymbidiums will bloom.

The lily of the valley orchid, Odontoglossum Pulchellum, makes a good white sort for Easter. It appears to grow well, and is worth more attention than it receives.

Spring Bedding Plants.

Successful growers of bedding plants for spring planting have learned from experience the importance of giving this class of stock the closest attention during the early stages of their growth so that extreme measures will not be necessary to hurry them up when needed for sale and outside planting. The best selling season for these plants is during the month of May, up to Memorial day, and while there is a call for considerable stock during June, the bulk of the orders are placed in May, and unless the plants are in good condition as regards growth and flower when the customers come to place their orders, a large number of plants are very likely to be left over at the end of the planting season to be sacrificed or thrown away. Nearly all of the so-called bedding plants are of comparatively easy culture, if started in time, and pushed along without a check, but if allowed to suffer in any way for the want of attention, they very quickly go wrong, and unless well grown plants are offered in exchange for the prices now asked, the customers will soon turn them down entirely. The public is now educated to a taste for the best products possible, and the cheap, poorly-grown bedding plants sold by the department stores in the pre-war days are gone (let us hope) forever. In those days, the grower did not make any money on them, and they certainly cannot be produced under the present conditions and sold at a profit lower than the prices asked by the legitimate trade. Easter is comparatively early this year, so that the grower is given more time to get his bedding and Memorial day plants in suitable shape for the time they will be needed, but the period between Easter and Memorial day is still very short for any other purpose than that of putting the finishing touches on the stock, and every effort should be made to handle the plants right along, giving them their needed attention, not waiting until the Easter stock is out of the way. If it is absolutely impossible to take care of them for lack of room or time, then as soon as there is any relief in these conditions, the plants should receive attention without further delay.

The late propagated stock is best suited for late planting or for sale during the summer months. This should be borne in mind when working along the plants, especially so in the case of geraniums. The fall propagated plants should be used for the earliest sales and planting, holding back those propagated during the winter months to be used for later planting and summer sales. The more tender of the bedding plants, like coleus, ageratum, achyranthes, etc., are very rapid growers, quickly developing into salable plants. This class of stock can be propagated up to early in April and still make good plants by the time they are needed late in May or early in June. It is well, therefore, at this time, to keep the propagating bed well filled up with every available cutting until the required number of these plants are accounted for. The secret of growing these soft-wooded plants well, is to grow them quickly, pushing them along from the time the cuttings take root until the plants are planted in their permanent summer quarters. The cuttings should not be left in the sand for any length of time after they have become rooted or they will get hard and wiry, which checks them greatly in their growth.

Be prepared to take care of the potting of them just as soon as the cuttings show a nice bunch of roots. All kinds of bedding plants that are to be transferred to outdoor conditions for the summer, need light, airy quarters, while under glass, but most of them will not do well under a low temperature in the early stages of their growth. After they have attained size enough to meet the requirements for which they are intended, they can be gradually hardened off in preparation for planting outside when the weather permits.

The ideal condition these plants should be in when the time comes for planting out, is dwarf stocky plants, with clean, luxuriant foliage, free of insects. To get such plants, they must have close attention to their general routine needs, particularly that of watering, airing and keeping the insects in check. A word as to the watering of these plants. While they must not on any account suffer for the want of water, yet at the same time, overwatering should be carefully avoided or the plants will quickly become long-jointed or leggy in growth.

Careful attention to the work of pinching back the growths evenly, as they need it, goes a long way toward having fine, dwarf stock of the foliage plants, when the time comes for planting out, and when dwarf stocky plants are planted the beds are almost sure to be successful throughout the summer months.

These quick-growing, bedding plants are very susceptible to attack from aphis, red spider and thrips, and the grower has to be on his guard all the time to keep these pests in check or they will soon cause him lots of trouble, if not ruin his plants, and the safest plan to follow is not to wait until the plants are infested, but as a preventative, attend closely to maintaining an even temperature and fumigate regularly once every week or 10 days, whether any insects are showing on the plants or not.

CARE OF GERANIUMS.

The geraniums are the leaders of the bedding plants, needing the largest amount of space, as well as the greatest care. They have to be strong, healthy plants, well in bloom, to command top prices and sell well. The fall propagated plants should now be given their final potting into four-inch pots. Where large numbers are grown, this is one of the big jobs connected with this work. They take up lots of room, which they need right now when the greenhouse benches are crowded to their limit with other stock, but unless they are given plenty of space, it is impossible to grow good geraniums. Another very important point to consider is that if they are not given the room, and attended on time, they will not be in good bloom for May planting. Geraniums need a fresh soil with strength enough to stand by the plants and promote active root growth, but which does not contain an overabundance of organic matter. Pot firmly and use caution in watering the plants until they have again become firmly established in the soil. It is best to keep them a little close for a few days to help them recover from the repotting, but as soon as the roots have started to move in the soil, maintain a moderate temperature and ventilate freely as the weather will permit. Do not do any topping of the plants after this date, but encourage them to break freely and remain dwarf by giving them ample space between each plant for their best development.

MISCELLANEOUS BEDDING PLANTS.

Under this heading are included ageratum, sweet alyssum, coleus, pilea, heliotrope, petunia and others of this class being grown in pots. Attend to the repotting of them as they are in need of it. They do best in a lighter soil than that used for geraniums, and it should be more finely prepared.

HOTBEDS.

Well arranged, up-to-date hot-beds are a great source of satisfaction to the grower of large quantities of bedding plants, and it is a great relief to him when the weather becomes mild enough to allow for the beds to be put into action, and some of the plants transferred to them from the greenhouse benches. The grower who grows alternanthera extensively, could not get along very well without the hotbed to work along his plants in the spring of the year. They require a strong bottom heat to push them into active growth which cannot be given them on the ordinary greenhouse bench. Start up the beds the last week of March, allowing the heat to thoroughly warm up the soil before putting in any plants. After the soil becomes thoroughly warmed through, loosen it up well, and make it as fine as possible so that the small plants can be easily plunged to the rim of the pots. The alternantheras are not the only plants for which the hotbeds will come in useful. Any other plants or seedlings, such as begonias, centaureas, Vinca rosea, etc., that are backward in growth, will come along a great deal quicker in the beds than on a bench in the greenhouse.

COLD FRAMES.

The cold frames are equally as useful to the plant grower as are the hotbeds. They will carry quite a number of plants that require to be grown cool, as well as being a good place to harden off some of the more tender plants just before placing them in the open ground, and after April 1 there are many plants that will be better off outside in the cold frames than in the greenhouse, such as lobelia, verbena, bellis, Mme. Salleroi, flats of asters and snapdragon seedlings and the young carnation stock for field planting.

When thinking of the cold frames we are reminded of the pansies. These require attention at this time, especially those that were transplanted last fall, and carried in the frames over winter. As soon as the weather will permit, they will need to be gone over, any weeds removed from the beds, and the soil given a surface scratching. Also, there may be some dry places in the beds that will need to be watered. It is also none too early to make preparations for transplanting the winter-sown pansies from the flats into the cold frames. If they have had one transplanting in the flats, and have been attended to, they will be ready for the frames by April 1. Give them a light fairly rich soil. These late-sown plants are better for Memorial day sales than those carried over winter from last fall.

SEED TO BE SOWN NOW.

From March 15 to April 1 is a good time to sow seed of aster, snapdragon, calendula, marigold and other annuals for planting outdoors for summer cut flowers. After the seed germinates, the young plants grow very quickly, making it necessary to work the plants along just as soon as they are large enough to properly handle.

FLOWERING PLANTS FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

The demand for choice plants in bloom at Memorial day is increasing from year to year. There are large numbers of people who do not approve of plants on the graves of their departed friends, but like to have the mound sodded over and a choice plant or wreath placed there for special occasions. This idea creates a strong demand for choice stock for Memorial day. These plants have to be grown especially for the occasion; left over stock from Easter will be past its prime and will not do. Hydrangeas, dwarf rambler roses, rambler roses, pelargoniums and geraniums, grown as specimens, are very popular for this purpose and command good prices. To this list can be added a limited number of well grown fuchsias, petunias, canterbury bells and marguerites. To do these plants well enough to make them pay requires cultural skill and the closest attention as to their needs, but they will well repay any effort bestowed on them. They should now be well advanced in their growth, and from this time on, must not receive neglect from any source whatsoever.

Calendulas.

These popular and showy cut flowers are now quite plentiful in all markets and can be featured in the stores with profit. Their rich orange and lemon shades are very conspicuous and can be used with good effect in many ways. They are offered in various lengths of stem, the shortest of which look very well in small vase baskets or in cheap imitation bronze vases. Daisies, freesias, white sweet peas, and many other flowers may be used in combination with them. The accompanying illustration shows a Japanese basket filled with long stemmed stock and a few pussy willows, and tied with a bronze ribbon. They have even been made into wreaths for funerals and declared to be satisfactory.

It is well to take off much of the soft, heavy foliage, which requires so much water and wilts quickly if placed subject to drafts. Should fresh flowers wilt, if wrapped in paper to cover all the foliage, and placed in deep jars of water for a few hours or over night, they will completely revive.

THE CARNATION.

Carnations De Luxe.

The accompanying illustration is of four new varieties of carnations grown by C. S. Strout, Biddeford, Maine. These flowers were photographed the second day after arrival for the exhibition of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, Pa. A vase of several dozen of the same kept for four days in the Pennock Bros.' window, where they were much admired. A few of each variety were kept to show to growers in the firm's cold room, and were in very good condition for two weeks.

The varieties, three of each, are White Delight, Maine Sunshine, a clear yellow, sport of Matchless, white flaked pink, and Donald, a fine maroon. The flowers were of excellent quality in every respect.

Carnation Problems.

Paper by A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind., secretary of the American Carnation Society, read at the annual meeting of the Tennessee State Florists' Association, Knoxville, February 5-6, 1920.

Having been given my choice of subjects, I will not inflict upon you a repetition of the old story of putting in your cuttings in January, planting in the field in April, benching in July, etc., but instead, will invite your attention to a few of the live problems confronting the carnation growers today. I will, of course, be glad to discuss with you, after we have finished with this paper, any cultural problems you may have.

Much has been said, during the past year or two, about the waning popularity of the carnation, the reasons therefor, etc. I contend that the carnation is not losing popularity, except in certain quarters, and in these instances, there is good reason for it, but not at all due to any fault of the carnation itself, nor the public. The fault lies entirely with the grower and the dealer.

There is perhaps no flower that offers a wider range of color or greater possibilities in combinations and contrasts than the carnation. Then, why, may I ask you, do the growers limit their stock to the few staple colors of white, two shades of pink and red, and why do not the dealers demand of the growers that they give them a steady supply of the many beautiful shades not seen in the large markets now? And why do they not avail themselves of the opportunity to use them when they are offered?

It is a well known fact one may become surfeited with the finest delicacies, if they are served up too steadily. Can you blame the public for tiring of the carnation, or of tabooing them in their home decorations, when the only thing they can buy is what they see at every funeral? Even at the funerals, there is too much sameness, and because of this lack of variety, the public tires of your carnations. I feel safe in saying that 90 per cent of the carnation sprays you make, are made of one solid color, and that color is either white, light pink or dark pink. How many of you have made sprays of the beautiful Benora, or a combination of Enchantress Supreme and Pocahontas? You have, all of you, made sprays of daffodils, but how many have ever used Yellow Prince carnations in a spray, and who among you, has ever gone out of his way to procure blooms of a flaked variety to offer a customer who would appreciate something different? This, I claim, is one of the principal reasons why the carnation has lost popularity in the big markets. It is up to you floral artists, to whet the public's appetite for new colors and combinations. You will find the growers ever ready to produce anything that you will assure them a sale for.

CARNATIONS DE LUXE.

White Delight, Maine Sunshine, Sport of Matchless and Donald.

I maintain that the carnation has lost popularity only in the large markets. Partly, for the reasons already stated, and for the further reason that the blooms are not handled properly. Unless there is a radical improvement in the method of packing and handling carnation blooms in the wholesale houses, there will be little chance for the return of the carnation's old time popularity. How many of the carnations that you buy in the average wholesale house, have even a semblance of the form the flowers possessed at the time they were cut from the plants? Especially is this true if the blooms were shipped to the wholesale house from a distance of a hundred miles or thereabout. While a pleasing color may be of first importance, a form that is pleasing to the eye, is not far behind. Most of the carnation blooms that come through the wholesale houses have a striking resemblance to colored rags tied to sticks. The grower who retails his own carnations, or the retailer who has his carnations brought to him direct from the greenhouses, finds the carnation as popular as ever, and especially so, if he does not confine himself to the three or four staple colors.

This brings us to the buying of new varieties; also, varieties of earlier introduction, but not seen growing in the average carnation range. That we must procure stock of the new varieties as they are offered, goes without the saying. New varieties must be produced; also, not only will improvement stop, but within a very few years, there would not be a single variety with health and vigor in cultivation. Unless there is a market for the fruits of their labor, the carnation breeders could not continue their work, and so there is a double reason why we should purchase the new varieties. Fortunately, those who follow this line of work, usually conduct either a plant or cut flower business, and do not depend entirely on the results of their breeding for their livelihood. Thus, they are able to carry on their work until they have produced a variety which they really consider an advance over existing sorts. That a large percentage of the new introductions fail of success is a well known fact, and is often made the basis for complaint. To my mind, it does not signify that the carnation breeders are dishonest. To any one who holds any such opinion, I would suggest that they get personally acquainted with the men engaged in this line of work, and I feel sure that their doubts about the honesty and integrity of these men will soon be dispelled. This, I consider, is one of the real problems confronting the industry—to see to it, that there shall be no lack of confidence between the growers and the hybridizers.

Few, if any, varieties are disseminated these days, without having really made good with the originator, and given similar growing conditions on your place, will do the same for you. If one of these varieties fails with you, do not blame the disseminator, but rather blame yourself for having failed to provide the conditions most favorable to its maximum development. We, all of us, are inclined to pass final judgment on a variety after one season's trial. This is a mistake, for which the numerous introductions are largely responsible. If we were privileged to buy, for instance, a new white carnation only once in five years, we would exert more effort to learn the special requirements of each variety purchased. Very few growers succeeded with Mrs. Thos. W. Lawson the first season after its dissemination, but the few who did succeed, did it so especially well that almost every one who had bought it, resolved to master its whims, and finally, after a few years, every grower was producing his bench or house of Lawsons and swearing by it. Matchless had nearly the same experience. Many growers were disappointed in it the first year, but it showed up so fine at the exhibitions, and the more skillful growers did it so well, that many were encouraged to try it again, and now Matchless is displacing all other whites on many places. I do not mean to advocate three or four years' trial for every variety purchased. That would not be practical. But, the cases cited show that we should blame ourselves, rather than the disseminator, when a variety fails with us.

During the past two years, the dissemination of new carnations came practically to a standstill, and now that new varieties are being offered again, it might be interesting to run over the list of what we now have, and see where we may effect improvement by displacing the old varieties with the new. In white, we have been growing White Enchantress, White Wonder and Matchless, a trio that is hard to beat. Crystal White is now added to the list, and is finding favor with many growers. In flesh pink, Enchantress Supreme is still the leader. Laddie, which comes in the same color class, is really in a class by itself. Its size and general excellence are setting a standard for the breeders to aim at. Naturally, it does not bloom as freely as the standard varieties. Do not throw out all your Supreme to make room for Laddie. You will have use for both. In light pink, some are still growing Winsor and Gloriosa, for this is a color the public wants. Our own Ruth Baur comes in this class, and we will allow you to pass judgment on it next season. In medium pink, we have Mrs. C. W. Ward and Rose Pink Enchantress. Neither of these is entirely satisfactory, but nothing has appeared so far to displace them. Rosalia is easily the best in dark pink, although a few growers are still doing Rosette extremely well. Washington is also grown by those growers who stick close to the Enchantress family. In red, Beacon is still holding its own in some localities, but its propensity for splitting in mid-winter has brought it into disfavor with most growers. Belle Washburn is fairly free and fine in quality. Nebraska is freer in flowering, but not so good in quality. Merry Christmas, being our own production, we naturally think it is it. Peter Fisher is giving us Ethel Fisher, a scarlet, which he considers superior to Beacon and F. Dorner & Son's Co. are getting a fine scarlet ready for dissemination next year. Nic Zweifel's Edna, which we have on trial, is a splendid scarlet. We also have a fine scarlet sport of Rosalia, and expect to have it ready for you in the winter of 1921-22. In crimson, Pocahontas rules in point of quality, while Sam Goddard's Doris leads in production. Donald, as shown by Strouts, looks like a winner, and Bernice has made a splendid showing at the exhibitions. Benora has no rival in the variegated class, and Maine Sunshine is a yellow that will find a welcome wherever things out of the ordinary are appreciated. Just at this time, there is no flaked variety offered, but Strouts' flaked Matchless will soon fill this gap. There will soon be a supply in all colors, and the improvement of the carnation will again catch its stride.

Within the past two years, prices on cut blooms, cuttings and plants, have increased materially. There can be no denying the fact that the increased cost of production of both plants and cut flowers justifies this increase. The extraordinary demand, brought on by abnormal conditions, has shot prices skyward, which, however, need not cause undue alarm. But let us as soon as possible get our prices adjusted, keeping them as reasonable as may be, figuring on a basis of cost of production. On the other hand, we owe it to our employes, to see to it that prices remain high enough to keep their wages where they now are. Greenhouse employes have never received the pay they were entitled to, as compared with wages in other industries where the intelligence required is no greater, and the acquirement of skill and proficiency demands time and patience. Wages in other industries are high, and probably will be reduced in the future, but greenhouse wages must remain where they now are.

Greater effort should be made toward producing in each growing establishment, its maximum yield, rather than to raise prices unduly. There are too many houses that produce only a half crop. In every large flower market, you will find a few growers who are making money, selling their product in the same market that consumes the product of numerous growers who barely make both ends meet. They do not get higher prices for the same grade of stock, but they produce a higher quality, and at the same time, secure the maximum yield from their houses. Better growing methods are needed, rather than radical increases in prices. Along this line, I might mention the possibilities in carrying carnation plants through a second season. This question has been discussed pro and con on numerous occasions, and having practiced it more or less during the past 10 years, our experience might be of interest to you. We have not found all varieties amenable to this treatment. Some sorts will not bear the summer heat as well as others, and therefore, are not so good for this purpose. We have carried over successfully, White Enchantress, Enchantress Supreme, Pink Delight, Good Cheer, Beacon, Ruth Baur, Rosalia and a number of seedling varieties. We have failed with Gloriosa, White Wonder and Benora. We find, the key to success in this is to avoid cutting back the plants too hard at one time, and to get them restarted before the summer's heat sets in. Having a considerable rooted cutting trade, we are able to work to better advantage than the purely cut flower grower. We will select a bench or house for carrying over, and begin propagating early in December, taking off all the young breaks as fast as they reach the proper size for cuttings. We continue this until the end of the propagating season, by which time the crop of blooms is beginning to thin out, and by May the cut will be entirely off. We then go over the plants and trim back any stems that were not cut low enough at the time the bloom was taken, our aim being to keep the plants compact. If there is much dry foliage, we remove what can be taken off without barking the stems. After that, we top the young shoots the same as on newly benched plants, until we are ready for the crop to come. We aim to have the crop come in late August or early September, as by that time, the asters are usually on the wane. Should we decide to carry over a variety of which we have plenty of stock without using the cuttings as stated, we allow the plants to come along naturally until about March 1. At that time, we cut back all the shoots that have not reached the bud stage. In this way, the cutting back is done gradually, and the results are the same as in the other method. Our records show that taking a bed over a period of two years, counting the cuttings taken and the blooms cut, the yield will run away ahead of a bench planted each year with young stock. I feel that this method could be employed to good advantage and made to yield a handsome profit by the carnation growers. Whether it would be as successful in the south as in the northern latitudes, I am not prepared to say, and this calls up the question of varieties adapted to your climatic conditions. Sooner or later, there will be developed a strain of carnations that will thrive in your warmer climate. I cannot suggest any definite course of procedure, except that by a series of crosses, you will gradually evolve a strain especially suited to your needs. Some of your growers have raised seedlings, and I would urge them to continue making crosses from year to year, selecting each year those varieties showing the greatest heat resisting power.

I would feel remiss, did I not embrace this opportunity to speak a word for the American Carnation Society. This society has worked for the advancement of the carnation since the year 1891, and it is generally conceded that no society has worked more effectively than the A. C. S. From a mere handful of enthusiasts, the membership has grown to nearly 400. After compiling a list of varieties numbering about 1,500 and containing numerous duplications, a system of registration has been carefully kept, which has prevented confusion such as existed before the society came into being. Through its annual exhibitions, it has given the hybridizers opportunity to show their new varieties, and at the same time, the members an equal opportunity to compare them with the standard sorts. The result has been fewer introductions, with a higher average quality. Do you know that during the period between 1856, when the first perpetual flowering carnations were imported to this country, and 1891, when the American Carnation Society was organized, there were more varieties disseminated in this country than during the period between 1891 and 1920, and that in spite of the fact that this latter period represents the industries's greatest advance? The credit belongs to the American Carnation Society, for no disseminator would think of offering to the trade a new variety without having first sought the American Carnation Society's stamp of approval. And, inasmuch as this approval is given only on the recommendation of a competent set of judges, whose integrity has never been questioned, the tendency has been to hold down the number, and raise the quality of the varieties offered for sale. The benefit has been more far reaching than some of us may realize. They reach practically every one connected with the florist's industry, for what retailer does not handle carnations in greater or lesser quantity? I maintain that the high quality of the stock offered these days is due in large measure to the encouragement given by the American Carnation Society.

FLORISTS' PALMS.

Early Spring Care.

Such a winter as has been experienced in a large portion of the United States in the season of 1919-20, means the use of a great deal of artificial heat in order to maintain a night temperature of 55 to 60 degrees in the palm houses, and for that matter, even to keep such a temperature in the day time, has frequently required strong firing, for there have been very many cloudy days since January 1. These conditions make it just a little more difficult to keep plants in good condition, for the intense firing dries both soil and atmosphere, and provides the right surroundings for an outbreak of noxious insects, if any such are in hiding in the houses, and it may be said in passing, that even before we had a federal horticultural board to call our attention to such matters, the ordinary practical plant grower could find some insect pests on his stock, and in the majority of cases, knew very well how to dispose of them.

The most troublesome insects at this season of the year among the palms, are thrips and red spiders, both of which flourish best in a comparatively dry atmosphere, and as both these pests are sucking insects, they soon injure the foliage they attack. Vigorous and thorough syringing with a good pressure of water helps very much in the fight against thrips and red spider, but this seldom reaches all the crevices about the leaves, and it therefore becomes necessary to spray and dip with insecticides, the majority of growers depending on the soap and nicotine solutions that have so frequently been described in previous issues of THE AMERICAN FLORIST.

Red spider is one of the mites, and like the itch insect, is more susceptible to sulphur preparations than it is to nicotine. With this peculiarity in mind, the dip for plants that are affected with red spider usually contains some sulphur, while that used against thrips only needs soap and nicotine to make it practically a specific.

Comparatively few fungoid diseases trouble the palms that are grown commercially, although it is not uncommon to find a pustular fungus on some of the phoenix, especially when plants of this genus have been grown in too cold and wet houses. And occasionally some sort of stem rot will appear among the kentias, but it has not gained much headway, although known to growers for the past 25 years, and does not seem to assume an epidemic form at any time.

There is a possibility that these fungoid troubles, slight as they have been so far, are encouraged by an insufficient supply of fresh air and too much shade during the winter, for there is no question that the less shading one has on the palm houses during the months of November, December and January, the better it is for the stock, and wherever the sunshine reaches, there are few fungoid growths. But as the latter part of February comes around, the sun becomes very powerful, and on account of the many imperfections in the average greenhouse glass, a light shade is necessary to prevent burning.

SHADING AND POTTING.

The cheapest shading material, and perhaps the best for obstructing the heat rays during very hot weather, is ordinary whitewash, but as this is liable to wash off with heavy rains, and as the lime is far from beneficial to paint and putty, many growers use white lead preparations instead with a view toward saving both paint and labor.

The spring potting cannot be done too soon now, for the growing season is on, and to keep up the stock in these times of comparative scarcity is not an easy matter where a variety of sizes and forms are desired.

There are many hundreds of species of palms, but up to this time, the kentias seem to keep the front row to themselves as florists' palms, and if we may use a fashion term in this connection, we might say that the made-up style of kentia is mighty near to being the only palm in the eyes of the decorator. It requires a good deal of stock to keep up a line of sizes in made-up kentias, from the fact that each plant of that type is composed of three or four individuals planted together in one pot or tub.

GYPSOPHILA PANICULATA.

Small palms for centres of ferneries and for basket work are always in demand in greater or less quantities, and therefore, there continues to be call for Cocos Weddeliana and small Kentia Belmoreana, these being the favorites with most buyers. Few livistonas are now seen, and yet some nicely grown L. rotundifolia are most attractive and frequently sell well. Seeds of this palm, and also those of the cocos, usually come on the market in spring; in fact, Cocos Weddeliana frequently arrives in January, but these early shipments are rather risky on account of frost, the shippers in the sunny south failing to appreciate the fact that our part of the earth is liable to be pretty cold in January.

W. H. TAPLIN.

Gypsophilas.

The value of the gypsophilas is recognized by the retail florists for the many ways in which the spray of minute flowers can be utilized to add grace and beauty to bouquets, sprays, baskets or floral work of any kind. For the gardener, they make valuable plants for the hardy or annual border, and they are great favorites with the amateur, because of their value of adding grace in combination with other flowers. The demand for the cut sprays for floral work is large enough to make it profitable for the grower to give these plants his careful attention. There are two separate classes of gypsophilas, the annual and perennial varieties, and both are equally as beautiful and useful. The annuals are grown from seed sown outdoors in the spring as soon as the ground warms up a trifle and several sowings can be made in succession to keep up the supply throughout the summer.

The best plan to follow in the culture of the annual gypsophila is to sow the seed thinly in rows about 18 inches apart, then when the young plants are large enough, thin out to eight inches between each plant in the rows. Cultivate freely while the plants are in the young stage, then when they have attained a good size, it is best that the ground be not disturbed, but after the last cultivating, or as the weather becomes warm and dry, it is a good plan to spread a thin mulch of well rotted manure around the plants in the rows, but do not cover the whole ground to exclude the sun from between the rows, because gypsophilas do best when the ground is moderately hard and dry.

Large numbers of these annual gypsophilas are grown in the greenhouse, to supply the demand for sprays for bouquets in the spring, and for Memorial day. The seed is sown late in December, the young plants transplanted in flats of three inches deep to fit shelves in a house with a temperature of the same degrees as that given carnations. The plants remain in the flats until the sprays get ready for cutting, when the plants are cut off close to the soil and the stools thrown out. The plants may also be started the same way and grown in about three inches of soil on a bench, where they will get the full light, but bench room is not always available, and they do just as well in the flats. Elegans grandiflora alba and Elegans rosea are the two best of the annual gypsophilas.

HARDY PERENNIAL GYPSOPHILAS.

These are among the most useful of the hardy plants, and no herbaceous border is complete without them. The cut sprays are also exquisite as fillers in bouquets in combination with other flowers. They can be used when freshly cut and the double variety when cut and dried, will last two or three months. The plants will thrive in any garden soil in a sunny position, their time of flowering being during the months of July and August. They can be raised from seed, or the plants increased by cuttings or divisions. Seed sown in flats in the greenhouse in January, transplanted as soon as the plants are large enough, and planted outdoors in April, will bloom in July and August. As these are permanent plants, they should be given a little more room than that advised for the annual varieties, otherwise the same cultural directions will suit them. July is the best time to propagate from cuttings. They will root readily in flats of sand under a shaded sash in the cold frame or greenhouse. The latter part of September is the best time to increase by division, and as soon as the divisions or cuttings have made roots, they should be planted into their permanent location so as to get well established before severe weather sets in. Their general after treatment in the ground, should be the same as that given other herbaceous plants. The best varieties of the perennial gypsophilas for the florists' use are paniculata flore-pleno, double white, of recent introduction, a most desirable addition to this class of plants; paniculata or baby's breath, the old-fashioned single white variety; acutifolia, similar to the foregoing in large panicles, and Scarzoneraefolia, a beautiful rose-colored baby's breath, grows about three feet high and bears an abundance of rose-colored sprays throughout the summer and is a very beautiful variety. There are also several varieties of the gypsophila which are more adapted to rockwork or low border plants than for cut flower purposes.

C. W. JOHNSON.

When Artificial Plants Pay.

There is at times a demand for decorations of plants in locations where there is little but artificial light, or such dark corners that ferns, palms and other like plants could not survive for any length of time, in which case, it is well to resort to prepared material, such as ruscus, prepared phœnix and sago leaves. This material is largely in the hands of the artificial plant and flower men, but it is of such a nature and comes so into competition with the stock of the florist, that there is no reason why it could not be handled and become a source of profit to the florist as well.

Sago palm leaves are largely used in imitation of the natural for funeral designs, sprays, etc. Therefore, why not make them up to simulate growing plants to be used in decorative effects for situations as described above, such for instance, as permanent decorations in the automobile show rooms, which are now considered so necessary.

Many very good effects can be made with pyramid, globe or standard forms in imitation of boxwood, with green ruscus. This material can be stemmed and filled into various packed forms of sphagnum moss, that when nicely made, is when a short distance away, difficult to distinguish from the real box, especially when placed in a fancy jardiniere or painted plant tub, such as carries the genuine plant. It is not necessary to have wire forms for the moss; fill a plant tub with an inch or two of pebbles, and the balance of the space with sphagnum moss, then insert in the moss to the bottom of the tub, and around its edges, stakes that at the proper height are drawn in at the top and tied to a point. When mossed and tied securely, there is a good pyramid from which can be built a very shapely plant.

Balcony boxes or blank window spaces can be filled to resemble the curved box bush, by making small, slender pyramids at the ends, then curving the ruscus sprigs as inserted to the center. Make a standard or globe form, which can be formed by covering with the ruscus a ball of moss with a piece of a broomstick covered with fibre for a stem, which, rising from the center of the curved boxwood, makes a decorative finish.

With the necessary prepared phoenix and cycas leaves, it is not at all difficult to make very good looking imitations of the real plants, the leaves being bound to round stakes, which when the plant head has been formed, are covered with palm fibre, and firmly secured in the bottom of a jardiniere or plant tub; they present individual specimens, suitable for decorative effects in positions where live palms or ferns would not for a moment be considered.

Garlands can be made of the ruscus to be used in permanent canopy effects, or in festooning over balcony fronts. Hanging baskets can also be filled with this and other such material to have a quite natural look. Standing jardiniere boxes of similar stock also can be used with good effect in such show rooms.

These "make believes" are to take the place of greenhouse stock, only where decorations are desired, and live plants would have to be so continually renewed that the expense would make their use prohibitory.

Lattice frames, decorated with artificial ivy, are useful in covering large blank wall spaces. These should be arranged as if growing from boxes or pots, which greatly adds to their natural appearance.

When used in connection with live plants, which can be given favorable locations, they work in very well, and all florists who do a decorative business should be able to handle this artificial stock to good advantage.

Allied Florists' Association of Illinois.

H. V. Swenson, Chicago, secretary of the Allied Florists' Association, in a recent communication to the retail trade, refers to the abnormal supply of flowers on the market at the present time, due to weather conditions, the express situation and other factors, and that the retailer in such times of glut should feel his responsibility and do his utmost to move this surplus.

Attention is called to the series of advertisements which will appear in the American, Tribune, Daily News and Herald-Examiner during the week, March 22-26, which will be read by 1,678,000 people, without duplication, and also a two-day series, featuring the fact "Flowers Are Plentiful," March 15-16, in the Daily News, Herald-Examiner and American. Mr. Swensen answers the question: "What am I going to do with the extra flowers?" He says: "Sell them by putting on a sale for a few days. Make the price so attractive that the public will buy. You will bring people into your store and make new customers that way. Marshall Field & Co. does it—why not the florists? It is better to make 100 sales at a profit of 50 cents each than 10 sales with a profit of $1 each. Figure it out. Go after business. You only get half as much if you wait for it to come to you. If I can be of any assistance to you, do not hesitate to call me up—Harrison 6075."

Evansville, Ind.

Trade during the past week or 10 days has been very good; in fact, March is showing a better volume than the corresponding month last year, with prices considerably higher. A high death rate during February and the present month, both in this city and southern Indiana towns has brought a decided increase in business. There has been a scarcity of plants for several weeks. Indications point to continued good sales during April and May.

George Blackman, of the William Blackman Floral Co., was prominent in the spring convocation of the Scottish Rite Masons, held in this city, March 16-18, which brought visitors from three states.

William Carlisle, florist, of Nashville, Ky., and Miss Georgiana Haines, also of that place, were married recently at Hopkinsville, Ky. They will make their home in Nashville.

ATLANTA, GA.—Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Nunnally are cruising the Florida east coast in their yacht, Toxaway.

DETROIT, MICH.—M. Bloy and wife are touring Florida in their auto. Mr. Bloy writes from Miami, March 12, reporting a fine time.

Are You a Supporter?

Thomas A. Edison says: "When I want to discover something, I begin by reading up everything that has been done along that line in the past. I gather the data of many thousands of experiments as a starting point, and then I make thousands more."

Now, its application: Your publicity committee discovered the need of an advertising campaign; they began by reading up everything pertaining to publicity campaigns along similar lines; they are still gathering data—but the fund still needs thousands more to carry on an effective work. And you are going to help it along, because it is worthy and incidentally beneficial. We are continually being reminded of the possibilities of our slogan, "Say It With Flowers," but make it work for you by giving it proper support. All agree with its power to make new friends, but your loyalty must be proven by your financial as well as moral support, and the more reliance you put into it, the more dividends it will return to you. Put into practice the old slogan we know so well—"Eventually, why not now?" This is the time to test its merit, and the more we put into it, the more it will work for us. Your duty is merely a voluntary one, and the pleasantness of it, should give you keen satisfaction in the fact that you have helped make it a national by-word, and that you did your share in the success, which has been proven already.

You want to sell more flowers, and it is self-evident that for every dollar given, 10, yes hundreds, will roll back. Our slogan is welcome everywhere, and is so fitting on all occasions, that its use is unlimited. But we want to keep spreading it everywhere, so that wherever you see it applied, you can feel that you helped support it. B. C. Forbes says: "There must be output before there can be income." This is the shortest and best definition of economics, and aptly applies to our campaign. If you would derive benefit, help its progress.

HENRY PENN,
Chairman Nat. Publicity Campaign.

National Publicity for Flowers.

There has been a good demand for the new Easter and Mothers' day newspaper electrotypes illustrated in the January issue of the Journal of the S. A. F. and their use will link up well with the advertisements for these days appearing in the magazines. The electros are so designed that a business card or other matter can be added to them by the newspaper compositors without injuring the general effect. Florists who have not availed themselves of the various electrotype offers of the promotion bureau should send in their orders to the secretary without delay, as on April 1 electrotype founders all over the country will adopt a new scale of prices, due to the high rate of wages they are now called upon to pay, and these prices will be in the neighborhood of 100 per cent advance on the prices we are now receiving, as we are running upon a contract placed long ago, and which has permitted of our prices remaining unchanged despite the fact that the foundry quotations have naturally advanced within the past year.

Florists are also reminded that our series No. 2 lantern slides contains one for Easter. All who use the moving picture houses for their local advertising, should have this series. Series No. 1 contains a slide for Mothers' day. All slides are in colors and there is room on each for a three line imprint, which we furnish.

With the winter practically over, little difficulty is experienced now in the installation of billboard signs. Orders for several of these signs have been received of late and shipments are made from the factory as fast as orders are received. Hundreds of florists have locations upon their own establishments which would suit a billboard installation admirably, and the cost of such a sign, $50, should not stand in the way of an installation. The slogan: "Say It With Flowers" exerts a tremendous power, and used in this form, is of great advantage to the publicity campaign.

We are still waiting to hear from those florists who have not yet subscribed to the campaign fund. Their apathy is hard to understand. Here is a movement destined to put money in their pockets—it is doing it already—yet they are not supporting it. It is no lottery; it is an investment, pure and simple, and good returns must surely result. As one of our enthusiasts recently said, "Through this campaign, the florists are doing what they should have done years ago, what other producers have been doing and are still doing—advertising their products. Some concerns are advertising for a market for their products even before they build their establishments to manufacture them. The florists have the goods, and their market should be on a par with their production." It is merchandising in every sense of the word. Why not lend your immediate support to the campaign; it is greatly needed at this time? The matter of the amount of a contribution is left entirely to you. There is no criticism. Our work must go on; to falter now would be to lose all we have gained. Let us hear from you.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

OBITUARY.

The Late Mrs. John Breitmeyer.

Mrs. John Breitmeyer, widow of the late John Breitmeyer, pioneer florist of Detroit, Mich., passed away at her home in that city, March 9, as announced in our issue of March 13, page 404. Surviving are four sons, Albert, Philip, Frederick and William, and three daughters, Mrs. William Geist, Mrs. Louis K. Geist and Mrs. Charles Lonsby.

The death of Mrs. Breitmeyer in her eighty-third year marks the close of a long and useful career of unusual activity, which had its beginning in 1864 when she and her husband, who passed away 20 years ago, acquired several acres of ground on Mack avenue and began the cultivation and marketing of flowers and vegetables. These were sold in their stand at the public market in Cadillac square, Mrs. Breitmeyer having charge of that part of the business. Shortly after, they secured a store at No. 2 Russell House block where more attention was given to the sale of cut flowers and plants. From here a move was made to a store on Bates street. In 1880, they acquired by purchase, the premises at the corner of Broadway and Gratiot avenue, where they built a small greenhouse adjoining their shop. Here the business made great progress under the direct management of Mrs. Breitmeyer, aided by her son, Philip, and many of the most elaborate designs, as well as the more moderate, turned out by the firm, were executed by her hands. She was identified with the trade continuously, until the business in 1887, was moved to Mt. Clemens, Mich., having grown to such proportions that the growing end required the exclusive attention of the late John Breitmeyer, and the store management was placed in the hands of Philip Breitmeyer.

Industry of the most intense kind was typical of Mrs. Breitmeyer, and her devotion to her family, her business and friends were attributes she possessed to a high degree. Her patrons were her personal friends, who were numbered by thousands, and who reposed in her their fullest confidence because of her strict integrity and most generous disposition toward all.

Notwithstanding her retirement so many years ago to the home of her daughter Mrs. Louis R. Geist, her memory was maintained by scores of her friends, both in and out of the trade, whose friendship was testified by the great numbers who attended the funeral March 11, and the beautiful and numerous floral offerings that so materially softened the grief of the afflicted family. Eight young men, all grandchildren of the deceased bore the remains to its last resting place in the mausoleum of beautiful Roseland Park cemetery. J. F. S.

Bernard A. Klus.

Bernard H. Klus, founder of the well-known florist firm of B. H. Klus & Son, Anderson, Ind., of which city he had been a resident for many years, died at his home there, March 11, after a short illness, age 83 years, succumbing to infirmities of old age. The deceased was well and favorably known to the trade throughout Indiana, in which state he had lived practically all of his life. Surviving are his widow and several children. The remains were taken to Muncie, Ind., for burial.

John Mallon.

John Mallon, for the past 35 years well and favorably known in the trade of New York, died, March 12, after a long illness, of heart disease, age 57 years. The greater part of his business career was spent with William Burns, the Sixth Avenue retailer, who retired a few months ago. Mr. Mallon is survived by his wife and one son. He was a member of the Knights of Columbus and kindred organizations.

"Messengers of love are they
All our tenderest words to say;
All a burdened heart would tell
Trust a flower to say it well."

MOTHERS' DAY falls on Sunday, May 9, this year.

CANNAS and dahlias have been in strong demand this season.

EXPRESS officials at Chicago say they are now taking shipments for Kansas, Texas and Oklahoma points.

SAMUEL MURRAY, the well-known florist of Kansas City, Mo., has notified his customers that his store hereafter will not be open Sundays, joining the movement which is spreading fast.

American Gladiolus Society.

DEPARTMENT OF REGISTRATION.

Objection having been made against registering the varieties, Conspicuous and White America, the same are hereby withdrawn pending further investigation by the committee.

A. C. BEAL, Chairman.

Easter Supply Appears Ample.

The annual Easter flower festival is fast approaching. On account of the early date, it will find some growers not so well prepared as they would like, but in the main, there appears to be a fairly good supply in all the popular lines of stock.

American Rose Society,

ANNUAL MEETING AT NEW YORK.

At the twentieth annual meeting of the American Rose Society, held at the Grand Central Palace, New York, March 17, the present officers were re-elected as follows: Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa., president; F. L. Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., vice-president; Prof. E. A. White, Ithaca, N. Y. secretary; Harry O. May, Summit, N. J., treasurer. Executive committee to serve for three years: Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; J. A. Curry, Portland, Ore., and S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, Pa. John Cook, Baltimore, Md., and Dr. W. Van Fleet, Washington, D. C., were elected honorary members. The selection of the place of the next meeting was left to the executive committee.

National Flower Growers' Association.

BOSTON BRANCH PROPOSED.

A local committee composed of E. Allan Peirce, Thomas Roland, W. H. Elliott, Wm. Sim, W. C. Stickel, A. Christensen and S. J. Goddard, has issued a call for all growers in Boston, Mass., and vicinity to be present at a meeting to be held at the American House, that city Tuesday, March 23, at 7:30 p. m., relative to forming a branch of the National Flower Growers' Association. J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill., secretary of the organization, will address the meeting, as will Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., and others prominent in the trade, and it is urged that all growers, whether interested or not, be present and hear what these men of national repute have to say.

The National Flower Growers' Association, the preliminary organization of which was formed at Chicago at a meeting held in January and which will report at the convention of the Society of American Florists at Cleveland next August, is to be composed of growers of cut flowers and plants only for the mutual benefits in a large way that can only result through national organization.

Thilow Lectures at Lancaster.

J. Otto Thilow, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., gave his lecture on "Flowers from Snow to Snow" to the civic branch of the Iris Club, of Lancaster, Pa., March 13. Preceding the pictures, there was an interesting and instructive talk on civics and their relation to horticulture, school and community gardens, and he was busy for almost an hour answering questions. The pictures and the lecture proper were a revelation to a good-sized audience, and the "snow to snow" title was very appropriate as there was a 60-mile gale, filled with snow, raging from 11 p. m. to 3 a. m. Sunday morning. The club wants him back again as often as he may be willing to come and declares that he can inspire enthusiasm into its members better than any lecturer they have ever heard on horticulture and floriculture.

The florists were extended an invitation to hear this lecture at the meeting, with not one in attendance, excepting the writer, Mrs. Herr and D. Irwin Herr, and if I am any judge of values, there is not a florist in this county who would not have benefited financially by hearing this lecture. Just why our members will not turn out when there are such chances as this, is a conundrum. ALBERT M. HERR.

Throwing Money Out of the Window.

A few days ago, George B. McCallum, treasurer of the McCallum Hosiery Company, of Northampton, Mass., threw $197 in gold and silver coins out of the factory window. Mr. McCallum was not crazy, nor was he giving an imitation of a new Texas oil millionaire calling a covey of Broadway chorus girls. He was giving an imitation of his own employes. They had been throwing $197 out of the factory window every week for months in careless waste, and he took the most spectacular method he could devise to call their attention to it. After the riot caused by the scramble in the snow for the coins had quieted down, he explained to the assembled operatives that in one week, 11,760 needles worth 1¼ cents each had been lost by them. That represented a loss exactly equal to the one hundred and forty-seven silver dollars he had thrown out of the window, except that no one had had a chance to recover any of it. Silk, scattered under foot and ruined the week previous represented a loss equal to the $50 in gold he had scattered to the winds. It was an impressive lesson, even though some of the employes were still too busily engaged hunting in the snow for coins, to listen to it.

[Unhappily, there are some in the trade who similarly throw money out of the window and acquire personal habits of extravagance in the thoughtless waste of their employer's time and materials.—ED. AM. FLORIST.]

Coal Notes.

J. J. Jermyn, of Scranton, Pa., one of the largest anthracite operators in the Lackawanna region, declares granting of anthracite miners' new demands will mean wage increases of 115 to 120 per cent on present prices, forcing most coal dealers out of business, while substantial increases to miners will be passed on at once to consumers.

Prices for bituminous coal at Boston, Mass., which toward the end of January were advanced from $9.50 to $10.00 a ton, were recently raised to $11.00.

"Hamburg Late Pink" Chrysanthemum

Picture was taken Dec. 28, 1919, and will give a good idea of what "Hamburg Late Pink" looks like when grown to single stems and planted six inches each way.

"Hamburg Late Pink" is an improved late pink Maud Dean, having more petals, and if grown for late will hardly ever show an open center.

The average grower of chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle, and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. "Hamburg Late Pink" has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but, for late pink, one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November by taking an early bud, but some of the flowers will show open centers; but by selecting late buds, after October 1st, most of the flowers are cut during December, and would advise to select late buds, as the later buds will hardly ever show an open center, and some flowers can be had even in January.

Keeping qualities are excellent, and where a graceful pink flower is wanted, "Hamburg Late Pink" cannot be surpassed.

"Hamburg Late Pink" will be disseminated in the spring of 1920. Plants will be ready March 1st, 1920, and all orders will be filled in rotation.

Windsor, Ont.

The Windsor Flower Shop has been making excellent displays of carnations, violets and pot hyacinths in addition to palms and ferns, at 62 Ouelette avenue. Miss Lucretia J. Bamford, the proprietor, while at all times busy, reports an especially good demand for cut flowers during the past two months.

Charles R. Tuson has placed the contract for a modern flower shop which will be equipped with all latest improvements. It will be located at 71 Ouelette avenue, opposite the new million dollar hotel, and will occupy ground space 30x100 feet. The cost will be approximately $70,000.

BUSINESS SHOWS MUCH IMPROVEMENT.

Warm, spring weather quickened trade during the past week. Narcissi, daffodils, jonquils, forget-me-nots, mignonettes, marguerites, sweet peas, etc., have been in strong demand. Carnations are excellent, as are roses, callas and Easter lilies. There is a great abundance of lily of the valley at present, due perhaps to the high price at which it is held. Orchid sweet peas are wonderful just now and varieties are arriving in large quantities. All indications point to an abundance of cut flowers and plants for Easter.

NOTES.

The florists' association held its monthly meeting March 12, the speaker of the evening being W. H. Dildine, who told of his attendance at the meeting of the federal horticultural board at Washington, D. C., regarding quarantine of plants, flowers, etc.

The Rochester Floral Co. arranged an elaborate decoration for one of the large retail stores last week on the occasion of its spring opening.

EXPRESS STRIKE CONTINUES.

Stock is plentiful at this writing, but the receipts do not appear to be as heavy as last week when the market was quite well loaded with it. The express strike is still on, and continues to cost the growers and wholesalers thousands and thousands of dollars every day. Shipments are being made by parcel post and over some of the railroads indirectly, but this is proving troublesome and costly. The wholesalers are making every effort to supply their out-of-town trade and everyone is hoping for an early settlement of the strike, which appears to be gradually dying out and will probably be over by the end of the week, if not before. Stock will be in good supply for Easter if the weather is at all favorable from now on, but everyone will do well to place their orders as early as possible. American Beauty roses will be quite plentiful and the same holds true for Mrs. Chas. Russell, Columbia and Premier. Milady, Sunburst, Hoosier Beauty, Ward, Ophelia, Killarney, White Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, Mrs. George Shawyer, Champ Weiland and Montrose will be included in the offerings, together with a few kinds not already mentioned grown for this market, including the miniature varieties, Cecile Brunner, Elgar and Baby Doll. The outlook is bright for a large cut of carnations, but the demand is likely to clean up the supply early. Orchids will be in fair crop and a large quantity of sweet peas is looked for. Gardenias will be had in limited supply. Lily of the valley should be in good crop. Tulips, jonquils, freesias and hyacinths will be obtainable and the same holds true for daisies, pansies, lupines, forget-me-nots, anemones, mignonette, snapdragon, violets and calendulas. Callas will be in fair supply and the outlook is bright for plenty of

WE DO

AS WE SAY

EASTER will make a NEW RECORD for the trade. A TREMENDOUS VOLUME OF SHIPPING BUSINESS IS EXPECTED. As to LILIES every one says they will be scarce, but there is a suspicion that CUT LILIES will go around at the price of $25.00, $30.00, $35.00 per 100.

We confirm this statement and offer our supply of PERFECT LILIES in short, medium and long stems, 3 to 5 blooms to a stalk. Early orders are assured of the benefits of first selection.

lilies at prices ranging from 25 cents to 35 cents per flower. Southern jonquils have made their appearance in good-sized quantities. Green goods are in fair supply, but some items in this line have been on the short side owing to the express embargo. Pot plants will be none too plentiful for Easter, even though there appears to be a large number of lilies. Rambler roses are scarce and this holds good for hydrangeas. Bulbous stock is being offered but not in any great quantities. With an early settlement of the strike the market should clean up fast. Everyone should place their Easter order early.

Express officials here say they are accepting shipments for Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

NOTES.

The George Wittbold Co. has had splendid success with its Easter lilies this year and its customers will not have to worry about a shortage of pot stock this season. The supply of lilies is larger than ever this year at the Edgbrook greenhouses of the Wittbold Company.

Frank Oechslin is having a heavy call for Easter plants, especially pot lilies, which are one of his leaders. Hydrangeas, rambler roses and bulbous stock are in good supply at this establishment, but Mr. Oechslin is looking for an early cleanup in all these items.

Fred Hoerber, formerly a member of the well-known firm of Hoerber Bros., wholesale florists, who retired from business when they disposed of their range at Des Plaines to Amling Bros., has joined the office force of the A. L. Randall Co.

Joe Nellesen's auto truck was quite badly smashed, March 11, when it was hit by a train as it was crossing the tracks at Niles Centre. Flowers were so plentiful near the mishap that everyone carried home a bunch of carnations.

The Grossberg-Tyler-Finnermann Co. has rented space in the Leiter store, on the first floor, which was formerly the old Seigel-Cooper building. This firm will restrict its space to the sale of artificial flowers, baskets and vases.

Joseph A. Mendel, 1424 West Twenty-eighth street, and Miss Emily Matousek were married by Judge Joseph Sabath, March 11. Mr. Mendel and wife are spending their honeymoon in Florida.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is having a heavy call for pot lilies and hydrangeas for Easter. This firm's lilies are in splendid condition this season and number about 150,000 blooms.

Elmer Wehrman, of Maywood, has purchased the Weber greenhouses in Bowmanville and expects to take posession this week.

Peter Kutrames will open a retail florist stand in the Leiter store, better known as the old Siegel-Cooper building.

William Dilger, of the Breitmeyer Landscape & Nursery Co., Detroit, Mich., was here on business last week.

Michael Freres is back on the job at A. T. Pyfer & Co.'s store after being on the sick list for a couple of weeks.

Martin Goerger, of Goerger Bros., Arlington Heights, is serving on the jury.

Joe Welch, formerly with A. Lange, is now with the Joseph Foerster Co.

Paul M. Palez, of Little Rock, Ark., is expected here this week.

CLUB MEETING OF INTEREST.

The club meeting, March 11, in the Hotel Statler, brought out a good attendance. Wm. Dilger presented a paper on "Horticultural Education," which was most interesting and thoroughly discussed. Robt. Plumb, secretary of the Michigan State Florists' Association, announced the programme covering the event of the first annual meetig of that society at Lansing, March 16-17. He predicted a fine exhibition of plants and flowers in connection with the business meeting which will discuss topics of great interest to all in the trade.

A. Pochelon, who made an address to the Allied Florists' Association, of Chicago, March 2, gave a report of that meeting, which had for its chief purpose the advancement of the publicity programme, both local and national. The discussion of the subject enlisted the interest of everyone present, and developed the purpose of this club following in the steps of the Chicago, Buffalo and Milwaukee florists, who are now collecting funds for the advertising campaign by the method of assessment on the sales by the growers and the purchases by the retailers, and to perfect working plans, for this city it was decided to hold a big meeting, of the club, April 13, to which will be invited speakers from other cities which have experienced the success of this plan of raising funds for publicity purposes. By a resolution a committee will be appointed of eight or 10 florists, embracing the growers, retailers and wholesalers, whose duty will be to urge the attendance at the meeting, April 13, of every florist in the city and those adjacent who deal in the market and to provide a definite working plan to submit to the members for adoption and which will if accepted, settle for all time the wisdom of co-operative advertising and an equitable method of providing the necessary funds.

The Sunday closing question was again opened and discussed from different angles, but as usual a great diversity of opinion was described as the matter affected those present. The discussion closed without definite action after Treasurer J. K. Stock made the claim that coercive measures were impractical and that those who now see the wisdom of closing should do so and soon all others would see the advantages and would join the Sunday closing movement voluntarily. The announcement was made of the death of Mrs. A. Hupprich, March 10, and also of Mrs. John Breitmeyer, whose death took place March 9. Resolutions of regret were adopted and floral offerings ordered sent to the bereaved families.

BETTER DEMAND AS LENT NEARS CLOSE.

While elaborate decorations are still scarce, the number of small dinners given of late, indicates Lenten quietness is beginning to pall, and many informal affairs are being held. This led to a distinct increase in the number of small arangements, and a revival in corsage work. The funeral demand has more than held up to previous records and none of the houses have had any stock left over at the end of the week. Every day sees more spring offerings arriving, and the call for these has been all that could have been asked. Carnations are coming in better, the stems being longer and firmer, and the colors making a better showing, and the local cut of roses has also picked up notably. Columbia and Ophelia are the two leaders, with White Killarney and Premier coming from local growers. Sweet peas are still big sellers and local growers are not only supplying the business here, but are shipping as far away as Denver and Salt Lake. Gardenias are scarce but promise to improve soon, while lily of the valley shows a steady increase as to supply. The local cut of orchids is still less than that reported about a month back, but is large enough to keep the stock well cleaned up. Tulips and hyacinths have been trade leaders for the past month, and apparently their popularity increases with the season instead of slackening.

NOTES.

A case was noted here this week which eastern wholesalers will do well to watch. One local house ordered several hundred pounds of ruscus from a well-known concern, and found that after deducting weight of the package, that about 25 pounds was missing. This is explained by the fact that the ruscus are damp when shipped, and dry out on the way here. The local buyer turned down the order, and suggests that the seller would do well to allow for this shrinkage.

It is reported among the retailers here that the Japanese growers are already getting together on the prices which they will charge the trade for Easter lilies. Since they will control about half of the local stocks, it has been recommended that the dealers themselves get together and set a fair price which they will pay for local stock, with the grower offered the alternative of fighting California competition in case he holds for more.

George Antenen, of the Seattle Floral Company, handled several big shipments of locally grown tulips to intermountain points during the past week. The northwestern cities are beginning to more and more count on their own growers for stock, to the reduction of the business with California.

Rosaia Bros. report the biggest single day's business in corsages for a long time, March 5. Several hundred, ranging in cost from $1.50 upwards, were supplied for a sorority dinner and almost as many for a luncheon. This firm has been showing some splendid tulips of late.

Novelty offerings have been used to good advantage by the Hollywood Gardens of late, and especially good results are reported from the display of gold fish in fancy bowls, and on odd pedestals. Novelty baskets have also proved a good Lent trade getter.

Table arrangements, corsages and hall decorations for one of the largest social affairs of the Lenten season were handled last week by Kenney's Home of Flowers. The window displays of William Goldberry here have attracted much comment.

C. S. McManus, of the Madison Park Greenhouses, reports splendid growth on the most of the Easter supply of lilies, although some stock is rather backward about flowering.

The Beal Greenhouse Company, on Vashon Island, has been supplying some of the finest Columbia roses seen on this market and reports a fair shipping trade as well.

The Woodland Park Floral Company showed an effective window of spring flowers in pots, baskets of jonquils and canary birds in cages during the past week.

The Woodlawn Flower Shop showed the first anemones of the season last week, and these attracted considerable attention in the main display window.

HEAVY SUPPLY CROWDS MARKET.

High prices are a thing of the past, and everybody is now accustomed to the new condition. The market is unsteady and inclined to the long side, many items going begging now that a short time ago were not procurable. Publicity after a spell of high prices is a fine thing for business, but the oceans of stock that are poured into the market in the early summer will never be moved advantageously. Roses are holding up well, and are still good sellers, but at greatly reduced prices. Carnations are in full crop at present, and it would not be surprising if they would be slightly off for Easter. Other stock, such as sweet peas, calendulas, narcissi, daffodils, freesias and tulips are in big supply and are used in large quantities. The Easter outlook is somewhat unsettled; while the bulbous stock will be about equal to the demand, such plants as hydrangea will be somewhat backward. Lilies will be in good supply when the time comes. Any nervousness on the part of dealers early in the week is gradually wearing off. Rose bushes in the larger sizes will take the place of azaleas. Other Easter stock seems up to expectations. One or two growers will be late with hydrangeas for Easter but will hit Mothers' day just right.

TRADE CONDITIONS UNCHANGED.

There has been no change in market conditions worth mention since last week. The supply is ample in all offerings with demand not up to supply. Due to recent frosts in the south local grown green goods were eagerly sought.

NOTES.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. says their Easter lilies compare well with stock of other years and will be on time. Large quantities of bulbous stock, roses and hydrangeas are some of the other items grown on a large scale.

The E. Welke Co. made special efforts and had unusually artistic window displays at its store during style week. Among the features was a pond of gold fish, surrounded by choice pot plants in bloom.

Within nine days this city has experienced every variety of weather known. Zero temperature was followed by a warm spell, then by snow, high winds, rain and a hail storm.

The large stock of pot plants for the Easter trade at the C. C. Pollworth Co.'s establishment is in fine shape and many orders have been booked to date.

Zero weather on the night of March 6 froze many decorative plants used by the A. F. Kellner Co., in decorations in the display windows during style week.

E. Haasch, who had a large stock of well-grown cineraries, found no difficulty in finding buyers for them. He is making room for bedding plants to supply his large cemetery trade.

Oscar Schurrer made a good style week display consisting of bulbous stock in pots and boxes.

THE LEO NIESSEN CO., 1201 Race St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Philadelphia.

PRICES CONTINUE DOWNWARD TREND.

Prices have closely followed business down the toboggan, and, as yet, no grade of sand used seems to be able to stop the mad rush. Even the publicity committee's mild campaign appears to have no effect. The growers are doing their part, as the stock is fine; nothing better, for the season, could be asked, and the stores are making a bid for business, (some of them) with good window displays, but the one great essential, that is, demand, is missing. There will certainly be a change soon as trade in Lent nearly always picks up before Palm Sunday, a sort of preparatory bustle before the grand Easter rush. There are few features about the stock worth mentioning. As said before, it is of good quality, and far too plentiful. There is not such a great increase, but because of the light demand, it accumulates and is hard to move at any price. There is no stability to prices, both buyer and seller doing the best they can to gain the advantage. Carnations are not as plentiful as other flowers, but prices have declined in sympathy. White roses are very hard to move as the influenza is about over, and with a normal death rate, there are more than enough. This is the street men's harvest, and quantities of flowers are seen on all their stands and carried on trays on all the shopping thoroughfares. Violets and sweet peas, and since they have become plentiful, short roses, are quantity flowers. Gardenias are now also a part of their stocks. Preparations for Easter are going forward in all the stores, while the growers are daily entertaining visitors from city and out of town stores. The greenhouse stock for the most part looks very promising and about right in point of readiness.

NOTES.

The large advertising spreads, one-fourth to one-third pages in the leading papers, that the Chicago publicity committee are now running, should surely show some direct results. If they are found to increase the demand, the remedy for business stagnation in flowers will then be clearly in the hands of the trade. The campaign here lacks the hearty co-operation that it should have from all the trade, but things look more promising now that it has started. The ads of the committee have been favorably commented upon, and if they can be kept up, and enlarged in size, will no doubt help to increase the demand.

The Leo Niessen Co. receives immense lots of flowers daily. It claims the outside demand is holding much better than that of the local craft. Russell roses, carnations, sweet peas and violets are quantity stocks.

Edward Reid thinks that the local retail florists do not try half hard enough to sell flowers. They can surely get all the stock they want at their own price, and should do their best to help move the surplus.

Fred Michell and wife have returned from a delightful trip to Florida. Counter trade with the H. F. Michell Co. is now getting very brisk and everything points to a good season.

A. M. Campbell is well pleased with the Easter lily outlook. His stock is wonderfully fine, and there is an increasing demand as the event draws nigh.

MANY ITEMS HARD TO MOVE.

There has not been any change in the business situation since last writing; stock is still in over supply, with the exception of a few items, with a light demand, and after the day's business is over, there is always an accumulation of odds and ends that are hard to move at any price. Business was better the latter part of the week, with more calls for stock than there has been for some time, and it looks as though the glut would end and prices would be more firm, though not high. American Beauties are more plentiful, and of much better quality, but outside of a few special orders, the demand is light. The supply of tea roses is not so heavy, but it takes bargain prices to move them. The carnation cut is getting heavier every day, and the quality is the best this market has seen this season. The big item to overstock the market is bulbous flowers, and jonquils, tulips, hyacinths and Paper Whites move slowly, as most everyone that has any glass have their own supply. Sweet peas is another item that is in excess and the quality is not near so good as it was two or three weeks ago. Snapdragons, calendulas, baby primroses, forget-me-nots and freesias all remain a drug on the market. Violets move slowly, as do orchids and lily of the valley. The supply of greens has been adequate to supply all needs. The stores are beginning to prepare for Easter, and all are planning for the largest business they ever handled.

NOTES.

Harry Irwin, Monessen, Pa., has found it necessary to move into larger quarters. He has bought a store on the main street, in the heart of the business section, and has fitted it out as a modern retail flower store. Mr. Irwin opened up in Monessen several years ago, and by hard work and fair dealing, he has built up a wonderful business, and is still growing.

James Reilly, of the McCallum Company, has been transferred from the Pittsburgh store to the Detroit branch. Ross Adgate, in point of service, the oldest man on the road for the McCallum Company, spent several days in Pittsburgh last week.

The Liberty Flower Store, Steubenville, O., has moved into its new location, just one door above the old store. When they get all settled, they will have one of the most modern retail stores in the country.

Miss Maxwell, of Wilkensburg, says that she has not noticed any falling off in demand, as her force has been kept busy all the time.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Company is making large cuts of roses and carnations of very good quality.

MARKET CONDITIONS UNSATISFACTORY.

The wholesale market continued in poor condition during the past week. Some of the wholesalers say it was the worst they have ever seen, but they have said that before and we take it more of a figure of speech than otherwise. There is no denying the fact that it was pretty bad. There were instances of carnations selling for $20 per 1,000, and on 42d street, there was a daily guerrilla warfare of street men selling violets, sweet peas, gardenias and anything else that they could conveniently carry. In American Beauty and Scott Key roses there was not a heavy supply, and prices for special stock ranged around $50 and $75 per 100, but the other varieties of roses were plentiful and cheap. The supply of orchids was not heavy, but what did come in, were hard to move. Yellow narcissus of the common kind went as low as 20 and 25 cents per dozen. Many of the common tulips were hard to sell at any price, as the Darwins and Flamingos have taken a drop and are more desirable. As a whole, it was a bad week for business, and condition were not improved by rain, March 12-13, turning to snow on the evening of the 13th.

March 15.—There is no improvement in the cut flower market.

FLOWER SHOW NOTES.

Calling at the Grand Central Palace, March 13, we found exhibitors and workmen busy preparing for the show. The greenhouse builders were putting the finishing touches on their houses, being further advanced than other exhibitors, though of course they had more to do. Professor White, of the American Rose Society, was early on the ground, arranging for the society's booth. Both Superintendent Herrington and Secretary Young were also busy. Although the weather at this writing is extremely disagreeable, it is hoped it will not turn cold enough to hamper the movement of plants.

NOTES.

George Schubert, of North Bergen, N. J., who has an established reputation as a grower of palms, does not confine his activities to one line. He has a large stock of a new form of his own production that is meeting popular favor. At the present, visitors to his range are most interested in his giganteum lilies, of which he has five houses of excellent stock growing in flats for cutting. This stock is sold by Traendly & Schenck, the well-known wholesalers of this city.

The Secaucus Exotic Nurseries is a growing concern that sends large stocks of plants to this city, and they carry a great variety of both foliage and flowering plants.

GOOD DEMAND FOR ALL FLOWERS.

Business is in very good shape at the present time. Funeral work continues heavy. There is also a steady call for all good grades of flowers and plants. The market is now in a position to take care of nearly all demands made upon it. A very fine grade of stock is coming along daily. There is now a bounteous cut of all varieties of roses. There has been quite a drop in prices due to the heavy arrival. American Beauty is about the only variety that is not plentiful. Carnations have recovered from the slump of last week, and are now selling at $2.00 per 100. Sweet peas are becoming more plentiful every day and are very much in popular favor. Daffodils are in heavy supply and can be had at almost any price. The street peddlers are all stocked up heavily with the stock. There is a nice cut of narcissi coming in. Tulips are about over with most of the growers. Lily of the valley of the finest quality is coming in freely. Owing to its high price, it seems to be moving rather slowly. Fruit blossoms are still to be had in large quantities and are in much favor for decorations. Large numbers of rambler roses in pots are now being shown at all the leading stores. Some excellent Pink Pearl rhododendrons are coming in. Erica melanthera is now in excellent shape also and is being extensively used by all the shops.

NOTES.

The California Dahlia Society at its annual meeting held during the week, set September 2-4 as the dates on which the annual show will be held at the Palace hotel. Owing to the increasing interest being taken in this flower, additional exhibition space has been applied for. J. W. Davis of this city was elected president for the ensuing year. Other officers elected were: William Kettlewell, of San Mateo, and H. T. Hennig, of this city, vice-presidents; Fred C. Burns, of San Rafael, secretary, and Frank D. Pelicano, of this city, treasurer. The executive committtee is composed of Mrs. Charles H. Lymbery, San Mateo; Jesse Seal, San Francisco; Pierson Durbrow, of Alameda, and T. A. Burns, of San Francisco.

Avensino Bros.' beautiful new store at 257 Geary street, was formally opened last week. The firm is composed of J. B. Avensino, Bab Pagano, for many years buyer for Pelicano, Rossi & Co., and J. B. Lavazollo. These men, well and favorably known to the trade here for many years, will, no doubt, make a great success at their new location. The interior decorations are very fine, being entirely of white marble and plate glass. The store is 80 feet deep and is fitted up with every convenience necessary to a modern flower store.

Alfred Cuneo, one of the best known florists of this city, died at St. Joseph's hospital, March 6. For many years, he was with B. M. Joseph on Grant avenue, but the past few years had been chief designer for the Art Floral Company. He was thought to be recovering from an attack of spinal meningitis when pneumonia set in and carried him off. As a decorator he had few equals in this city. Of a cheerful and happy disposition, his untimely end will bring a pang of sorrow to a large circle of friends.

The federal vocational board for disabled soldiers has placed several partially disabled veterans of the war in the work rooms of the Art Floral Company, where they will learn the florists' business. These men are being paid by the government. P. Vincent Matraia and his staff will see to it that these disabled soldiers will have a thorough education in all branches of the florists' trade.

Luther Burbank, of Santa Rosa, was 71 years of age, March 7. The main celebration of Burbank's birthday in Santa Rosa will take place on May day, when his creations will be depicted in spectacular form in a colorful pageant, "Sun Worshippers," in which several hundred people will participate.

Nearly all the rambler roses that are attracting so much favorable comment in the stores these days are from the greenhouses of Eric James, at Elmhurst. He reports the demand at this time for Easter stock to be much ahead of previous years.

The San Jose branch of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries has a very large stock of Pink Pearl rhododendrons for which they find a ready sale. Azalea Hinodigiri, another of their specialties, will also be ready for Easter sales.

The California Evergreen Greenhouses are in with an excellent crop of Hadley roses, for which they report a steady demand. Their lily houses appear to be just right for Easter, all the plants being in fine condition.

The Cypress Lawn Cemetery Association has been granted an injunction by the superior court of San Mateo county against the flower sellers in front of the cemetery near Colma.

S. Schwerin, of Mayfield, who is one of our largest bulb growers, is sending in large cuts of daffodils and narcissi.

JAS. T. LYNCH.

Columbus, O.

DEMAND FALLS OFF SHARPLY.

The demand for flowers in this market during the past week has been quiet. For some unaccountable reason, the bottom seemed to drop out of the trade, and a lull was the result. One of the outstanding features was the lack of funerals. Parties, also, were not numerous and the same was true of weddings. As a result, there was a somewhat oversupply of flowers and prices were reduced as a consequence. The stock was of excellent quality, and indications point to a large supply of high grade flowers for the Easter season. Florists are making preparations for an extra large trade. Easter lilies will be in bloom, and as a result, florists are looking forward to extra good business. Roses are plentiful, although the market was not overstocked. They are selling from $3 to $8 per dozen. Sweet peas are also in good demand, and sell around 50 cents to $1.50 per bunch. Carnations are also active, moving at $2.50 per dozen. The quality is exceptionally good. Jonquils are in good demand, and the same is true of violets.

NOTE.

The Rolf Zetlitz Co., of Lima, O., which recently purchased the plant of the Columbus Floral Co., has secured the range of the Louis Elsass Co., at Chillicothe. The establishment is a large one, and will be included in the chain of plants of the purchasing company.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, 216 Prospect Avenue, S. E., Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer.

The thirty-eighth annual meeting will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June 22-24, 1920.

SEED POTATEES are in good demand.

THE price of bags at Chicago, March 17, was $62.

THERE is European demand for dwarf peas at good prices.

VISITED CHICAGO: Fred L. Hogue, Ventura, Calif.; Chas. Schwake, New York.

PHILADELPHIA houses report counter trade slow to date, but mail orders good.

S. F. LEONARD, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, and Mrs. Leonard, have returned from Florida.

EXPRESS officials at Chicago say they are now taking shipments for Kansas, Texas and Oklahoma points.

THERE is a big demand for cotton seed in the south, some seedsmen being compelled to refund cash on orders.

THE Sacramento Bee of March 4 carried a 4-page garden seed advertisement of the Valley Seed Co., that city.

W. W. BARNARD, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, returned from California, March 14, his health greatly improved.

THE dock laborers' strike at Rotterdam and Amsterdam continues, and returning Hollanders are going home via England.

GILROY, CALIF.—L. W. Wheeler and Mrs. Wheeler, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., have returned after a country-wide tour of the trade.

AN American importer of Japanese stocks advises that he has three representatives looking for shipping space where he used to have one.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—A. J. Brown, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., is making a contracting trip, visiting Chicago, Missouri river and other points.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district are easier at $3.00 to $3.50, the movement having slowed down appreciably under transportation difficulties.

THERE are 13,000 acres under New York lettuce in the Imperial valley. The product is going out in trainloads every day. The thermometer sometimes runs to 120 degrees in the shade here.

SEEDSMEN visiting the New York show this week include Henry F. Mitchell, Philadelphia, Pa.; J. K. M. L. Farquhar, Boston, Mass.; Howard M. Earl, Cambridge, N. Y.; Carl Cropp and A. Henderson, Chicago.

CHARLES D. BOYLES, Chicago and New York, has the sympathy of a host of trade friends in the loss of his mother, Mrs. Hannah Dickinson Boyles, who died at Orange City, Fla., March 11, with funeral services at Rosehill cemetery chapel, Chicago, March 14. Mrs. Boyles, widow of the late C. C. Boyles, was sister of Albert and Charles Dickinson.

TOLEDO, O.—The clover seed market opened inactive, March 15. Cash closed at $34.00 and October at $23.75. Timothy was practically unchanged, with March at $6.12½, April $6.10 and May, $6.05.

PLANTING conditions, and seed selling as well, are quite backward in the latitude of St. Louis, Cincinnati and Baltimore. It is feared that lack of help will seriously reduce market garden acreages as well as amount of seed required.

MECHANICSBURG, O.—The Wing Seed Co. reports field seed business much heavier than last year and wholesale vegetable seeds moving satisfactorily. Retail trade is late, probably due to the delayed mailing of catalogues, but is now running much ahead of last year.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—One of the largest single shipments of alfalfa seed handled by one concern in the United States, consisting of approximately 1,600 long tons, has been received from Russia by the Courteen Seed Co., of this city. Including ocean freight charges, its value is about $1,000,000.

RIGHTLY or wrongly, the idea is gaining that stringency in money will be less for some time to come. The senate resolution for an inquiry into the cause of "usurious rates of interest" at financial centers is considered food for thought. So are gold imports. Though cheap money is out of the question, these angles make for belief that the period of extremely dear money has passed.

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE, Chicago, long located at 31-33 West Randolph St., is likely to be called upon to vacate its present quarters because of a proposed theatre to be built on this site and the adjoining corner. To care for the change when it comes, a lease has been made on a similar building across the street in the same block, 8-10-12 West Randolph St. The new location has the advantage of being nearer to State street, and nearly opposite Marshall Field & Co.'s big retail store.

Cabbage Seed Crop Damage.

Puget Sound District.—The commercial cabbage seed crop in the Puget Sound district has been severely damaged this winter by freezing before the plants had been covered. The total acreage reported harvested in this section in 1919 was 1,524 acres, and preparations were made for a similar acreage for harvest in 1920. Although some growers are reluctant to make definite statements as to the extent of the damage or possible number of acres they will be able to put out this season from the surviving plants, the indications are that about 83 per cent of the plants were destroyed, and that only about 260 acres will be planted from the remaining 17 per cent.

Long Island.—The cabbage plants for seed production on Long Island were buried in trenches and well prepared for the winter before hard freezing occurred and, although the winter has been a severe one, the plants are believed to be in good condition. The month of March is the most critical time in this section, however, and it is obviously impossible for growers to estimate the final damage, if any, until after this period has passed and the plants are removed from the trenches. —Government Market Reporter, March 13.

California Seed Crops.

Joseph W. Edmundson writes that California growing conditions were never so backward, due to the extreme drought and cold winds, the plants showing practically no growth. Lettuce is being replanted, fully 50 per cent of the stand having been destroyed by worms.

The acreage of garden seed crops has been greatly reduced, the plantings being approximately as follows: Onion, 20 per cent of normal; beet, 10 per cent, and carrot, 15 per cent.

Radish, lettuce and minor crops are greatly reduced, but the percentage is difficult to estimate.

The Late F. W. Bruggerhof.

Referring to the late F. W. Bruggerhof, whose death was noted in our last issue, Burnett Landreth, secretary of the Wholesale Seedmen's League, writes as follows:

"Mr. Bruggerhof was without doubt the Nestor of the seed trade in America. He devoted 71 years in New York City to the development of the seed trade, and his uniform courtesy endeared him to all with whom he came in contact."

OTHER AMERICAN ASTERS

Lavender Gem. One of the most charming sorts. The flowers are of a true lavender shade and the petals are gracefully curled and twisted, and the blooms are borne on long stems .... .35 2.00

Peerless Pink. The flowers are enormous, globular in shape, many five inches across, of a most delightful and pleasing rich shell pink. First flowers appear about the middle of August, but the plant is at its zenith about four weeks later .... .25 2.00

Crimson Giant. This shade has been one which has seemed to lack intensity of color, but in this variety the blood red blossom is particularly bright .35 2.00

Sensation. The reddest of all red asters, the color being a dark rich garnet or ox-blood red which glistens in the sunshine like a live coal. The plants are of the free branching habit, about 18 inches high, the double flowers averaging about 3 inches in diameter are borne freely on stems about 12 inches long .... .35 2.00

Soleil D'Or (Golden Sun). Best Yellow Aster .... .25 ....

Mammoth Non-Lateral Branching White. 2 ft. This is without doubt the largest Aster on the market. Many of the flowers will measure four inches in diameter. The plants grow about two feet high with a low branching habit, and the flowers which are borne on non-lateral stems are full, with petals curled and incurved, making the flowers appear like a cross between an Ostrich Feather and a Giant Branching .... ¼ oz., 65c. .35 2.40

Mammoth Non-Lateral Branching Blue. 2 ft. Very like the preceding except the flowers are a medium shade of blue .... ⅛ oz., 50c. .35 3.00

American Beauty. Rose Pink. 2½ ft. Is similar in type of flower and growth to the well known Late Branching Asters, but differs in that all the large blossoms are produced on much longer and heavier stems. It is the first of a new strain of late branching habit, and of robust growth. The flowers are fully double to the last and are a most lovely shade of bright carmine-rose, almost identical with the World-Famous American Beauty Rose. Each plant forms a perfect bush .. ¼ oz., 65c .35 2.00

American Beauty. Purple .... ¼ oz., 80c .40 3.00

DREER'S FAMOUS AMERICAN ASTERS.

As usual our Asters are American grown and were carefully inspected when in bloom and feel sure they are unsurpassed for quality.

King Asters.

The "King" Asters form a distinct class or type, and have many sterling qualities to recommend them to lovers of fine Asters. They are of strong, sturdy habit, growing fully 18 inches high, and bear from August to October very large double blossoms, the petals of which are more or less quilled, forming very attractive flowers.

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.

Dreer's Superb Late Branching Asters.

The finest Asters for late August and September blooming.

The plants form strong, branching bushes, 2 to 2½ feet high, bearing on long strong stems their handsome Chrysanthemum-like flowers, which, under ordinary cultivation, average 5 inches across. The form of the flowers, together with the length of the stem, places them at the head of Asters for cutting. They come into bloom from two to three weeks after the average type, usually being at their best during September, and filling in the gap between the general run of Asters and Chrysanthemums. We offer eight beautiful and distinct colors, viz.:

New Red Aster "Sensation."

This is the reddest of all Red Asters, the color being a rich garnet or ox blood red which glistens in the sunshine like a live coal. The plants are of free-branching habit about 18 inches high; the very double flowers, averaging 3½ inches across, are borne freely on stems a foot long from early in August till the close of September. The intense color shows up well when cut, and makes a very brilliant bit of color in a bed or border. 50 cts. per trade pkt.; $2.50 per oz.

Vegetable Markets.

Reports to the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, covering the period March 9-15, indicate a strong tone with shipments increasing. Potato prices for the week on the average showed a gain, but reductions occurred at the close. Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin white varieties at shipping points ruled $4.50-$5.10 per 100 pounds sacked, f. o. b. This stock in western consuming markets was quoted $5.30-$5.60. New York round whites at shipping points showed little change at $4.75-$5.00 per 100 pounds. Western distributing markets for this stock closed 10-15 cents higher at $5.00-$5.70. Maine Green Mountains in New York closed at $5.55-$5.85. Consuming markets showed little change in sweet potato prices. New York Danish Seed cabbage was quoted irregularly in consuming markets with prices tending generally around $75-$100. Early Florida Wakefields at shipping points went 25 cents higher than the previous week at $1.50-$1.75 per 1½ bushel hamper. Texas Charleston Wakefields and Early Flat Dutch in most middle western distributing markets were quoted nearly steady at $75-$90. St. Louis was lower at $65-$70. Eastern yellow onions in consuming markets ranged generally steady at $5.75-$6.50 per 100 pounds sacked. Middle western yellow stock closed 25-50 cents higher at $6.00-$6.75 in most consuming markets, while Chicago quoted $5.00-$6.00. Spanish Valencias were still quoted irregularly with little change in prices. Miami, Fla., shipping points reported quotations on fancy green wrapped Globe tomatoes at $2.50-$3 for sixes in cars, f. o. b., with market steady for good stock but dull for ordinary. Eastern consuming markets closed at $4.00-$5.00. Heavy celery haulings with prices advancing were reported from Sanford, Fla., shipping points.

Fumigation.

Last spring, we visited a large grower, and were surprised to find his entire range badly damaged by tobacco smoke. It was at a time when his tomatoes had been transferred into the lettuce beds, and in order to control the aphis on the lettuce, tobacco smoke was resorted to. The result was a severe injury to the tomatoes. This damage was of such an extent that it would wipe out any savings that could be made in 10 years or more by using the stems. We found another large grower who had a ton of baled tobacco stems stacked in his boiler room to be used for fumigation. This shows with what persistence growers adhere to methods. We believe, in the long run, a nicotine spray is cheaper, safer and more effective than any tobacco fumigation; and next to cyanide fumigation, the most efficient. In many places it is much more applicable than cyanide, as the nicotine spray is always available and always safe. Especially do we recommend the nicotine spray on young stock. The fact remains that if growers would plant out perfectly clean young stock, there would be little occasion to control aphis on the maturing crop. There is no such thing as spontaneous production, as some people believe—that is, that aphis grow on lettuce as a natural consequence. Young stock is especially subject to injury by tobacco smoke, such injury being often only slowly apparent, yet far-reaching in its effect upon the final result. One of the chief defects of smoke fumigation is the ever-present tendency to circulate in certain directions, avoiding ends and corners, and thus permitting breeding places for insects to remain. With the spray the opposite is a fact; we can give these ends and corners extra treatment, and sometimes, individual care if needed. We use a stronger formula than the directions on the package, aiming to apply as much nicotine as is necessary to kill without contact, simply by charging the air heavily. To this end, we spray all the surface—ends, walks and crop, preferably in the evening on a quiet night—as air currents reduce our chances for success. A nicotine spray can be made that is effective, yet safe, on cucumbers, tomatoes and radishes, which is not the case with smoke.

THE DIENER TOMATO

(BLIGHT PROOF)

The largest and most desirable Tomato ever created. Unexcelled for table use, for canning, for Tomato sauce, and for dehydration. Thirty-forty tons of ripe fruit of remarkably uniform size produced to the acre. The DIENER TOMATO PLANT is also blight-resisting. Thousands of acres of Tomatoes have been ruined in the last few years by blight, but this Tomato has been grown side by side with such varieties without being affected by blight. The fruit has reached a size of three pounds, but the average is one-pound fruit, unusually smooth. The flesh is more solid than of any other Tomato known, making this variety so valuable for dehydrating purposes. This Tomato is of a deep red color and very attractive to the eye. The DIENER TOMATO is specially useful in many localities for the fact that, after being properly started, it is practically drought-resisting. The DIENER TOMATO is an excellent shipping variety, ripe fruit having been successfully shipped from here to New York.

Price of DIENER TOMATO Seed, 50c per package, $1.50 per acre package.

Attar of Roses.

During the 12 years prior to the first Balkan war, that is, from 1900 to 1912, the manufacture of attar of roses in Bulgaria attained its highest development, according to Consul Graham H. Kemper at Sofia. During that period a large number of up-to-date factories equipped with modern steam stills were erected. The total area planted to roses increased to more than 20,000 acres. Owing to the three wars in which Bulgaria has taken part since 1912, the industry of rose culture for the production of attar of roses has experienced a decided setback. It is estimated that the present acreage planted to roses is not more than 15,000. The average annual production of attar of roses during the period from 1900 to 1912 was about 126,800 ounces. The production fell to 85,000 ounces in 1917, 85,000 ounces in 1918, and 52,000 ounces in 1919, and it is predicted that the present year's yield will show a further decrease.

During the war, owing to the fact that Bulgaria was cut off from the principal markets—New York, London, and Paris—the stocks of attar of roses remaining unsold increased until they reached a total of about 275,000 ounces, about 40 per cent of which is said to have been of inferior quality. About one-third of this total available stock was sent to the United States early in 1919 in part payment for flour imported from the United States; also some 17,000 ounces were shipped to the United States during the last quarter of the year. It is estimated that the present available stock in Bulgaria hardly exceeds 50,000 ounces, worth about $500,000.

It is stated by one of the best-known producers that under existing conditions the production of attar of roses is not a paying industry. Owing to the high prices for other farm products, at least 5,000 acres of rose gardens have been abandoned and the land planted to more remunerative crops, especially tobacco. Centralization, by the formation of a syndicate for the purpose of eliminating unnecessary expenses, is spoken of as the only course that will save the industry.

PRICES. The prices quoted are for dormant roots, which can usually be supplied until about the first of April, after which pot plants will be sent out and in which the advance in price will be as follows: All varieties listed at $7.00 or less per 100 will be supplied in pot plants at $8.00 per 100 or $70.00 per 1000, and on varieties listed above $7.00 per 100 there will be no change in price between dormant roots and pot plants. ALL HAVE GREEN FOLIAGE UNLESS OTHERWISE SPECIFIED.

TWELVE SPECIAL VARIETIES

Carmine Beauty. Deep bright carmine flowers freely produced high above the heavy dark-green foliage which has a narrow red margin 4½ ft., 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

Cheerfulness. No more appropriate name could be given to this brilliant novelty. Its beautiful bright fire-red or deep orange flowers appear early and continue without interruption until frost. Add to the prevailing color a golden border and center with each petal flaked carmine-crimson and you may form some conception of this fascinating variety. 3½ ft. 10 cts. each; 85 cts. per doz.; $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1.000.

City of Portland. A wonderful bright rosy-pink, much deeper in color than Mrs. Alfred Conard or Hungaria; a free-flowering, vigorous grower. 3½ ft. 20 cts. each; $2.00 per doz.; $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

Fairy Queen. The dwarf, compact plants of this distinct novelty are covered with flowers from spring until fall. The plant rarely exceeds 3 feet in height. The flowers, of a clear rose-pink, are of medium size, good substance and borne upright on stout stems in great abundance. Each flower has a distinct cream-colored border. We believe Fairy Queen will become one of the very popular Cannas. 60 cts. each; $6.00 per doz.; $50.00 per 100.

Flag of Truce. A large-flowered, creamy white with faint pink dots on each petal. The general effect is white. Not as white nor as tall as Eureka, but quite distinct and valuable. 4 ft. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.; $20.00 per 100.

Golden Eagle. A wonderful clear golden-yellow of free, upright growth. The flowers are produced in large clusters well above the foliage. 4 ft. 35c. each; $3.50 per doz.; $20.00 per 100.

Harmony. Great clusters of good-sized, well-formed Geranium red flowers are arranged on good stems in such a manner as to give the trusses an almost globular appearance. 3½ ft. 20 cts. each; $2.00 per doz.; $15.00 per 100.

Pocahontas (Bronze-leaved Olympic). Large oriental-red flowers borne on firm upright stems, just high enough above the foliage to show the entire head. The foliage is a dark bronze-green with emerald shadings; the ribs a darker bronze. 4 ft. 20 cts. each; $2.00 per doz.; $15.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

Poppy. Intense poppy-red. Large perfect florets in good trusses over greenish-bronzy foliage. Rich and effective. 5 ft. 20 cts. each; $2.00 per doz.; $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

Remarkable. This effective bronze-leaved variety stands out boldly among other sorts, not only on account of its height (6 ft.), but because of the beautiful scarlet-carmine trusses of bloom surmounting the rich green-bronze foliage. 20 cts. each; $2.00 per doz.; $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

Surprise. The brightest red Canna we have. It surpasses in brilliancy such popular varieties as Meteor and Lafayette and produces its great trusses with equal freedom. 4 to 5 ft. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.; $25.00 per 100.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

"NEW POMPON ANNABEL"

A sport from Mrs. E. D. Godfrey; is a sturdier grower with exceptionally good foliage. Has long stiff stems, well branched, with an unusual number of flowers about 3½-in. across. Excellent keeper, in bench, or cut. Color, a beautiful cerise, tending toward lavender. Flowers of anemone type, with several rows of petals, and yellow center. Season of blooming, Thanksgiving to Christmas. Past season, I cut the first on Dec. 2nd and the last Jan. 10th. It is far better than parent, or any other Pompon and will bring more money.

Sold under agreement that you permit no other person to obtain stock until 1922. Prices, 2¼-in. pots $3.00 per dozen; $20.00 per hundred. Rooted cuttings, $15.00 per 100. Sold out to about May 15. After that will have about 5,000 a week. Can be benched as late as Aug. 15 for good crop.

Cast Iron Boiler Cracked in Two Years.

We have a No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler. It takes care of 7,000 sq. ft. of glass; it would take care of twice that amount.

I first had a cast iron boiler, which lasted two years, when it cracked to pieces. The second was a second-hand boiler.

I consider your boiler the best paying investment I ever made.

Cast Iron Boilers Cause Freeze-out—Kroeschell Boilers No Worry.

I bought a No. 2 boiler in 1902. Takes care of 4,000 sq. ft. of glass—would take care of 2,000 more. I have had a cast iron boiler, but it broke down twice in four years, always in the coldest weather. It broke down Dec. 29, 1904, and I lost all my stock in consequence. I have now two No. 2 and one No. 6 Kroeschell boilers and do not worry about their breaking down.

ABUNDANT SUPPLY AND BETTER DEMAND.

Trade has shown a decided improvement during the past week with generous arrivals of stock and prices unchanged. Spring flowers are in great demand and clean up easily each day. Roses and carnations are slow. Violets are plentiful and quantities are sold by the street merchants. Tausenschon and Dorothy Perkins rose plants are much in favor with genistas, lilac and bulbous stock coming next. There are also quite a few Easter lilies at prices ranging from 20 to 40 cents.

NOTES.

In our notes, issue of March 6, it was erroneously reported that the firms of B. A. Snyder & Co. and H. M. Robinson & Co. had consolidated. The two concerns interested in the merger are the Boston Floral Supply Co. and B. A. Snyder & Co., under the new name of Boston Floral Supply & Snyder Company.

The Beacon Florists in the Houghton-Dutton building reports very good business stimulated by more moderate prices. This firm has begun the manufacture of artificial flowers and is booking good orders.

Frank Edgar has been featuring a fine stock of French hydrangeas. His rose plants, genistas, Darwin tulips and jonquils also show good form.

Demonstration Farms in New Brunswick.

The federal department of agriculture is about to take up farm-extension work on a rather extensive scale, according to Consul B. M. Rasmusen at Moncton in Commerce Reports. Demonstration farms, 12 in number, are to be established in different parts of the province, one of these to be located near the city of Moncton. The plan is under the direction of the Dominion government, and it is the intention to increase the number of demonstration farms from year to year. Although agriculture is the leading industry in the province of New Brunswick, it may be said to be in its infancy, as the area under cultivation is but a small per cent of the tillable land. The official announcement states that the farms upon which the demonstration areas will be selected will be along roadsides where they can be seen by people passing. Good seed will be provided in order that the farmers of all parts of the country may have an opportunity of seeing the value of good seed and proper methods of cultivating. The crops which are raised on these farms will vary and will be in keeping with the kind of produce which is raised in the respective districts. A man will be selected to take charge of the work in the province, and the farms upon which the demonstration areas will be placed will be selected by the representatives of the federal department of agriculture, upon the recommendation of the officials of the provincial department.

Manure on Garden Lands.

American gardeners could well afford to learn a lesson from the French growers regarding the use of manure on their land, according to the United States department of agriculture. In some cases where French gardeners are working on rented land, a clause in the lease provides that should the gardener be required to vacate the land, he is permitted to remove the top soil to a specified depth. It is customary to apply anywhere from four to eight inches of manure a year on French gardens. This is composted and mixed with the soil and in the course of a few weeks becomes a part of the soil itself. It is needless to state that some enormous crops are grown on this land.

While it would not be possible for American gardeners to secure sufficient quantities of manure to apply it at the rate that is used by the French gardeners, yet an effort should be made to secure as much of this material as possible and put it directly upon the land where intensive crops are to be grown. The plan of having a compost heap in one corner of the garden where everything in the nature of manure can be piled and composted together is a good one. Into this pile should go all weeds that do not bear objectionable seeds, pieces of sod, clippings from the lawn, leaves and manure. By turning the pile at intervals, a rich, mellow material is produced which is suitable for top dressing the garden soil. Owing to the limited quantity of manure available at present, its use should be restricted to those crops that make a quick growth and require plenty of fertility in the soil.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—W. A. Adams of this city, secretary of the New York State Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs, is a member of the conference which is endeavoring to secure the appropriation of $500,000 for a suitable horticultural building at the state fair grounds.

Acid Phosphate.

A new $75,000 experimental fertilizer production plant at Anaconda, Mont., will have a daily capacity of 50 tons of what is termed double acid phosphate fertilizer, commanding a price which will be somewhat greater than for the ordinary grade in consequence of its greater solubility and fertilizing factors. There are less than half a dozen phosphate plants in the country and confidence is expressed by the Anaconda officials that before long the company will become one of the leading factors in the manufacture of fertilizer, so extensive are the deposits of phosphate rock in southern Montana, within close rail distance of the Washoe works with still larger beds in central Idaho.

German Taxes.

Under the new German national and local tax law, the first 1,000 marks of income are not assessed. After that, the tax is 10 per cent for the second 1,000 marks, and there is a one per cent increase for every 1,000 up to 15,000 marks. Incomes in excess of 500,000 marks must pay a tax of 60 per cent. An income of 100,000 marks would pay over half of that amount to the state. Local taxes are likely to consume an additional 20,000 marks. In addition, indirect taxes are expected to yield about 11,000,000,000 marks per year, which will add materially to the cost of living for the next few years.

In Eden.

Adam was heartbroken when he was deported from the Garden of Eden. "How I hate to leave all these lovely flowers, violets and all that sort of thing," he said.

"Get your revenge," said the serpent. "Be a florist, and charge three dollars a bunch for them."—Daily Newspaper.

Packers' Victory.

Francis J. Heney, special investigator of the Federal Trade Commission in the packers' case, says to the New York Sun from Los Angeles that the compromise agreement is a big victory for the Big Five packers, and calls the settlement a surrender of public's rights. He says it will not cut prices and will perpetuate monopolistic powers in form only, and that it will be even less effective than the judicial dissolution of the Standard Oil Co. proved to be.

Senator Borah says: "I want to know what is to become of the great stockyards when given up by the packers. These men may be sincere in their declaration that they will discontinue their business from all collateral lines, but I want that fact positively established before there is any abandonment of the plan proposed for drastic government supervision."

NEW YORK SPRING SHOW.

Show Grand Success.

The opening days of the show were well covered in our issue of March 20. On Friday, there was another keen competition in displays of cut roses, each covering 300 square feet, the first prize, $500, being won by the Duckham-Pierson Co., Madison, N. J. The exhibit was splendidly arranged by A. T. Bunyard, the well known retailer of 413 Madison avenue. In the display were the following varieties: Hadley, Russell, Ophelia, Premier, Columbia and Double White Killarney. Pots of cibotium distributed among the vases, added to the attractiveness of the exhibit of most excellent stock. The second prize, $300, went to F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y. This was also a splendid exhibit along similar lines as his display of March 16. A third prize was awarded A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.

The Carnations.

There was a very interesting display of carnations, both from commercial and private growers. The former were staged on the main floor along aisles surrounding the fountain and Pierson fern exhibit. A. N. Pierson's vase of 100 Hope Henshaw, a deep rich pink, made a good impression. Strouts, Inc., Biddeford, Me., exhibited 100 Maine Sunshine, a fine yellow, also 100 very choice Laddie and 100 of a pink sport of Matchless, a striking flower. One hundred of a deep rich pink, no name, won the first prize for dark pink. One hundred Donald, a splendid large maroon, made a fine showing and 100 White Delight had flowers of perfect shape and substance. They also staged a vase of 50 Maine Sunshine for competition in any variety not in commerce.

Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., staged several varieties. One hundred Rosette made a fine vase and Gay Gorden and Kilties, his own seedlings, striped varieties, shades of red on a white ground, are very striking. Romeo is another seedling, a good red. The Springfield Floral Co., Springfield, N. J., entered two vases of 100 each, Belle Washburn and White Benora, very choice flowers, also a vase of 100 Enchantress Supreme. F. B. Abrams, Blue Point, N. Y., had the best white, getting the blue ribbon for his 100 Matchless. Curtis Thim, Roslyn, N. Y., had a vase of superb Benora. Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C., exhibited a vase of 100 of their seedling pink, Democracy, for the best light pink; also a vase of 50 flowers of the same for the best variety not in commerce. They were very good blooms. Wm. Haas & Son, Irvington, N. J., entered a seedling, a fine stiff-stemmed light pink. Herman Schwarz, Central Park, N. Y., staged a superb new pink on the order and color of Enchantress Supreme, but a larger flower, a good variety. Samuel Goddard, Framingham, Mass., exhibited a vase of 100 Laddie which was perfection itself and easily won first prize.

The carnation exhibits by amateur growers consisted of nearly 60 vases. All the flowers showed good culture. There were a number of entries for the arranged vase of carnations, William Kleinheinz, gardener to Joseph E. Widener, Ogontz, Pa., winning the blue ribbon with an artistic creation in a brown wicker, urn-like basket, the blooms used being Laddie and varieties of white superb flowers.

Sweet Peas.

The sweet pea exhibits were leading features and real attractions, March 19. George W. Kerr of the W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa., a real wizard in sweet peas, came from Fordhook and brought 50 fine varieties which he arranged in a way that could not fail to win admiration. He used a background of black velvet, and Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri was tastefully worked in among the vases. In addition to the first prize for the display covering 100 square feet, a new salmon shade, named Mrs. George W. Kerr, was awarded a certificate of merit. Another, Fordhook Rose, was very noticeable, and his Flamingo received special mention.

The exhibit of Herman Mammitch, of Rockville Center, N. Y., which took second prize in the 100-foot competition, also contained fine stock. He also exhibited a novelty sport of Rose Queen that received a certificate of merit.

Interesting Exhibits.

The new Easter lily exhibited by A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y., had all the dealers and growers guessing. Its exceptionally broad, heavy foliage and the large, perfect flowers made it stand out as a distinct and desirable improvement over any other variety of longiflorum. Mr. Miller, when urged to give its name, answered facetously that it was the genuine Easter lily, grown in Jamaica sand, mixed with a little brains.

The brasso-cattleya hybrid, named by Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Mavahone, is a large fringed white flower with a shading of pink in the throat, deepening almost to cerise. This plant carried three superb flowers and was kept under a glass shade. It was always the center of an admiring throng. The cattleya, named in honor of General Pershing, a variety of Schroederæ, is the deepest shade of pink in this type of orchid. It was raised by Joseph Manda, and was also an interesting feature.

J. A. Peterson's new begonia, Peerless, was given a silver medal. The small plants exhibited in three-inch pots, were a mass of flowers, scarcely any of the foliage being visible.

The schizanthus exhibited by Wm. B. Thompson, Yonkers, N. Y., were wonderfully trained and flowered, their beehive forms being a mass of bloom.

A miniature rock garden, about four by six feet, set on a table in the balcony, allowed a close inspection of the various plants used, all of which were plainly labeled. It was without name of exhibitor, and attracted considerable attention.

The Robert Craig Co.'s group of ferns was very artistically arranged and contained wonderfully fine specimens of the nephrolepis family. Groups of crotons and other foliage plants, giganteum lilies and a new double daisy, called Craigii, were also features of this exhibit.

The trained and dwarfed bougainvilleas exhibited by A. N. Pierson, Inc., were very striking in their mass of color. Some in basket form, and others trained as globes and pyramids, looked the ideal for sales at Easter.

What Wallace Pierson called the two best foliage plants in the show, were handsome specimens of Dracæna Victoria, every leaf from the pot up perfect and splendidly colored. These were in the 200 square foot group of foliage plants of W. B. Thompson.

The exhibits of Primulas obconica and malacoides staged on the balcony, all contained superb plants with a great show of flowers. In the Adolph Lewisohn entries, were two plants of a deep magenta color, which are said to be the real malacoides.

Chas. T. Beasley, Milton, Mass., exhibited fine strains of pansies, cut flowers on long stems, mostly lavender shades, for which he received a silver medal.

That vegetables as well as flowers can be grown in greenhouses, is proved by Nathan Ireland, gardener for Chas. M. Schwab, Loretta, Pa., who exhibited in a very decorative manner a varied collection of vegetables grown under glass. Each variety was placed on white lace paper. The exhibit won a gold medal.

The exhibits of Dutch bulbous plants in flower were of very good quality, the Darwin tulips being particularly fine. All of the pot plants in the balcony displays would have shown to better advantage if the tables on which they were arranged had been a foot lower. It is then possible to get, as it were, a bird's eye view which gives details that are lost except to plants as seen on the outer rows.

The floor plan of the exhibition had been given a great deal of thought by Manager Arthur Herrington, and in its changed appearance gave the whole display a different character. The usual long center aisles were blocked or shut off at intervals with beautiful exhibits, cross aisles of the same width diverging at these points to others at right angles. The effect was very good, as there was always something interesting in view just ahead.

The management regretted that more interest was not taken by retail florists, there being an exceptional opportunity to show flowers and their decorative effects to the best people of the city. Max Schling, Inc., made a great hit with their store and its painted landscape background. The handsome baskets and other arrangements of cut flowers as seen in the show windows, changed daily, were very fine, while the attractograph was almost a motion picture with its constantly changing views of artistically arranged bouquets, baskets, or decorated plants, all in colors true to nature. This was one of the best exhibits in the hall.

There is one feature of this magnificent exhibition that should receive the best thought of the management, and that is the artistic arrangement of the various cut flower exhibits after the prizes have been awarded. Cut flowers are beautiful in themselver, but to see a hundred long stemmed roses or carnations crammed or huddled together in a tall red fibre jar, which is often pushed back in a corner, apparently to get it out of the way, is certainly not using them to the best advantage, or in any way enhancing their beauty. Everything looks best when dressed up, and flowers are no exception. It would cost a comparatively small sum to engage a store artist or two, decorators, who with the necessary material, would soon transform these crowded jars, these masses which hide one another's beauty, into artistically arranged vases or groups of the same that would add greatly to their effectiveness and the appearance of the whole exhibition.

NEW YORK SPRING SHOW.
Business Booths at West End of Hall.

At this writing, full details of the attendance and receipts cannot be given, but it can be said that it has been a success. We have been advised that up to March 19, the receipts had exceeded the entire receipts of the last show held in the Grand Central palace. There is credit enough to go around, but we are inclined to award a large share of it to the exhibitors, who in the face of many difficulties, brought forward their stock; brought it to the palace, and arranged it in pleasing shape. F. W. Payne, who had the general management, and Arthur Herrington, superintendent of the exhibits, Charles H. Totty and others that took an active interest, are also entitled to much credit. Some good words are also due the public, as without its liberal patronage, the show would have been a failure. The interest taken by florists of other cities is also worthy of note.

Publicity and Attendance.

The newspapers, both for a week before and while the show was on, gave considerable space in their reading columns together with illustrations. This work was in the hands of a competent bureau who featured every item of news that could be put across.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson opened the show by pressing a telegraphic key in Washington, and also christened an orchid. Each day's programme of the Allied Loyalty League tea garden was different. General Pershing and his staff were the guests on America's day, Monday. Tuesday, Gov. Smith and his staff visited the show and were entertained in the garden. This was England's day; Wednesday was France's; Thursday, Italy's; Friday, Russia's; Saturday, Belgium's and Servia's, and Sunday was all allies' day. Pictures of the society ladies and their aids in costume, with writeups of the notable visitors, were headliners in all the papers throughout the week and did much to boost the show. The attendance from the first day ran ahead of the last show, Wednesday's being a record for any of the exhibitions up to date. With the admittance at $1.00, and 10c extra tax, as against 50c at all previous periods, the financial success seems assured.

The Trade Exhibits.

The different firms who engage room in which to dispay their various stocks, occupied booths or enclosed spaces next the walls of the entire first floor. The front of the building, on the balcony, was taken by the Allied Loyalty League tea room, but all the rest of the space bordering the walls was occupied by various business houses. Visitors appeared as interested in the trade exhibits as in the plants and cut flowers, and all appeared to be doing well; in fact, in the busiest hours of the day and evening, their organizations were taxed to the utmost to handle the crowds.

American Rose Society.

PRES. PYLE'S ANNUAL ADDRESS.

The business of the American Rose Society is to promote, not alone the interests of any one section or separate group of people. Our business is broader than that. It is to promote the interest in roses for all the people. We aim to develop the rose and the use of the rose in order to help carry to every corner of our continent her message to mortals. We do not participate in rose growing because we love to do battle with fungoids and parasites. No—but rather because of what the rose means to us, and what we aim that it shall mean to others. We would eliminate missteps by illuminating the pathway to success in the rose garden. By inducing and helping more men to know and grow their own roses; we would teach them to know the language of the rose and grow more devoted to this recreation and pleasure which "age cannot wither."

In reporting to you, of the past year's activities and present condition of the American Rose Society, I feel an embarrassment of riches. It is not easy to select that which would prove of greatest interest. May I not, however, present what seems to me to be the fundamental facts in the case, as we look forward to another year of progress. What is our present foundation and what our vision of the future?

First, the American Rose Society now includes a growing and representative membership, both amateur and professional, exceeding 1,700 in number and representing all parts of the United States, and much of the world. The work of the society is conducted by a group of unselfish rosarians, whose loyalty and ability have been abundantly proven.

Second, carefully planned rose test gardens have been established under the direction of the American Rose Society, in Washington, in co-operation with the department of agriculture; at Ithaca, with Cornell University, and in co-operation with the park departments of Hartford, St. Paul and Portland, Oregon. These test gardens are each under direct charge of a selected local committee, appointed by the American Rose Society.

Third, there exists the beginning of a system of affiliated local rose societies, each holding meetings and arranging lectures and shows to arouse wider and more intelligent interest in roses among all types of people. These organizations profit in the way of literature, prizes and supervision by affiliation with the American Rose Society.

Fourth, a great inducement to members in the American Rose Society, is the privilege not otherwise obtainable of receiving the American Rose Annual, edited by J. Horace McFarland. This yearly volume is a noteworthy permanent record of rose progress and rose thoughts.

Thus, with a capable and enthusiastic personnel, with established rose test facilities for every important climatic zone of America, with a developing equipment for promoting local organized rose efforts, with the Rose Annual focusing the collection and distribution of up-to-date rose information, it is apparent that the American Rose Society is ready to adequately serve in promoting a great rose advance.

Now, what is our rose vision for America? Millions of homes throughout this land have not yet sensed real rose joy. Upon us is the duty of stimulating in them the love of roses. Indeed, with the encouraging example of England, we now know we can, we must, nationalize the love for roses. To realize this vision, personal effort is necessary, and on behalf of the executive officers, I urge every member to work for the accomplishment of the following definite aims:

First, that in every American city with a working park department, there should be established a public rose garden. Please write us if your town is interested.

Second, that we should at least treble in 1920 the number of local rose societies, and promote the holding in that year at least, of 10 times as many local rose shows as have heretofore been held. If 10 people in your community are interested, please write our secretary for suggestions.

Third, that we should provide means to increase largely the prizes and honoraria available to hybridizers of worthy roses, or to any one making a note-in reference to plans already formed in this direction.

Fourth, and most important, that we should at least double our membership within the next year. Every member would profit by such increase, for increased income will make possible the needed publication of an authoritative American Rose Manual and of a complete American rose catalogue.

Will you not help to realize this vision for American rose prosperity by inviting to membership your friends who ought to be interested?

Boston Orchid Show.

The great orchid and general spring show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society opened at Horticultural hall, Boston, March 24. The array of orchids was wonderful and said to be one of the largest and best ever brought together in this country. The display of A. C. Burrage, Beverly Farms, completely filled the large lecture room, which was arranged as a forest scene. Cypripediums and other like plants were seen growing on rockwork and mossy mounds around the room, while five massive tree trunks, surmounted by cibotiums, occupied the center of the floor space, to which were attached, as if growing in their natural habitat, cattleyas, phalænopsis, oncidiums and other orchids. At one end of the hall were arranged very large plants of cattleyas, carrying from 40 to 80 blooms. Groups or mounds of phalænopsis, lycastes and cymbidiums were features. An immense bank, covering the west wall, contained in great variety a magnificent collection of the choicest orchids in cultivation. The main hall was a gorgeous sight, the central feature being the collection of new Japanese azaleas from the Arnold Arboretum, brought from Japan by E. H. Wilson. This was flanked on either side by the rich collection of acacias exhibited by Thos. Roland of Nahant. The Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., staged a splendid collection of orchid plants. In the main hall, other features were groups of striking flowers and specimen plants which included all the popular varieties. The R. & J. Farquhar Co.'s exhibit at the end of the main hall, with its Regale lilies, the central feature, and Kaempferi azaleas, was very striking. The side hall contained specimen orchid plants, cut sprays and exhibits of other cut flowers. Magnificently flowered cyclamens were a feature here. Taken altogether, it was one of the most beautiful exhibitions ever staged by the society.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

PENN, of Boston, Mass., is making a feature of trimming ladies' hats with live spring flowers.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

The coming week is the busiest period of the year. The strain is bound to be severe, even where the best of systems prevail, and when work that should have been done or made ready some time before to help out in the rush, is also crowded into the week, the task seems at times almost insurmountable. As far as possible, the work of carrying on the great extra volume of the week's business should be divided into departments, and those of the force best fitted to manage, given in charge of each. The greenhouse or plant man can receive and "OK" stock and bills, also see to its arrangement and watering. The best counter salesman should have charge of the sales force, the marking up and featuring of the plants, baskets and other combinations. The maker-up can handle and care for the cut flowers and take charge of the design work. The deliveryman sees to the wrapping and preparation of the stock and all the details of local and out of town delivery, hiring of extra cars, etc. The bookkeeping force can greatly help by working with the salespeople in filling out sales slips, writing tags, addresses on customers' envelopes, and seeing that orders are correctly made out as to day and hour of delivery, and properly filed. All the various department heads will need more or less help, and this while often inexperienced, can with a little coaching, be made quite effective. In some stores where the business is thoroughly organized, and the preparatory work right up to the minute, much less extra help is required and things work along with almost clock-like precision.

Easter is a harvest time for all the trade. The grower turns from three to six months' labor into cash, and the retailer has the opportunity to do an enormous business in catering to his entire list of customers, for almost everybody buys something at Easter, and in addition, there are many transient visitors who, if well served, may become permanent patrons.

Intelligent buying, and being able to closely estimate the store's requirements, is a great factor in the success of the week's business. The stock, particularly toward the last, when it is running low, should be kept together and arranged so as to make the best possible showing.

Plants that have lost a flower or two, or are otherwise impaired, can often be made salable by putting two together. Plant baskets that look a bit passe may be brightened up with a flowering or foliage plant or a spray or two of flowers in a flower tube hidden in the foliage.

At times when there are a few good things that perhaps were priced a bit too high, or for some reason did not meet the public fancy, and are likely to be left, they should be used to pay or recognize some of the store's obligations. Hotels or others of influence, who keep the firm in mind when something in flowers or decorations is repuired, or a good custemer to whom a handsome plant with the season's greetings will be a pleasant surprise, will all greatly appreciate such attention, and which will be worth all it costs in increased good will.

The greatest care should be taken to see that all plants and basket combinations are well watered before being sent out, as plants such as hydrangeas, spiræas, or rambler roses in full flower that are not quite wet when delivered will be a sorry sight the next morning after a night in a warm dry room.

It is much better policy to keep everybody under pressure all day so that the work does not get behind, and in this way avoid staying late at night. Twenty-four hours at a stretch, may be considered necessary and seems impossible to avoid at times, but even in the most strenuous periods, six hours out of the 24 should be set aside for sleep, as it will be more than gained in the pep of the succeeding day.

Service.

One of the most successful retail florists of the country declares that the keynote of the increasing and profitable business is service—more service, better service, superior service, a never ending desire to give the best service possible, and then charge for it. People, he claimed, were always glad to pay a good price when they knew, or felt, they were getting the worth of their money. The firm whose stock is always fresh and of the best quality, who are bright and alert, keeping their store attractive, plants and flowers well displayed, samples of their work made up, and by their unceasing energy get a record for prompt service, will never lack for business, and are nearly always sure of a hand in everything of importance in social or business events in their city or surrounding territory. In his opinion, it is a mistake to try and win trade with stock of inferior grades, or by underselling a competitor. It is much better to put quality, artistic excellence and finish into the work, not "how cheap, but how good," which, with careful packing, handling, and delivery on time, comes near to the perfect service that is so necessary.

From the time to open the shop in the morning, until the closing hour, try and keep service to the front in everything that is done. Visitors and customers should be given the best possible attention; everyone must go away with a good impression of the store and its methods. Ladies should be given a flower to wear, and there must always be something for the children.

Especial attention at this establishment is given to orders coming in over the phone, which method of shopping is now so universal. In many such cases, quick service is imperative, and when properly rendered, much appreciated.

The well kept outside appearance of the store, with its plant decorations, fresh looking signs, together with a well arranged window, are all indications of good service.

No store that strives for efficient delivery will tolerate a dingy looking car. These will be kept bright and fresh from frequent trips to the shop, examples, wherever seen, of the excellence of the firm's service.

Cut flower boxes, with the firm's name prominently displayed, should be in keeping with the use made of them. The elegant corsage or choice collection of cut flowers, will be lowered in quality, if packed in a cheap looking box. Boxes, tags, paper, string or wrapping tape are all, in their varying degrees of quality, evidences of the kind of service the store gives.

The personality of the progressive florist, when it is thoroughly and indelibly stamped into every department of the store's service, is a great asset to the business. The name, wherever seen, is then a guarantee of excellence and perfect service and the proprietor has then attained the coveted name of leading florist of his city.

Galvin, Inc., Appointments.

At the recent annual meeting of the directors of Thomas F. Galvin, Inc., Boston, Mass., Charles F. Boyle was elected president and general manager. Mr. Boyle has been connected with the firm for over 22 years, 10 of which were spent as manager at 799 Boylston street, and for the last year, as general manager of the firm's two Boston stores and also its New York store. James J. Slattery, for over 20 years with the firm, recently manager of sales, becomes assitant general manager, and in charge of the store at 1 Park street. Both are prominent in the trade, and have been conspicuous in placing the firm in its acknowledged foremost position among retail concerns in this country. John R. McDonough advances to a manager's berth at the Boylston street store, and the New York store continues under the able direction of R. A. Hale. Both are younger men full of enthusiasm and with promising careers at their bidding.

The firm's business has increased by leaps and bounds during the last year. With an incomparable staff working hard for success, it is to be congratulated upon its unique position in the flower world, where for 73 years, its leadership has brought international fame. Responsible connections have been made with every corner of the globe, and among its clientele are found leaders in any civilized country.

Society of American Florists.

PUBLICITY COMMITTEE MEETING.

A meeting of the publicity committee was held at the offices of the society, 1170 Broadway, New York, March 18, at which were present Chairman Henry Penn, Boston, Mass.; George Asmus, Chicago; C. C. Pollworth, Milwaukee, Wis.; Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.; Major P. F. O'Keefe, Boston, Mass.; H. V. Swenson, Chicago, and Secretary John Young, New York.

The secretary presented a report, showing in detail the fund available for the use of the committee. Major O'Keefe submitted a copy for a broadside, which, meeting the approval of the committee, he was authorized to send out. Mr. Asmus moved, and the motion was seconded by Mr. Ammann, that the sum of $20,000 be appropriated for advertising in the magazines, during the period ending with September. A roll call vote was taken on the motion, and it was carried unanimously. The matter of having an audit of the books of the campaign made at the same time as the audit of the treasurer's books coming under discussion on motion of Mr. Pierson, seconded by Mr. Ammann, it was directed that the books be sent to an auditor in the convention city at convention time, and the finance committee was instructed to make the necessary arrangements.

H. V. Swenson was given the floor to explain a proposition he had made to handle all the dealers' helps used in the campaign from his office in Chicago, including a drive on the stickers, posters and folders for Mothers' day. After some discussion, Mr. Ammann moved that Mr. Swenson's proposition be accepted; that all the promotion buerau stock be turned over to Mr. Swenson at his Chicago office, and that he should render to the secretary promptly each week an account of all sales made; and that the secretary, or other authorized person, have access to sales records at any time for the purpose of checking accounts; that Mr. Swenson shall also submit at the annual meeting of the publicity committee, a regularly audited report in detail covering sales, and royalties due for the year's work; and that on the twentieth day of each month, Mr. Swenson shall forward to the secretary's office all moneys collected on account of sales; and that a committee of three be appointed to draw up a contract with Mr. Swenson on the terms arranged. The motion was seconded by Mr. Pierson and carried. It was also arranged that Mr. Swenson handle this business under the style "Florists' Publicity Service Bureau of the S. A. F.," and that all cheques be made payable to the bureau.

National Publicity for Flowers.

At a meeting of the publicity committee, held in New York, March 18, the committee gave instructions that arrangements be made to cover magazine advertising until September to the extent of $20,000. This was an amount much less than it was anticipated could be spent, as funds had not come in as the committee had a right to expect they would. They believed, however, that the slogan, "Say it With Flowers," could be maintained, special flower days taken care of, and impetus given to regular daily business with a proper use of the money. They had hoped to have had twice as much available at this season, and they would have had it, had the now very large army of non-subscribers responded to the appeals so constantly made to them.

There was a very large attendance of the trade at the flower show held in New York during the week the publicity committee held its meeting. The campaign work was the subject of conversation among the many little groups gathered at different times in the Grand Central Palace, and it was generally agreed that it was wrong to call one who had subscribed to the publicity fund a contributor; he should be called an investor, because his subscription was an investment rather than a contribution. All were greatly pleased at the result of the campaign so far, and expressed themselves as willing to go the limit in their support.

The Von Tilzer song, "Say It With Flowers," is now, we are informed, to go out as a phonograph record through one of the big companies. Judging from its reception everywhere, as a vocal number, the sale for it as a record should be large, and the publicity for the slogan immense and lasting. This is only one of the sources for publicity of a valuable sort which our committee has been able to promote and which costs us practically nothing.

Have you thought anything of our billboard proposition yet? Spring is here, and the ground is being opened everywhere. Very shortly, that never ending line of travel past your establishment, if you are on a good highway, will begin to move for the season, and a billboard properly displayed would add to our publicity a good deal, and, incidentally, identify you as an up-to-date florist. About 100 signs have already been placed, and there are more to go out. The cost of a sign is $50, and is well worth the money, if used only to hide a bit of unsightliness.

But do not forget your subscription to the fund—your investment. The magazines will undoubtedly have to limit the space available for advertising in their fall numbers, unless the paper supply situation changes materially for the better. It is not too soon to contract for October, November, and even December issues, but how can contracts be made unless the money to pay for them is in sight. If those whose purses are not easy just now, will send in a pledge, with payment at a certain time specified, they provide encouragement for our committee, and their plans can be worked out, but we have no right to expect them to assume liabilities without a prospect of meeting them.

Why not send in your subscription, or pledge, at once? You will feel better for having done so.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

National Association of Gardeners.

NEW YORK CONFERENCE.

A conference of gardeners under the auspices of the National Association of Gardeners was held March 18 in the Engineering building, New York. Robert Weeks, of Cleveland, O., ex-president of the association presided. The conference was called to give the members an opportunity to discuss the aims of the association, and the operation of the service bureau, and to formulate plans for a campaign to interest young men in the profession of gardening.

W. N. Craig, of Brookline, Mass., presented a communication from the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, directing attention to Quarantine Bill No. 37 and its detriment to horticultural progress in the United States, and asked that a delegate be appointed to represent the organization officially at a meeting to be held during the month of May, at which various horticultural interests are to be represented. The association voted to be represented at this meeting.

Following the meeting of the association, a statement was issued to the New York papers by an unidentified source, evidently with malicious intent, that the association had gone on record as in favor of the exclusion act, preventing the importation of plants. This, of course, is an untruth as the National Association of Gardeners from the first has been strongly opposed to Quarantine Bill No. 37, and the discrimination now practised by the federal horticultural board, in favoring those who have been friendly to it, while discriminating against those who have had courage to express their views regarding the injustice of this measure, is not weakening the opposition to it of the professional gardeners.

The workings and immediate future plans of the service bureau were explained and generally discussed by the members from the floor, following which a motion was carried, heartily endorsing what has been accomplished by this department of the association.

Alexander Michie, chairman of the service bureau publicity fund, made a strong appeal for greater support on the part of members towards this fund, so that the work may be carried out which has been planned. His appeal met with immediate response among many of those present who came forward after the meeting to subscribe to the fund.

The discussion regarding the possibility of interesting young men in the profession of gardening, drew forth optimistic expressions from most of those who spoke on the subject, while a few were rather pessimistic in their views of the success of bringing young men into the gardening profession, while other vocations appear to be offering so much more lucrative advantages. It was regarded, however, by all present that the gardening profession is confronted by a serious problem at the present time, due to the inability to secure young men as assistants, and it cannot look forward as in the past to Europe to supply them, for among the ranks of young men of the profession who entered the war, the sacrifice of life was a heavy one.

The relation between the employer and the gardener came in for considerable discussion, with opinions about equally divided that both were blameworthy for the lack of confidence existing between them.

At an executive meeting of the trustees and board of directors of the association, held earlier in the day, at which W. N. Craig, of Massachusetts; Robert Weeks, of Ohio; George W. Hess, of Washington, D. C.; John Barnet of Pennsylvania; Robert Williamson of Connecticut; Joseph Tansey, James Stuart, Daniel Coughlin, of New York; Arthur Smith and M. C. Ebel, of New Jersey, were present, the recommendation of the last convention that the 1920 annual meeting be held in St. Louis was favorably acted upon. The secretary was authorized in conjunction with the committee appointed at the last convention, to develop plans immediately to bring the advantages that the position offers, to the attention of young men who may be interested.

A communication was received from President L. P. Jensen, of St. Louis, Mo., regretting his inability to attend the meeting and the conference, owing to the new development work which he has just undertaken in connection with his position, and containing a number of recommendations which were acted upon by the executive board. President Jensen wrote that he would be glad to receive suggestions from officials and members of the association, bearing on its welfare and the profession which it represents.

On March 17, W. N. Craig appeared before the Garden Club of America at its annual meeting at the Colony Club of New York, and addressed a large audience composed of its members on the "Professional Gardener from His Viewpoint." Mr. Craig ably presented the cause of the professional gardener, and judging by the hearty reception his remarks received, his views met with the endorsement of those who listened to him. Mr. Craig also spoke of the iniquities of Quarantine Bill No. 37, which met with general approval, the Garden Club of America passing a resolution unanimously as opposed to the measure.

Pennsylvania Horticultural Society.

A very large audience was present at the lecture of this society, March 16, the subject being, "Perennials and Bulbous Plants", given by E. I. Wilde, assistant professor of floriculture at the Pennsylvania State College. The lecturer said in part:

"I like to consider the garden as a place of recreation, a place in which one may secure the necessary relaxation from the mental strain of the office, shop, or any daily toil; a beautiful spot where one may meditate in perfect quietude. Flowers demand our attention, for are we not all more or less sentimental? They are magnetic in their appeal to be better known and properly placed in our own old fashioned gardens. Old fashioned gardens! I know no better name for all natural plantings of herbaceous perennials. Those of us who have only a limited space in which to grow flowers, have perhaps made the acquaintance of a few plants which are superior to those already in the bed. These are all individual problems applicable to your own garden. We should not, however, concentrate only on our flower problems; we should think of the other fellow's garden and help him to straighten out his perplexities. Every home should boast of a few of these perennial plants. Before we can realize this, people must be taught love for the beautiful. This can very readily be accomplished, through individual effort or co-operative effort such as a garden club. This organization is doing a good deal in disseminating and awakening an interest in ornamental horticultural material. This garden movement is still in its infancy but gaining in momentum very rapidly, which is shown most clearly by the number of new nurseries which are springing up throughout the east and the advance of the industry in the west and southwest."

The exhibits of plants and flowers at this lecture was the best during the winter season. Philadelphia has always been noted for those specimen plants of cinerarias, both the hybrid and stellata varieties, and the specimens shown maintained this reputation. A. B. Johnson, Rosemont, Pa., (Wm. Comfort, Gr.), took first prize for cinerarias; and Mrs. S. F. Wheeler, Bryn Mawr, Pa., (Wm. Fowler, Gr.), took second prize.

A special feature of the exhibition, was a plant of schizanthus, exhibited by S. T. Bodine, Villa Nova, Pa., (Alex. MacLeod, Gr.). This plant, to which the first prize was awarded, was covered with flowers of a rich copper bronze color. It was very attractive, standing out clear among all the other exhibits. Second prize was awarded to Mrs. S. F. Wheeler, with a much larger well grown plant, but of the old type of light colored flowers. Mrs. J. Leslie Davis, Haverford, Pa., (Frank Coll, Gr.), took first prize for roses. In cut flowers, Dr. R. V. Mattison, Ambler, Pa., (O. A. Muller, Gr.), took first prize for carnations and A. B. Johnson, was first for specimen lily and also for stocks. W. S. Ellis, Bryn Mawr, Pa., (Axel Lindroth, Gr.), was awarded the first prize for tulips, mixed varieties. There were also many fine specimen plants exhibited not for competition, including azaleas, cyclamens, Primula obconica and stocks, and in cut flowers there were vases of sweet peas, gardenias and hyacinths.

The next lecture of the society will be April 13, when Professor A. C. Beal, secretary of the American Gladiolus Society, will give an illustrated lecture on "Gladioli."

Michigan State Florists' Association.

The first annual meeting of the Michigan State Florists's Association was held in the gymnasium hall of the Michigan Agricultural College, East Lansing, March 16-17, and the exhibition in connection with the meeting, was staged in the armory building nearby. There were about 75 members present at the opening session when President H. W. F. Goetz announced the call to order. An address of welcome was given by Professor F. S. Kedzie, president of the college, which was responded to by President Goetz on behalf of the association. Director R. S. Shaw delivered an address on "The Work of the Experiment Station," which was followed by a paper on "Experiences in Handling Carnations," by Albert Boehringer, of Bay City. Albert Pochelon, Detroit, secretary of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, gave a forceful talk on the work of that organization, and co-operation and publicity.

The Wednesday afternoon session opened with a report of the officers, President Goetz telling of the initial meeting of the association at Grand Rapids, Secretary R. M. Plumb reporting on the membership list, which numbered 84 with dues paid, and 39 applications on hand. Treasurer W. S. Wells stated there was a balance of $302.10 in the association's funds. S. W. Coggan, chairman of the membership committee, told of his efforts to secure members by letters to florists throughout the state, and through the co-operation of the vice-presidents. H. E. Kidder, in charge of the incorporation of the association, read the constitution and by-laws. Amendments were made providing for three directors, one to retire each year, and a successor elected to fill such vacancy. Professor C. P. Halligan, chairman of the committee on exhibits, read his report, which was followed by an address on "Chrysanthemum Midge" by Miss Eugenia McDaniels, of the Michigan Agriculture College faculty. This was a most interesting paper, showing the diligent efforts of the department in research work to find remedies to combat this destructive pest. Dr. G. H. Coons, of the faculty, then gave an instructive talk on "Plant Diseases in Greenhouses." A letter was also read from Elmer D. Smith, of Adrian, Mich., who found it impossible to attend and speak on "Chrysanthemum Culture."

A roll call of the members showed that 58 of them were members of the Society of American Florists, and prospects for attaining the necessary membership to secure representation on the executive board of the national organization seem encouraging.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The election of officers resulted in the selection of Henry W. F. Goetz, Saginaw, to succeed himself, and Henry Smith, Grand Rapids was chosen vice-president. Robert M. Plumb, Detroit, secretary, and W. S. Wells, Ann Arbor, treasurer, were re-elected. Directors were named as follows: Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit, three years; H. E. Kidder, Ionia, two years; J. A. Bissinger, Lansing, one year. Treasurer Wells extended an urgent invitation to the society to meet in Ann Arbor next year, but the friends of Saginaw carried the vote for that city, and Carl L. Roethke assured the hospitality and active support of the trade in that community for the occasion. A vote of thanks was here extended to Professor C. P. Halligan and Thomas Gunson for their valuable assistance in connection with the meeting and exhibition.

Wednesday forenoon was given over to the inspection of greenhouse establishments in the city, all of which were found to be in good condition, and at several ranges, exceptionally fine stock was seen. Luncheon was served at noon through the hospitality of the local trade. In the evening, there was a banquet to the visitors at the Hotel Wentworth-Kerns, Thomas Gunson ably officiating as toastmaster. After the enjoyable repast, there were interesting talks, the first speaker of the evening being Philip Breitmeyer, whose topic was "Some Present Day Problems of the Retailer." His address was unusually interesting and instructive, being based upon long experience and observation. Carl L. Roethke repeated his promise to treat the visitors to the next annual meeting to the very best that Saginaw valley can provide. He eulogized the florist business, and deplored the high prices of the period just passed, which gave to many the impression of profiteering. George Mohn, representing Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, assured the association of his continued efforts to secure members for the organization during his travels throughout the state.

At the conclusion of the festivities, and reading of the final resolutions, an adjournment was taken to a theater, where the "movies" were enjoyed through the courtesy of the local florists. An executive session was held late Wednesday night by the officers and directors.

THE EXHIBITION.

The exhibition in connection with the meeting was a great credit to the association, and without exaggeration, it can be said to have been the best display ever staged in the state with the exception of that at the convention of the Society of American Florists in Detroit, August, 1919.

The largest exhibit was made by the Charles H. Plumb Co., Detroit. This consisted of about 150 plants of hydrangea in several colors, flowering baby rambler roses, Easter lilies and bulbous stock. The length of stems of the tulips and hyacinths was certainly worthy of notice. There were also two flowering kalmias, or mountain laurel, which promises to prove a popular native plant for forcing as a substitute for azaleas.

The Roethke Floral Co., Saginaw, had one of the largest and best displays of splendidly grown roses in many varieties, and large vases of Laddie and Philadelphia carnations. There was also shown some extra large mignonette, white freesias and handsome sweet peas.

President Goetz, of the association, staged splendid vases of carnations in variety, very large roses, and his excellent sweet peas were certainly a credit to the show and to the grower.

Boehringer Bros., Bay City, exhibited a vase of roses of several desirable sorts that were certainly praiseworthy; also excellent specimens of large and small flowering cinerarias and of carnations.

Among the most artistic table arrangements was that of John A. Bissinger, Lansing. The flowering plants were tastefully arranged in baskets, and the table, as a whole, presented a most pleasing effect. The G. B. Smith Co., Lansing, had a large table of flowering plants tastefully arranged in pots and baskets that was a feature of the show.

Henry Smith, Grand Rapids, sent a generous display of cut flowers, including roses of large size, and carnations. In this exhibit, the most conspicuous feature was a beautiful vase of Hoosier Beauty and Johkheer Mock roses, and of Philadelphia carnations.

Harry Saier, Lansing, had a splendid table of flowering plants and palms, and the appreciation of the association is extended to him for the wall and ceiling decorations of the hall.

G. Fred Baurle, North Lansing, in addition to a table of cut flowers, and another of palms and other foliage plants, staged a basket of large pink snapdragons and long stemmed daffodils which were conspicuous in the displays. His cut flowers were attractively arranged in baskets.

A. Von Boeschlager, Mt. Clemens, staged beautiful hydrangeas, begonias and primulas, all of which represented the finer varieties.

A. W. Wietzke, Charlotte, had a beautiful exhibit of cut flowers and plants which was a great credit to this grower.

A very attractive display of flowering plants was sent by Percy Snell, Pontiac.

Henry Winkelhaus, Howell, staged a fine vase of snapdragons arranged with genistas, while L. M. Herrick and I. J. Fortman, of Owosso, featured two beautiful vases of carnations.

The thanks of the association are also due J. L. Schiller, Toledo, O., for his exhibit of small flowering genistas and hydrangeas.

The commercial exhibits were also a great credit to the firms represented, and helped to make the show instructive and attractive. The association's appreciation is due the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., and the Ove Gnatt Co., La Porte,Ind., for their splendid display of baskets, artificial flowers and accessories, and to Vaughan's Seed Store and the American Bulb Co., Chicago, for exhibits of flowering bulbs.

PROF. C. P. HALLIGAN, Chairman,

REPORT OF FINAL RESOLUTIONS COMMITTEE.

Resolved, that the thanks of the Michigan State Florists' Association is hereby extended to President F. S. Kedzie, of the Michigan State Agricultural College; Prof. C. P. Halligan, Thomas Gunson, Director R. S. Shaw, Miss Eugenia McDaniels and Dr. G. H. Coons for their valuable work contributing so largely to the success of our first annual meeting here. Also to the florists of Lansing for their hearty and substantial support, and to the florists from other distant points who so liberally contributed displays of plants and flowers. Our thanks are also given to the ladies of East Lansing People's Church for their hospitality, and to the Wentworth-Kerns hotel for its many courtesies during our visit.

DEMAND LIGHTER WITH HEAVY SUPPLY.

The demnnd for stock has relaxed somewhat, and trade has been rather quiet during the past week. There is a large supply of nearly every item. Roses have dropped considerably, due to the heavy arrivals, and no great amount of business. Nearly every variety can now be had in almost any quantity. Russell of the finest grade can now be had and it is about the only variety that still brings good figures. After a long absence from this market, Cecile Brunners are now available in fairly good quantities. They are in great demand. Carnations are in large supply, and it is only the best stock that is bringing good returns. Laddie is the leader of them all, and the grower who has this variety to offer, is being well paid. Sweet peas are becoming more plentiful, with prices lower. Some good snapdragon is selling well. Narcissi and daffodils are a drug on the market, and can be had at almost any price. Lily of the valley is becoming more plentiful. Excellent stock is being handled. Prices are, however, held rather higher than the public seems disposd to pay. Violets are as plentiful as ever. Gardenias are about equal to the demand. Orchids are getting scarcer every day, and are holding up in price well. As yet, there are no lilies on the market. Callas are plentiful. Freesias are still in large supply and can now be had quite cheap. There are still quite a few tulips coming in, but they move slowly. There are a fine lot of flowering plants, and the stores are already beginning to handle some pre-Easter stock. Rhododendrons are plentiful and fine. Rambler roses are also seen everywhere. All other flowering stock is plentiful but it is not expected that the demand will increase until Easter week. There is still a heavy supply of fruit blossoms. Greens of all kinds are in large supply.

NOTES.

Joseph Markel and Jas. Pappas have opened a new flower store on Columbus avenue, between Valley and Broadway. They have styled themselves the American-Italian Florists. Both of these men have had a long experience in the florist's business, and have the best wishes of the trade for their success.

The California State Floral Society will hold an important meeting this week, when officers for the coming year will be nominated. Plans are also to be prepared for the annual spring flower show of the society, which will probably be held during the latter part of April.

The conservatory, under the management of John H. Sievers, Jr., has been opened for business at the corner of Geary and Larkin streets. Mr. Sievers has had many years experience in the florist trade in this city.

J. A. Axell is securing a very heavy cut of roses from his growers, principally Ferrarri Bros. Easter trade, he says, will be ahead of last year, judging from the amount of orders booked to date.

The Charles C. Navlet Company, of this city, and San Jose, has opened a large floral store at Tenth and Washington streets, in Oakland. Seeds and plants will also be carried at this branch.

Nat Rolleri, the wholesale florist and daffodil specialist, has purchased a new Dodge truck for his delivery work. He is as busy as ever, and says shipping trade is good with him.

M. Duval Williams has opened a very pretty flower store at 503 Ellis street, which will be known as the Flower Basket.

Podesta & Baldocchi are handling very fine grades of lily of the valley, and report a steady demand for it from their customers.

J. Phillips has succeeded the late Alfred Cuneo as designer at the Art Floral Co. Trade is reported steady at this store. JAS. T. LYNCH.

Lancaster County Florists' Association.

Instead of the March meeting of the above association, a visiting trip was substituted and the following members attended the New York flower show: Rudolph Nagel and wife, Peter Brown and wife, J. Du Barre Heinitsh and wife, Albert M. Herr and wife, Daniel Irwin Herr, Miss Carrie Steckman, Elmer Weaver, Walter Denlinger, A. K. Rohrer, H. K. Rohrer, Lemon Landis, C. S. Leffler, John Schoenberger and last but not least our friend from Coatesville. We call him Jim Brown.

The stay in New York was short, 11:30 to 4:30, but thoroughly enjoyed. Our party was under the wing of T. J. Nolan, and he proved a good chaperon. To say that the show was worth the trip, is one way of expressing our appreciation, and it certainly was a wonderfully well staged exhibition, with the quality of the stock slightly below par, owing to the unfavorable winter, but not enough to be noticeable to the general public, and after all is said and done, it is the general public who are to be pleased with these shows. The staging was with this point in view, and it was a constant repetition of pleasant surprises all the way through.

Mrs. Albert M. Herr attended a meeting of the board of directors of the Ladies' S. A. F., an account of which will be found in another column.

The return heme was made in sections, some staying over in New York, some in Philadelphia, and others getting back to Lancaster the same night, a bit tired from their 310 mile ride, but with no regrets.

ALBERT M. HERR.

Express Conditions

The express conditions are improving rapidly and the wholesalers are now (Wednesday, March 24), able to make shipments of cut flowers and plants to all points over all lines up to 2 P. M. daily.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The regular meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, N. Y., March 10, at 7 p. m. At this meeting President Thos. Twigg occupied the chair. Joseph Bouhler was elected to active membership and two petitions for active membership were received. Thos. Henderson, Wm. Noonan and Thos. Swift were appointed as judges for the monthly exhibits. Owing to the impossibility of transporting in any other way than in one's arms, the showing was not as brilliant as usual. John F. Johnstone was awarded first prize for an exceptionally fine pair of tulips.

James McCarthy, James MacDonald and John F. Johnstone, were appointed a committee to secure judges for all coming shows. A letter of sympathy was drafted to be sent to Ernest J. Brown, treasurer of the society, on the recent sudden death of his wife. A letter of congratulations was sent to Alexander MacKenzie, a member of the society, who has recently taken unto himself a wife.

William Noonan gave a practical talk on "Bees and Bee Keeping," which was very interesting. From the number of questions Mr. Noonan answered, there seems to be a lot of bee keepers or intending bee keepers in the society.

The exhibits for the next meeting, April 14, will be three heads of lettuce, three heads of cauliflower and 12 spikes of antirrhinum, mixed.

ARTHUR COOK, Cor. Sec'y.

Salt Lake City, Utah.

DEMAND AND SUPPLY ABOVE COMPLAINT.

March business thus far has been good. Roses of good quality clean up daily at prices ranging from 10 to 30 cents, although the receipts have not as yet reached normal condition. Carnations are in heavy supply and move readily at eight cents for the best with five and six cents for splits. Pocahontas and Benora are coming to the front and the demand is increasing steadily. Sweet peas are in excellent condition and sell freely at two cents. Bulbous stock is in heavy supply and the movement is satisfactory. Single and double daffodils command eight cents, single hyacinths, 35 cents, and in pans of three to six, 30 cents.

NOTES.

Ernest Lambourne reports a heavy call for funeral orders, and although there are no special events of importance, he has difficulty in securing enough green.

At the store of the Miller Floral Co., business has been good considering the season. Bulbous stock has the preference although other flowers move well.

The Huddart Floral Co. is doing a good business in all departments and everything is moving satisfactorily.

Mrs. Paul Richmond and daughter arrived March 13 and expect to make their home in this city.

Visitor: A. Westholder, Evanston, Wyo. P. R.

A BIG advance in gasoline prices by July is predicted.

GREENHOUSE construction men say glass and other building supplies are not likely to be lower this season. Those who have 16x18 glass are now asking $9 to $10 per box, f. o. b., in small lots.

ACCORDING to Vice-President Murray of the United Mine Workers, there is little possibility of an anthracite miners 'strike when the present contract expires March 31, believing the miners' demands will be satisfactorily adjusted.

In response to the call issued by the president, a meeting of the board of directors was held in New York, March 18, at which time Mrs. Charles Totty was elected chairman for 1920.

The matter of fixing the amount of the bonds for the secretary and treasurer, in accordance with the action of the society at the meeting held in Detroit, was left to the board of directors. They have so fixed the same that the secretary's bond shall be for $500, and that of the treasurer for $1,000.

Wind Damage at Twin Cities.

Although complete reports are not available at this writing, a heavy windstorm on the night of March 22 probably caused considerable loss by broken glass and hardship in keeping the stock from freezing in ranges in St. Paul and Minneapolis, Minn. At the Holm & Olson range, in St. Paul, the tall smokestack was twisted and a large sign blown down. The smokestack of the E. H. Mazey establishment in Minneapolis was blown down and one house of Easter lilies suffered considerable damage.

New York Horticultural Building Act.

Arthur Cowee, Berlin, N. Y., well known gladiolus specialist and state assemblyman, has introduced a bill at Albany, calling for an appropriation of $500,000 for the erection and equipment of a new horticultural building at the state fair grounds, Syracuse. This bill is supported by the New York State Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs, as well as many other organizations. As this building is needed more than any other at the state fair, and will fill a long felt want, all persons in the state interested in floriculture, horticulture, etc., are being urged to write to Assemblyman Arthur Cowee at Albany, without delay, voicing their support of this measure.

Shirley Poppy Urged as Legion's Flower

Several posts of the American Legion, including the Edward B. Rhodes Post, Tacoma, Wash., in considering the adoption of a memorial flower have indicated their choice in the matter. The Edward B. Rhodes Post has passed a resolution urging the choice of the Shirley poppy, and that the American Legion "take steps to assist and urge every public park, cemetery and private garden, in gratitude to the men who made the supreme sacrifice, to set aside a plot every spring and summer for the display of red poppies to revere the memory of the soldier dead, and that every member of the Legion wear a red poppy on Memorial day, 1920, and every year thereafter." As Franklin D' Olier, national commander of the Legion, has ruled that formal adoption of a flower must be passed upon by a general convention, any action the coming Memorial day will depend upon the sentiment of local posts.

American Dahlia Society.

PLANS FOR AUTUMN SHOW AT NEW YORK.

At the meeting of the executive committee of the American Dahlia Society, held at the flower show in the Grand Central Palace, New York, March 19, it was decided to hold the autumn show in New York during September, at one of the centrally located hotels, and to charge exhibitors a reasonable price for floor space, and to also charge for admission, to defray the expenses. The meeting was attended by growers from many states and considerable space was taken by those present at the meeting and a substantial guarantee fund was started.

The plan is to give the greatest dahlia show ever held, and work to that end has already been started and will be prosecuted vigorously and continuously until show time. Every dahlia grower and lover of this popular flower is invited to co-operate.

President Vincent moved that Professor George Fraser of the Connecticut State Agricultural College, Storrs, be tendered the thanks of the society for the excellent manner in which the trial grounds were conducted last year, which was carried, and Professor Fraser was made a life member of the society. The trial grounds will be continued, and will be larger and better than ever. Tubers for the trial gardens should be properly labeled with the name of the variety and exhibitor and sent to Professor Fraser. Last year there were many visitors throughout the season, and as the trial grounds are recognized as a permanent institution, there will be more visitors this year than ever.

James Duthie, Oyster Bay, N. Y., moved that a new scale of points be made, so that good exhibition varieties, and varieties good for cut flowers, be given an equal chance. The motion was carried.

A motion was passed, protesting against the quarantine of the states of Illinois and Michigan against dahlia tubers and bulbs.

Let dahlia growers everywhere, amateurs as well as professionals, begin now in the effort to make this the greatest exhibition of any single flower ever held.

EDWARD C. VICK, Sec'y.

NOTES.

Three standing committees for the year have been named by Edward P. Tracey, president of the florists' club. They are: Finance—William C. Gloeckner, William Newport, Fred Henkes, and William J. McGinn; Entertainment—Thomas F. Tracey, John J. Haggerty, Frank R. Bilson, and John A. Murnane, Jr.; Sick—George Nagengast, Jr., William Christie, Samuel Hanson, and Fred Henkes.

Assemblyman Arthur Cowee, of Rensselaer county, has introduced into the state legislature a bill authorizing the appropriation of $500,000 for the construction of a horticultural building at the state fair grounds, Syracuse, and for improvements to the grounds. The measure has been advocated by the florists' clubs and horticultural societies of the state for several years, but was held up during the world war.

Dudley Olcott, president of the Mechanics and Farmers' bank of this city, who died December 28, 1919, left to his gardener, Isador Marx, the sum of $2,000, according to the terms of Mr. Olcott's will, which was lately admitted to probate.

Among the local florists who attended the New York show, March 15-21, were: Frederick A. Danker, Edward P. Tracey, Frederick Henkes, and James G. Barrett.

FLORISTS' SUPPLIES

1309-11 N. Second Street, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Nashville, Tenn.

GOOD EASTER SUPPLY MODERATELY PRICED.

Judging from the displays seen in the florists' windows, the supply must be greatly improved over the scarcity of a few weeks ago. Roses and carnations now occupy a prominent place and there are excellent jonquils and an abundance of sweet peas. Trade has kept up well and by great efforts the dealers have been able to supply the demand. All are now looking forward to a big Easter business and there will be a large supply of flowers for the occasion. Easter lilies, which have already commenced to come in, are promised in plenty and there will be hydrangeas, begonias, rambler roses, hyacinths and tulips. Prices will not advance much over the present scale. Lilies, cut, will command $9 per dozen and at the same rate on the plants. Tulips are now very good in red, yellow, white and pink. Carnations are better than at any time this season, and are bringing $4 per dozen. Jonquils are playing an important part at present. Greenhouse stock, large and fine, is going at $1 per dozen, but they have a rival in the outdoor product which are offered on the streets at 10 cents a dozen or three bunches for 25 cents. There is a perfect glut of these with a street seller on every corner.

NOTES.

The Joy Floral Co. is preparing to make extensive improvements at their already large range and have completed the grading for six large new houses. Building will begin April 15, and when completed they will be devoted to roses, principally Columbia, Premier, Milady and Butterfly. This firm's Chattanooga store does a fine business with growing facilities at this end ample to take care of all requirements. Mrs. Goetz, of the Chattanooga establishment, is spending some time in this city, and Miss Carrie Chance of the store here is taking her place.

Geny Bros. will have a fine supply of Easter lilies for the trade as well as plenty of roses and carnations and a good variety of pot plants.

EXPRESS EMBARGO LIFTED.

The express conditions are much easier at this writing and everyone is sincerely hoping that it will be possible to make all deliveries for Easter, which looks very promising at this time. The first sign of an early resumption of shipping came March 17, as reported in our last issue when express officials announced that they were taking shipments for Kansas, Texas and Oklahoma points. The American Railway Express Company started to pick up packages March 22, until 1 P. M., for all points in Indiana and Illinois over the Wabash, C. & E. I., Monon, Grand Trunk, Santa Fe and C. & O. and over the entire system of the Chicago & Northwestern and Pennsylvania railroads. The shipments for Milwaukee St. Paul and Minneapolis had to be routed via the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad and those not ready by 1 P. M. had to be shipped the following day. Some of the wholesale houses have been able to make shipments to their out-of-town customers at other points by parcel post and other ways, sparing no effort to render the best possible service under the present trying conditions. The market stiffened considerably the opening for this week, when almost all items took a jump in price. The outlook is bright for a good supply of stock in general for Easter but if the express strike is over within the next few days, an early clean-up in all lines may be expected. American Beauty roses will be in fair supply and the same holds true for Mrs. Chas. Russell, Columbia and Premier. Milady, Sunburst, Hoosier Beauty, Ward, Ophelia, Killarney, White Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, Mrs. George Shawyer, Champ Weiland and Montrose are other varieties that will be obtainable, together with Cecile Brun-

WE DO

AS WE SAY

EASTER will make a NEW RECORD for the trade. A TREMENDOUS VOLUME OF SHIPPING BUSINESS IS EXPECTED. As to LILIES every one says they will be scarce, but there is a suspicion that CUT LILIES will go around at the price of $25.00, $30.00, $35.00 per 100.

We confirm this statement and offer our supply of PERFECT LILIES in short, medium and long stems, 3 to 5 blooms to a stalk. Early orders are assured of the benefits of first selection.

ner, Elgar and Baby Doll. Some growers report that they will be in heavy crop with roses for Easter, while others say that their cuts will be small, compared to other years, which seems to hold true at several of the larger establishments in this immediate vicinity. Carnations will be plentiful, but will be disposed of early at the advertised quotations according to the dealers who report many large orders being already booked. Lilies are bringing 25 cents and up per flower at this writing, and while there promises to be more offered than last Easter, it does not necessarily signify that they are going to be had at prices any lower than the advertised quotations. Sweet peas should be in good supply with favorable weather, and the outlook is encouraging for good cuts of orchids and lily of the valley. Callas, violets, daisies, pansies, forget-me-nots, anemones, snapdragons, tulips, jonquils, sweet allyssum, mignonette and other miscellaneous stock is on the bill of fare and some houses are featuring late crops of freesias. Pot lilies, rambler roses, French hydrangeas and bulbous stock will be the chief offerings in the plant line here this season although made up baskets of foliage plants will play an important part. A few azaleas will be seen at some of the retail stores. Green goods are none too plentiful owing to the strike and are scarce at times, including ferns, which are being quoted at $4.50 per 1,000 for Easter. Big preparations are being made everywhere for Easter by all the local retailers, who are all looking forward to a brisk business.

EXPRESS CONDITIONS.

The express conditions are improvin rapidly and the wholesalers are now (Wednesday, March 24) able to make shipments of cut flowers and plants to all points over all lines up to 2 p. m. daily, which means that all orders placed in this market for Easter will be given the same careful attention as in former years.

NOTES.

C. L. Washburn is again attending to his duties at Bassett & Washburn's store, after making a 3,000 mile business and pleasure trip with Mrs. Washburn through the southwest and south, returning March 22. Mr. Washburn says that one of the department stores in Dallas, Tex., was advertising flowers at ridiculously low prices while he was there, much to the annoyance of the retail florists, who were compelled to ask higher prices, owing to the simple fact that they were unable to buy the same quality of stock at anywhere near the sum asked.

Kennicott Bros. Co. has received another advertisement from Memphis, Tenn., which appeared in a daily paper there last week when one of the department stores featured roses and carnations at 39 cents per dozen. This house is wondering how the grower is able to exist on the returns of this stock during the high cost of production.

The commissioners of Lincoln park have purchased the block of land bounded by Ashland, Giddings, Leland and Clark, 256x370, from the Union Trust Company for $50,000, and will transform this into a small park with fieldhouse, playfield, club rooms and shower baths.

A. Henderson visited the New York wholesale cut flower market while he was attending the spring show at the Grand Central Palace last week, and noticed, particularly, that gardenias were as plentiful there as they are scarce in this market.

N. J. Wietor says that carnations will be in good crop at Wietor Bros.' greenhouses for Easter, but that red will be somewhat scarce. The roses will also be in good crop, but he is looking for an early cleanup in both items.

Philip J. Schupp says that business has shown a great improvement at the J. A. Budlong Co.'s store this week, and he is very optimistic in regard to the Easter demand now that the express strike is practically over.

The E. C. Amling Co. is showing some particularly fine Darwin tulips from the Sam Pearce greenhouses, which are right in crop for Easter.

Tonners' are handling a large supply of choice sweet peas and the reports from their growers indicate fine crops for Easter.

The Women's National Farm and Garden Association will endeavor to get a trained city forester.

Governor Lowden has proclaimed April 30 and October 12 as Arbor and Bird days this year.

A. T. PYFER & COMPANY,

164 N. Wabash Ave., CHICAGO

Formerly at 30 Randolph Street

D. F. Simonds, 1917 West Harrison street, is chairman of the florists' trade committee of the local order of Elks, which is completing the arrangements for the national convention to be held here, July 5-10. The local lodge will present at least 20,000 corsage bouquets to the visiting ladies, and the other flowers that will be used will make the total so large that Mr. Simonds is requesting the growers to arrange their crops so as to have a good supply ready at that time. Allie Zech is vice-chairman of Mr. Simonds' committee. Philip Schupp and Eric Johnson joined this lodge last week, and A. T. Pyfer is scheduled to ride the billy goat at the next meeting.

Poehlman Bros. Co. is having a heavy demand for pot lilies, and everything points to a complete cleanup early at the Morton Grove greenhouses. French hydrangeas are also in heavy demand, and a visit through the rest of the establishment leads one to believe that the cut of roses and carnations will enable this firm to take care of all their Easter orders. John Poehlmann is suffering from a severe cold this week.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. have had a big week, notwithstanding the express condition, with a heavy call for Easter lilies, which are seen in quantity at their establishment. The veteran wholesaler is looking for a heavy Easter demand now that it is possible to make shipment to all points again.

Zech & Mann report a heavy demand for lilies for Easter, and everything points to an early clean-up in this line at the advertised quotations. Allie Zech called on some of his growers this week, and found that sweet peas will be in heavy supply for this occasion.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. have their share of lilies to offer for Easter, in addition to a complete line of all other seasonable stock. Mr. Pyfer is confident that the demand will absorb the supply this year, and is advising early placing of orders.

Peter Reinberg is booking a large number of orders for Easter, and if the late demand continues to be anywhere near as brisk as what the early call for stock is going to be, everything in cut flowers will clean-up early.

Erne & Company are taking good care of their customers with greens during the shortage, owing to the strike, notwithstanding the fact that there was considerable loss in storage this season.

A. Miller, president of the American Bulb Co., received a cable from Albert Koehler this week to the effect that he is unable to leave Hamburg, Germany, owing to the rail strike.

Paul Klingsporn is again on duty at the Chicago Flower Growers' Association's store after attending the New York spring show, held at the Grand Central Palace last week.

The A. L. Randall Co. will have a late crop of freesias to offer this Easter, in addition to a large supply of lilies from the Emil Buettner greenhouses at Park Ridge.

The Joseph Foerster Co. is supplying its trade with a choice grade of sweet peas, which are seen in quantity here this week.

Charles J. Stromback, former head gardener at Lincoln park, died March 22. See obituary elsewhere in this issue.

W. N. Rudd will celebrate another birthday, March 30.

ADVERTISING EMPLOYED TO PREVENT GLUT.

Improved weather has resulted in a corresponding change in the amount of stock available, and local florists are now finding advertising necessary to help move the fairly plentiful supply. The local trade seems to have adopted the policy of advertising only when it has something to advertise, which looks reasonable, despite the oft-repeated assertion of advertising experts that results from publicity cannot be turned off and on like water from a spout. With Easter close at hand, prospects, of course, are excellent for the next few weeks, though the weather will continue to play an important part in developments.

NOTES.

The American Legion, which has its headquarters in this city, is considering the selection of a memorial flower, and several posts have already indicated their choice in the matter. The Edward B. Rhodes Post, at Tacoma, Wash., for instance, has passed a resolution favoring the adoption of the Shirley poppy as the memorial flower. The resolution urged that "the American Legion take steps to assist and urge that every public park, cemetery and private garden, in gratitude to the men who made the supreme sacrifice, do, during the coming spring and summer and every spring and summer thereafter, revere the memory of our soldier dead by setting aside a plot for continued display of waving red poppies; that a red poppy be worn by every member of the American Legion on Memorial day of 1920, and every year thereafter." Franklin D'Olier, national commander of the Legion, has ruled that the formal adoption of a flower must be passed on by a general convention. Accordingly, any action at the coming Memorial day will depend on the sentiment of local posts of the Legion.

A sextette of attractive young women, who make their livelihood by displaying garments of all kinds, were here during the week, appearing as the headliner at the Lyric theatre, a vaudeville house. A showing of spring clothing for women would of course not be complete without appropriate flowers, and this part of the display

EASTER BUSINESS APPEARS PROMISING.

Active preparations are being made for the Easter trade and indications point to a very good business for this occasion. Reports show that there will be a plentiful supply of Easter lilies as the weather has been good for the growing of this flower. There will also be a plentiful supply of other flowers such as roses, carnations, violets, sweet peas and jonquils. The demand for flowers has been slightly better than the previous week. Funeral business has not been active, but there is a better party demand. Weddings are also more numerous. On the whole, trade has been satisfactory in many ways. The supply of the various kinds of flowers has been good, and prices are still comparatively cheap. Roses have been in good demand, and the receipts have been generous. They have been selling from $3 to $8 per dozen. The supply of carnations is fair, and prices unchanged. There is a good demand for violets at $1.50 to $2 per bunch. Jonquils are selling well, and the same is true of sweet peas. Some plants are now arriving among which are several varieties of tub roses and tulips.

NOTES.

While a large majority of the people believe there is nothing in a name, that theory was overthrown last week in this city, when the state civil service commission held an examination for the position of florist at state institutions. An applicant named Weed failed to secure a passing grade, while another named William H. Rose of Athens, stood highest in the test and was given the appointment.

Papers have been filed with the secretary of state increasing the authorized capital of the Celina Greenhouse Co., of Celina, Ohio, from $25,000 to $50,000. J. W. L.

RECORD EASTER BUSINESS EXPECTED.

All hands are now looking forward to Easter business, the consensus of opinion being that it will be the best ever, in spite of all the previous conditions which were not such as would be of value to the welfare of the trade. One unusual condition, no doubt the result of high prices, has come to our notice, through the fact that so many death notices contain the request to omit flowers. The frequency of this is probably forethought on the part of bereaved ones to spare their friends unnecessary expense. The great shortage of stock can be traced to the amount of glass under cultivation not being brought up to pre-war standing. In addition to this the buying power of the public, enhanced by excessive profits and high wages, increased the demand. Prices on stock are about the same as last week. St. Patrick's day showed only a slightly above normal demand for green flowers. Sweet peas are showing shorter stems as the season progresses, but have quality, are good sellers, and clean up daily. Most growers of daffodils are holding off until Easter with their main crop, and in consequence, they have been in short supply the past week. Freesias and Paper White narcissus are about through for the season. The green supply is normal again.

NOTES.

C. G. Anderson, manager of the plant department of the Rolf Zetlitz Co., of Dayton, O., was in town recently. Mr. Anderson bought some young begonia stock and likewise booked some nice orders for Easter plants.

MARKET TONE MUCH BETTER.

There has been a change for the better in market conditions, due not so much to an increased demand as a shortening in the supply. This is particularly true of roses and bulbous flowers, both of which are selling up close. Select American Beauties bring $1 each, while six cents is low on daffodils. This week's market opened with a good supply Monday, which cleaned up well at satisfactory figures. The Easter supply of cut flowers looks very promising. Lilies, both longiflorum and callas, are of extra quality. Roses will be in good quantity as will sweet peas. Violets never looked better, especially singles, this city's favorite corsage flower.

NATIONAL GROWERS' ASS'N LOCAL FORMED.

A meeting of the growers of this city and vicinity to organize a local branch of the National Flower Growers' Association, advance mention of which appeared in our issue of March 20, page 468, was held at the American House, on the evening of March 23 and was attended by more than 80 of the leading plant and cut flower growers of this section. Secretary J. F. Ammann and Wallace R. Pierson were the speakers and both outlined the necessity of the association and the work it hoped to accomplish by the organization. It was unanimously agreed to form such a local body and temporary officers were elected as well as delegates to represent it at the meeting of the national body in Cleveland, O., in August. K.

FLORISTS' DAY AT AD CLUB MEETING.

March 11 was "florists' day with the Ad Club, and the dining room of the Davenport hotel was arranged to present to the business men, the real importance of the industry. Each table carried some particular type of floral piece, such as would be appropriate for the bride, the home, the society girl, the business man's office, or the new arrival, and strung across the room, were long wires, showing how easily flowers could be ordered by telegraph. Laddie carnations were at each plate and the programme was in complete charge of the florists. Mr. Kip, of the Spokane Floral Company, made a most interesting talk concerning flowers and foliage, showing that Eve used them for clothes and they have been more and more essential to man ever since. He told how this city had formerly brought in all its flowers, but was now an exporter. He said there were 13 acres given over to purely commercial flowers growing under glass here, and that for last year, each of these returned $23,000. John W. Duncan, local park commissioner, told of the official aid given the industry, and the luncheon closed by the singing in unison of "Say It With Flowers," the national organization's song. There were about 200 business men present, and at the close, all voted that the florists had easily led the field in the various industries, which have been in charge of special days before the Ad Club. Not a little of this credit must be given to Harry Wraight, of the Davenport Hotel Flower Shop. H. M.

MARKET CONDITIONS SHOW IMPROVEMENT.

The week ending March 20, closed with the market in better shape and prices firmer than for some time. The early part of the week was poor, but towards the last the demand quickened and the supply shortened, causing a clean up on Saturday, which was certainly welcomed by the wholesale houses. American Beauties are in increased supply, and the longer grades are of very good quality, but the shorter stock leaves much to be desired. Premier and Columbia have the call among the roses, and are in heavy supply. Of the other sorts, Ophelia is the best, and has the call. The carnation situation is good, with a fair increase in supply, but not enough to glut the market, and prices have remained around $5 and $6 per hundred. Easter lilies are more plentiful, but there has been no difficulty in moving all that come in. Calla lilies are in over supply for the first time this season and there has been a slight reduction in the wholesale price. The supply of sweet peas is heavy, in fact too heavy for the market to absorb, and some of them find their way to the street boys. Some of the finest snapdragons of the season are now on the market and bring fancy prices. Violets still move slowly and no doubt will continue to do so until Easter, when the demand should be heavy, as Easter is early this year and violets should be of good quality. Irises and freesias are about over for this season, while mignonette, calendulas, myosotis and baby primroses move slowly. There has been a shortage of greens in this market, due to the fact that our main supply comes from Florida, and freezing weather has destroyed the present crop.

NOTES.

The outlook for Easter is very bright, with enough stock to fill all orders, and prices about on a par with last year. The lily situation is good; while some of the local growers claim that their entire crop will not be ready for Easter, still it looks as though there would be enough to go around.

The McCallum Company had exhibits at both the New York and Lansing, Mich., flower shows. The New York exhibit was looked after by Sam Seligman and T. J. Nolan, while E. J. McCallum, Henry L. Blind and Wm. T. Usinger were in charge at Lansing.

Harold Brookins, of Jerry Brookins & Son, Orchard Park, N. Y., stopped off here on his way home from the New York show. This firm is shipping some of the finest sweet peas to this market that have been received this season.

The A. W. Smith Flower Stores Company will be on deck with its usual fine display of Easter plants, which they grow at the range on Mt. Washington.

B. F. Engle, of Rochester, Pa., was a welcome visitor last week. He spent the greater part of the winter on the Pacific coast.

Randolph & McClements' large force has been kept busy with several large funeral orders the past week.

McGrath & Langhans report business as above normal for this season of the year.

Tri-City Florists' Club.

St. Patrick's day always brings a host of parties, but the good old saint never sponsored anything more enjoyable than the "dinner-dance" given the Tri-City Florists' Club at the Davenport Outing Club, March 11. The saint this time was none other than Victor De Lascaille, of Davenport, a recently elected member of the club, but already a real comrade and co-worker. Members and ladies, numbering about 75, after a very brief business meeting, partook of a business dinner, made even more enjoyable by its beautiful environments. The numerous tables were adorned so artistically with flowers, ferns and accessories in keeping with the season, that even the keen eyes of the florists themselves marvelled at the effect. Especially unique were place markers of wee pots of growing shamrock.

Judge N. A. Larson, of Moline, was chief speaker of the evening, but when the strains of the orchestra became irresistible, all formality was put aside, everyone forgot care and age, and either danced or watched others do so. Here daffodils, hyacinths and Laddie carnations, a courtesy to the host, lent their grace and fragrance. An impromptu programme of aesthetic dancing and vocal numbers added to the entertainment. After a seemingly short evening, but really at a late hour, the guests took leave, declaring Mr. De Lascaille a most royal and hospitable host.

The April meeting will be held with Henry Gaethje of Rock Island. Officers for the ensuing year were unanimously elected as follows: Charles Reardon, president; John Staack, Moline, Joe Tuckis, Rock Island, and Victor De Lascaille, Davenport, vice-presidents; Wm. Knees, Jr., secretary; L. Stapp, financial secretary; Wm. Knees, Sr., treasurer. Trustees: R. E. DeRyke, C. Sorensen and Miss Tearney.

THE LEO NIESSEN CO., 1201 Race St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Philadelphia.

PRICES RISE FROM LOW LEVEL.

There is a peak to the mountain of high prices, and a bottom of the abyss to which they fall; this lowest level appears to have been reached some two weeks ago, and the trend is now upwards toward the plains, where the footing is sure and the going good. There is little complaint heard of the business of the past week; there has been a fair demand, and while prices are low, as compared with cloudy weather records, they are better than at this period a year ago, and from now until Easter, there will be plenty of business for all who care to exert themselves. The stock of various kinds is all that can be desired in quality and variety. Roses are in good supply, and offered at prices that allow them to be featured in the stores. Violets, carnations and sweet peas are favorites with the street men, who are now a great help in moving the surplus. They will handle this stock in thousand lots, as their chances of selling it are 100 to 1 as compared to the average retailer. Snapdragon is now at its best and one of the staple stocks. Easter lilies and callas have been too plentiful for the demand, but will be a great factor for the next two weeks. The calla has certainly made a record for itself the past season. There are plenty of cattleyas; somehow there appears to have been an increased supply of these flowers the past season, as they are being used now by smaller stores, who always considered orchids "Too rich for them," but who now pay $3.50 to $5 per dozen, and use them in much of their design work. The market has never been so well supplied with sweet peas or handled a better quality. Prices two weeks ago reached a low level, but last week all were moved through various channels at satisfactory prices, the good stock bringing $10 to $25 per 1,000.

EASTER PLANT STOCK.

The plant men are now in their busiest season. Stock that is too forward has to be retarded, and the backward pots placed together and coaxed to do their best. Customers have now to be looked after, as the selling is most important. From all accounts, the booking of orders is progressing favorably. Hydrangeas and lilies appear to be the quantity stocks. Rambler roses will hardly cover the demand. There are fairly good blocks of hardy azaleas, while genistas, marguerites, cinerarias and primulas are seen in fairly good quantities. Bulbous stock, what there is of it, is in fine condition.

NOTES.

The event of the week in trade circles was the New York show. The Robert Craig Co. made a fine exhibit of its nephrolepis, the central specimens being superb plants. They also had a trade booth, at which they did a very good business. Many of the local craft took a run over and were generally pleased with their visit. The opinion is growing that this city would support such an annual exhibition, if there was a suitable building in which to house it. There is no question but just as fine a display of plants and cut flowers could be made here, and with the proper publicity, there would be no doubt of a paying attendance.

most prominent seed and plant houses in the eastern section of the country. It was a wonderful display and a distinct step in advance in the progress of the business.

Alfred M. Campbell is justly proud of his splendid crop of 40,000 giganteum lilies. They have never been seen better anywhere. His lowest estimate is 200,000 blooms, which is "some crop" to move in two weeks. They appear to be timed just right. Orders are coming in very satisfactorily, half the stock being already sold. It takes initiative and confidence to do things in such a large way. These are, however, Mr. Campbell's long suits, with which he will win this year, as he did last.

The florist supply houses are good barometers of business conditions. Sydney Bayersdorfer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., reports a wonderful demand from all the country for everything pertaining to the Easter business, plant baskets being particularly desired. Jos. G. Neidinger's full force is rushed to get out their Easter basket and other supply orders. Mr. Neidinger thinks this will be the greatest Easter ever experienced by the trade.

The Robert Craig Co.'s hydrangeas and large block of Easter lilies are the best it has ever had. Genistas, Hinodigiri azaleas and marguerites are also quantity stocks. Mr. Craig, in answer as to how orders were coming in, stated that they had seen more visitors, and were booking orders faster than ever before in all their experience.

Leo Niessen said, in regard to the outlook for Easter, "We expect to handle the largest and most varied stock of cut flowers we have ever offered for Easter. The early date insures the stock to be in good shipping condition. There will be lots of business, as we have received many advance orders."

The local publicity is progressing, the ads. getting better with each insertion. The rose copy that ran in this week's papers was very attractive, and stood out so on the page, that it was bound to be seen and read.

The Jos. Heacock Co. has been cutting as high as 10,000 sweet peas a day from its large house at Roelefs. The quality was fine, and the firm was able to move them satisfactorily, even in this time of oversupply.

Edward Reid features sweet peas, roses and carnations. His lily growers are coming just right for Easter. Choice double violets are a strong feature.

Berger Bros. say the worst is over, and prices are stiffening. Snapdragons, sweet peas, carnations and choice Easter lilies are features.

TRADE GOOD AND BAD IN TURN.

The business of the past week was spasmodic—some days fair, others dull, but if no better than the previous week it was no worse. In roses, there was a fair demand. A considerable quantity of the best stock went into the flower show, which possibly had some effect on the market. Good carnations went as high as $6 per 100. In the general run of spring and bulbous stock, little change was noted. Gardenias were the Jonahs, so to speak. They could be bought, wholesale, for $8 per 100, and thousands of them were in the hands of the street men, as were violets. March 19-20 were extremely disagreeable days as to weather, both being days of snow and rain, and the inevitable slush under foot. The bad weather seemed to help rather than hinder the attendance at the flower show, as there were good crowds on both days.

March 22.—The week has opened with good sunshine, and the prospect is for a heavy supply of stock, unless the "saving for Easter" begins. Roses and carnations, in fact all stock, are in good quality and supply. Carnations are quoted $6 and $8 per 100 and violets at 50 and 75 cents.

EASTER OUTLOOK.

The minds of the retailers are now concentrated on Easter prospects. March 21 opened with good sunshine, and it is hoped that fine weather will continue. Some of the pre-Christmas and Easter reports can always be discounted, but it seems to be a fact that a considerable stock of lilies and pot roses are in a backward condition, and it will take good weather to bring them in. In lilies, there seems to be a larger stock for cutting than in pots. One well known firm of growers has reported that out of 3,000 genistas, they will not be able to put on the market more than 300, the buds, for some reason not readily understood, having dropped. Taking a broad view, good weather from now on is what is most desirable.

NOTES.

Park Commissioner Gallatin proposes to open two flower markets for the Easter trade, one at Columbus Circle, another at Union Square. For many years, there has been an Easter plant market at the latter place. A newspaper report states that these markets will be for families that "cannot pay florists' prices for coveted blooms." It is also stated that: "Before making the announcement the commissioner asked the opinion of one of several florists in Fifth avenue, and the latter said that such a market was not only desirable but would fill a definite want. In no sense will the new market compete with other florists, for the present plan is only to open the markets to those who are the actual growers of the flowers they offer for sale." If feasible, more flower markets will be opened on park department property in other parts of the city, Commissioner Gallatin said. Those that live the longest, will see the most—providing, they keep their eyes open.

George Hanges has bought the Doganges retail store at 695 Columbus avenue, and two other valuable leases on Columbus avenue. Thomas Doganges has conducted the store for about 10 years. Theodore J. Pappas has been Mr. Doganges' agent, Mr. Hanges conducted his own deals.

Up in Bronx borough, which has more room to grow in than little old Manhattan, new retail stores are frequently started. One of the busy ones recently visited was that of N. Donnias, the New York Florist, who is a good buyer in the wholesale district.

Charles Milburn, formerly with G. H. Small & Sons, visited the flower show. He has just been discharged from a three years' service in the army, and was picking up news of the happenings in the florist business since he went away.

We must again take the opportunity to say a good work for the Francis Scott Key roses. They were the leading features in F. R. Pierson's collection in the flower show.

M. C. Ford exhibited in the flower show, but not in competition, a vase of fine long stemmed American Beauty roses grown by Myers & Samtman, Chestnut Hill, Pa.

A. T. Bunyard arranged an elaborate wedding decoration in St. George's church, March 18. The leading features were peach blossoms and other spring flowers.

Joseph A. Millang is handling the sweet peas from the range of M. Matheron, whose stock took prizes and attracted much attention at the flower show.

The dull monotony of the trade was occasionally enlivened during the week by visits from out of town florists who were always welcome.

Edward Brenner is handling fine stock of Darwin and Flamingo tulips.

American Seed Trade Association.

E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, 216 Prospect Avenue, S. E., Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer.

The thirty-eighth annual meeting will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June 22-24, 1920.

RAFFIA is more freely offered.

THE price of bags at Chicago, March 24, was $62.

LIMA beans are coming in from Madagascar, Africa.

SEED POTATOES are wholesaling in New York at $3.50 per bushel.

THE better weather this week has greatly improved counter trade east and west.

CALIFORNIA seed growers are paying 24 cents there, against 11 cents last year, for distillate for their tractors.

SIOUX CITY, IA.—The capital stock of the Sioux City Seed Co. has been increased from $500,000 to $1,000,000.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—President E. C. Dungan, of the American Seed Trade Association, who has been in poor health for some time, is reported much improved.

A SHIPMENT of 97 bales of broom corn from Venice, Italy, was recently denied entry into the United States, due to the presence of the European corn borer.

NEW YORK.—C. W. Scott, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., returned from the Pacific coast last week, accompanied by Hamakichi Suzuki, Yokohama, Japan. They met at Seattle, and also visited San Francisco and Los Angeles, Calif.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district are about the same as last week, $3.00 to $3.50. Buyers continue cautious, but some dealers predict increased demand and higher prices early next month. South side growers are well cleaned up on reds.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—Guy M. Purcell, vice-president and general manager of W. H. Small & Co., has been made a member of the traffic bureau of the chamber of commerce. All seedsmen report the demand much better than this time last year.

BENJAMIN F. BROWN, president of the Brown Bag Filling Machine Co., Fitchburg, Mass., sustained a fracture of the right hip by a recent fall on the ice. He is getting along very favorably and expects to be on his feet again in the not distant future.

SEATTLE, WASH.—Owing to much needed expansion, the Chas. H. Lilly Co., is offering a preferred stock issue of $350,000 through six national bond companies. The stock is offered at $98, with par value of $100, and may be redeemed at any time at $108 and pays seven per cent dividends.—H. M.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—John C. Bodger, of the John Bodger & Sons Co., writing last week says another half inch of rain has brought up the average fairly well in that locality, but they have no reserve moisture in the ground and will be compelled to irrigate early unless more rain comes soon. The prospects for flower seeds are very good, however, as the season is opening early.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — Alfred J. Brown, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., says general trade during March has not been up to the usual standard, there being too much snow on the ground the first half of the month, but that business is improving. Contract orders have exceeded his expectations.

LILY OF THE VALLEY.—Heavy imports of lily of the valley pips, delayed in transit, have arrived badly sprouted and many of them will be a total loss. Some 145 cases were refused by the importers at Chicago and offered for sale by the collector of customs this week, the lot bringing only $60.

MIAMI, FLA.—Claims made here regarding castor bean operations of the United States government are that the variety of seed supplied was entirely unsuitable for this section, seed was of low germination, and that the man sent into the district by the government to give planting and cultural instructions was incompetent.

WASHINGTON cabbage seed crop reports, just received, indicate a low yield, 10 or 20 per cent on Danish sorts, Glory and Red Rock. On most standard American varieties of cabbage, however, grown by experienced cabbage farmers, the crop will probably be a fair one, all subject of course, to weather conditions the coming weeks.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—President Massie, of Northrup, King & Co., says so far March has been exceptionally cold and stormy, and generally speaking, the season is late, trade only opening up now. Considering conditions, however, March business has held its own moderately well. Inquiries for garden seed are better than a year ago. The cold winter has damaged a great deal of seed corn, and as a result, active demand is setting in.

THE continued cold weather and consequent delay in the opening of the usual spring demand, resulted in a further decline in field seed prices during the week ending March 13, according to government reports. Dealers, however, are holding their prices on some kinds of seed firm, in anticipation of a heavy demand during the next few days, while they have reduced the prices on others rather than assume the risk of carrying over stocks at the present high figures.

Bruggerhof "Knew Beans".

A well known bean specialist relates that some 15 years ago he discovered a promising new variety in his trials, and submitted samples to the head of a prominent mail order house with the result that the latter requested a quantity grown. The mail order merchant later sent samples and description to several garden seed dealers, including the late F. W. Bruggerhof, requesting that they suggest a name for the novelty. Mr. Bruggerhof replied that so far as a name was concerned, he had no suggestion to make, but added that when his firm last catalogued the variety in 1864, it was named Nonpareil.

J. J. Wilson, of Newark, N. J., writes as follows: "F. W. Bruggerhof was a charming man to know. I do not think many men in the seed trade really knew him. I was very closely associated with him for 16 or 17 years, and I knew his virtues as well as his faults. He had a delightful personality, a large fund of anecdote and a splendid sense of humor. He had very pronounced likes and dislikes, and I think seed drummers were his bete noir. I can remember so well his bitter contempt for some of them. He seemed to relish so much an opportunity to 'sit' on them."

Grass Seeds.

There is an easier feeling in the timothy market because of the backward weather and consequent lighter demand than had been expected. Prices declined during the week 25 to 65 cents per 100 pounds in the principal markets. A decline in redtop and orchard grass prices of 50 cents to $1.00 per 100 pounds is noted at Toledo, Louisville and Chicago, but prices for Kentucky bluegrass have remained at the same level as last week.—Government seed report, March 20.

Corn Borer Quarantine.

On and after March 29, the quarantine on account of the European corn borer becomes effective, the federal horticultural board having issued Notice of Quarantine No. 43, which supersedes Quarantine No. 36 as follows:

"The fact has been determined by the secretary of agriculture, and notice is hereby given, that an injurious insect, the European corn borer (Py-

Typical Flowers of King Asters

As usual our Asters are American grown and were carefully inspected when in bloom and feel sure they are unsurpassed for quality.

Dreer's "Crimson Giant" Aster.

A superb late-branching variety, with perfect double flowers of rich rosy crimson, full of fire. Fine for cutting, showing up well under artificial light. 40 cts. per trade pkt.; $2.00 per oz.

Early Wonder Asters.

The earliest of all Asters, frequently coming into bloom before the end of June. Fine for cutting.

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
Pink	$0.40	$2.00
White	.40	2.00

King Asters.

The "King" Asters form a distinct class or type, and have many sterling qualities to recommend them to lovers of fine Asters. They are of strong, sturdy habit, growing fully 18 inches high, and bear from August to October very large double blossoms, the petals of which are more or less quilled, forming very attractive flowers.

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.

Lavender King. Pale lavender	.50	2.50
Pink King. An attractive shade of delicate shell-pink	.40	2.00
Rose King. A beautiful brilliant rose variety	.40	2.00

White King. Pure glistening white	.50	2.50
King Mixed. All colors	.40	2.00

Dreer's Superb Late Branching Asters.

The finest Asters for late August and September blooming.

The plants form strong, branching bushes, 2 to 2½ feet high, bearing on long strong stems their handsome Chrysanthemum-like flowers, which, under ordinary cultivation, average 5 inches across. The form of the flowers, together with the length of the stem, places them at the head of Asters for cutting. They come into bloom from two to three weeks after the average type, usually being at their best during September, and filling in the gap between the general run of Asters and Chrysanthemums. We offer eight beautiful and distinct colors, viz.:

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
Azure Blue. A rich, deep lavender	$0.30	$1.50
Pure White. Extra fine stock	.30	1.50
Shell Pink. An exquisite shade	.30	1.50
Rose Pink. A very desirable color	.30	1.50
Deep Rose. Rich and brilliant	.30	1.50

Lavender. A pale grayish-lavender	.30	1.50
Crimson. Very rich	.30	1.50
Finest Mixed. All the colors	.25	1.00

Astermums.

This strain of Giant Comet Asters was first exhibited at the Florists' Convention in 1912, and their immense size and Chrysanthemum-like appearance created a sensation. They closely resemble Crego's Giant, but come into bloom fully two weeks earlier. We offer three colors.

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
White Astermum	$0.40	$2.00
Pink "	.40	2.00
Lavender "	.40	2.00

Crego's Giant Comet Asters.

Magnificent fluffy flowers, averaging over 5 inches across, with long strong stems, the finest of this type. Comes into bloom in August, continuing well into September, and unlike most of the Comet sorts, stands when cut and is a good flower to ship. We offer five colors, of the highest quality.

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
White. Purest white	$0.40	$2.00
Pink. Delicate shell pink	.40	2.00
Purple. Bright purple	.40	2.00

Lavender. A rich deep shade	.40	2.00
Finest Mixed. All colors	.30	1.50

Royal Asters.

One of the best Asters of recent introduction, and might briefly be described as an early flowering form of our Superb Late-Branching variety, having all the good qualities of the latter but coming into bloom in July or early August and lasting in perfect condition a long time. We offer five beautiful and distinct colors, viz.:

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
Lavender. Soft lavender violet	$0.50	$2.50
Purple. Rich deep violet purple	.50	2.50
Rose Pink Rosy-pink, shaded white	.50	2.50
Shell Pink. Very delicate tint	.50	2.50
White. Pure white	.50	2.50
Finest Mixed. All colors	.40	2.00

New Red Aster "Sensation."

This is the reddest of all Red Asters, the color being a rich garnet or ox blood red which glistens in the sunshine like a live coal. The plants are of free-branching habit about 18 inches high; the very double flowers, averaging 3½ inches across, are borne freely on stems a foot long from early in August till the close of September. The intense color shows up well when cut, and makes a very brilliant bit of color in a bed or border. 50 cts. per trade pkt.; $2.50 per oz.

OTHER AMERICAN ASTERS

Lavender Gem. One of the most charming sorts. The flowers are of a true lavender shade and the petals are gracefully curled and twisted, and the blooms are borne on long stems .... .35 2.00

Peerless Pink. The flowers are enormous, globular in shape, many five inches across, of a most delightful and pleasing rich shell pink. First flowers appear about the middle of August, but the plant is at its zenith about four weeks later .... .25 2.00

Crimson Giant. This shade has been one which has seemed to lack intensity of color, but in this variety the blood red blossom is particularly bright .35 2.00

Sensation. The reddest of all red asters, the color being a dark rich garnet or ox-blood red which glistens in the sunshine like a live coal. The plants are of the free branching habit, about 18 inches high, the double flowers averaging about 3 inches in diameter are borne freely on stems about 12 inches long .... .35 2.00

Soleil D'Or (Golden Sun). Best Yellow Aster .... .25 ....

Mammoth Non-Lateral Branching White. 2 ft. This is without doubt the largest Aster on the market. Many of the flowers will measure four inches in diameter. The plants grow about two feet high with a low branching habit, and the flowers which are borne on non-lateral stems are full, with petals curled and incurved, making the flowers appear like a cross between an Ostrich Feather and a Giant Branching .... ¼ oz., 65c. .35 2.40

Mammoth Non-Lateral Branching Blue. 2 ft. Very like the preceding except the flowers are a medium shade of blue .... ⅛ oz., 50c. .35 3.00

American Beauty. Rose Pink. 2½ ft. Is similar in type of flower and growth to the well known Late Branching Asters, but differs in that all the large blossoms are produced on much longer and heavier stems. It is the first of a new strain of late branching habit, and of robust growth. The flowers are fully double to the last and are a most lovely shade of bright carmine-rose, almost identical with the World-Famous American Beauty Rose. Each plant forms a perfect bush .. ¼ oz., 65c .35 2.00

NEW YORK, March 22.—Celery, per crate, $2.50 to $4.25; cucumbers, per dozen, $1.00 to $2.25; mushrooms, 75 cents to $2.00 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 10 to 50 cents; lettuce, per dozen, 12 to 30 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $3.00 to $6.00.

Early Outdoor Lettuce.

For many years we have specialized on early outdoor lettuce and generally made a good profit, but last spring, we set a new mark, striking a high market with a heavy production. In fact, we sold the entire output at approximately 25 cents per pound, which is a big price for outdoor lettuce. We also had the interesting spectacle of seeing a next door neighbor trying to beat us at the game by plunging heavily into this early lettuce. But like most imitations, this one also lacked the original drive and failed for the simple reason that the plants used were tender greenhouse stock—not hardened. No sooner was their field planting complete, when a local cold wave set in and froze the entire block of plants—many thousands—black. So this competition was once more eliminated. To succeed at this early game, spare no pains to harden the plants. We expose to full air and even invite a light frost or two before transplanting to field. If properly prepared before hand, lettuce plants will withstand 20° for days. Also, immediately after setting, we draw some loose earth up against the plants completely hilling the plant and pushing it over a trifle away from the prevailing wind. Later on, this earth must be removed. For the extra reward expected, we must put pains into our work.

"HAMBURG LATE PINK" CHRYSANTHEMUM

Picture was taken Nov. 23, 1919, and will give a good idea of what "Hamburg Late Pink" looks like when grown to single stems and planted six inches each way.

"Hamburg Late Pink" is an improved late pink Maud Dean, having more petals, and if grown for late will hardly ever show an open center.

The average grower of chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle, and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. "Hamburg Late Pink" has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but, for late pink, one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November by taking an early bud, but some of the flowers will show open centers; but by selecting late buds, after October 1st, most of the flowers are cut during December, and would advise to select late buds, as the later buds will hardly ever show an open center, and some flowers can be had even in January. Keeping qualities are excellent, and where a graceful pink flower is wanted, "Hamburg Late Pink" cannot be surpassed.

"Hamburg Late Pink" will be disseminated in the spring of 1920.

JOHN WATSON, secretary of the American Association of Nurserymen, delivered an important address on the aims and progress of that organization, before the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, March 16, to which we hope to refer at greater length in an early issue.

MEMORIAL TREES. — Mrs. Mary K. Sherman, Chicago, announced March 21, following a conference with P. S. Ridsdale, secretary of the American Forestry Association, that plans for the planting of thousands of memorial trees throughout the country had been completed.

FILBERTS valued at $4,589,938, were imported into the United States during 1919. In pounds, 3,778,986 were shelled and 3,396,301 not shelled. Totals from principal sources of supply were as follows: Spain, 11,226,669 pounds; Italy, 11,333,765; Turkey in Europe, 2,479,662; France, 1,060,601.

Cherries in Wisconsin.

Wisconsin now has nearly 5,000 acres of cherry orchards, which according to G. F. Potter, horticulturist at the University of Wisconsin, yielded last year a crop valuded at $1,000,000. By far the greater part of this yield was produced on the Door county peninsula, only a small part being produced in Bayfield county in upper Wisconsin. The cherry industry has been developed largely during the past 12 years and it is still growing rapidly.

Sour cherries are grown almost exclusively, the Early Richmond being used to supply the early market and the Montmorency for finishing up the season. In Door county alone more than 4,000 pickers were required to harvest the 1919 crop. Few of the trees have reached their prime, so that more and more pickers will be required each year. Most of the cherries are marketed through a co-operative association of the growers. In order to protect itself against a possible glut in the market, the association has purchased and equipped a large canning factory which takes care of any surplus or overripe fruit.

Wisconsin now has what is reputed to be the largest sour cherry orchard in the world. It is located in Door county and it covers a little more than one solid square mile and contains 70,000 trees.

DEMAND IS WELL BALANCED.

While the passing of the influenza epidemic led to a notable decrease in funeral work, the business resulting from the automobile show and an increase in the number of weddings, served to more than counterbalance, so that all of the florists are reporting satisfaction over the showing made of late. The local growers are coming nearer to filling all the orders, and Portland and Spokane have been securing a good share of the shipping trade. The spring offerings have been catching the buyers' eyes lately and most of the window displays have taken full advantage of this situation. Pot hyacinths are among the leading sellers and daffodils are being used extensively. The supply of orchids has been increased, and those belonging to the cattleya family have proved justly popular. A large number of weddings have kept the decorators of the various stores quite busy. Carnations are coming along nicely, and making a better showing every day, so that no difficulty is found in maintaining prices. Sweet peas are being used for all purposes and have been holding up fine, although not keeping quite so well as during the early part of the month. Home grown violets are also being offered in a small way. Columbia, Ophelia and Ward roses are the three leaders from local growers with Rose Premier showing more and more plentifully.

NOTES.

A St. Patrick's day window that attracted a great deal of attention was shown by the Woodlawn Flower Shop. A gilded harp about seven feet in height was placed behind a tall green pedestal, holding two green parrots. These birds were chained to their places and floating over their heads were cards telling of the merits of this shop, arranged after the manner used by cartoonists to indicate conversation. Green carnations and spring novelties were the floral decorations used, and the sides of the window were draped in green velvet.

The local yield of Easter lilies promises to be plentiful, although spotted. An interview on the subject that was at once authoritative and interesting, appeared in one of the local dailies from Dr. Walter A. Moore of the Hollywood Gardens. This presented some of the problems confronting growers and dealers, and showed in a logical way, why higher prices must be obtained.

Rosaia Bros. have purchased the business of the Woodland Park Floral Company and will continue to operate the retail store at Third avenue and Madison street. Henry Day has been placed in charge of the branch store. This purchase will further increase the wholesale supply of this firm, and will also give a larger outlet for express shipments.

Anna F. Burns, of the Burns Floral Company, reported splendid sales of pot flowers last week. A mayor and five new councilmen were seated and from the way orders ran, plants have replaced cigars, etc., as political remembrances and reminders.

Fred H. Rowe, of McCoy's, says this firm will be able to use its new home on Second avenue for the Easter business, although the fixtures will still be far from complete.

Felix Rosaia says that the early March business is very much in excess of that for one year ago.

BOSTON ORCHID SHOW.

Held at Horticultural Hall, Boston, Mass., March 24-28.

A Brilliant Achievement.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society has scored another success in the great exhibition of orchids and other spring plants, held at Horticultural hall, Boston, Mass., March 24-28, preliminary account of which is given in our issue of March 27, page 537. The artistic arrangement and splendid setting of the show merited the highest commendation, while the individual exhibits displayed the greatest cultural skill, and possessed educational features of the first order for the professional gardener as well as the public. That the effort was appreciated, is shown by the large attendance of both local and non-resident patrons of horticulture.

Orchids, of course, were the predominating feature, and the exhibits of A. C. Burrage of Pride's Crossing, Mass., were lavish in variety, splendidly grown and grouped by a master hand. These collections included many rare and costly species and varieties, and a considerable number of them were arranged with fine effect on the trunks of trees in imitation of their native conditions. Equally good exhibits, though less comprehensive, were contributed by numerous other private growers. The commercial section was well represented, although it was thought by many that the restrictions of the federal horticultural board had the effect of materially curtailing the displays in this class. Heretofore, those who pursue horticulture and floriculture for profit, have been generous to a fault in transporting their collections of valuable plants and flowers long distances and at great expense and trouble, to encourage local communities in the development of a love of the beautiful, and we are pleased to find them still among the foremost in this good work, notwithstanding present hardships. Especially noteworthy in this group were the extensive displays of the Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., containing many well grown plants of great interest to collectors.

Hardly less interesting than the orchids were the Kurume azaleas exhibited by C. S. Sargent, Brookline, Mass., introduced into this country by E. H. Wilson, of the Arnold Arboretum. These azaleas were found growing at Kurume, Japan, and given the name of that place. After extended negotiations, in which he was rendered great assistance by Hamakichi Suzuki, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., Yokohama, Japan, a number of the plants were secured and sent to the United States. The exhibit, occupying a platform of generous proportions which enabled visitors to closely examine the distinguishing features of these handsome plants, was always a center of interest, each being as pleasing in form as in delicacy of coloring. While some of the varieties are in effect a perfect flower within a perfect flower, they are not double as the term properly applies. In them, the stamens, five in number, and the pistil, are perfect, and there is no malformation as is the case in many double flowers. The Kurume azaleas have been cultivated by the Japanese with such painstaking care, that there are now numerous varieties, and taking all of them into consideration, it may be said that they present the same range of color as sweet peas.

Thomas Roland, of Nahant, Mass., made a fine showing of his famous acacias, and Walter Hunnewell, Wellesley, Mass., exhibited a greatly improved type of Azalea mollis in fine form. R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Boston, contributed an attractive display of Lilium Regale, and there were many good groups of foliage and flowering plants from various private and commercial growers in and around the city. Cut flowers were likewise noteworthy, especially the orchids.

During the show, there were several conferences of orchid specialists, at which papers were read by Professor Oakes Ames, of the Harvard Botanic Garden, Cambridge, Mass., on "Orchid Classification," and John E. Lager, of Summit, N. J., on "Orchid Collecting." A start was also made in the organization of an orchid society, particulars of which will be found elsewhere in this issue.

The Awards.

The exhibit of orchids by Albert C. Burrage, as was to be expected, won gold medals, silver medals and first class certificates of merit for individual plants, beside many first prizes. To Douglas Eccleston and George I. Anson, the orchidologists, who arranged the Burrage exhibit, unstinted praise was given. The Charles S. Sargent exhibit of Kurume azaleas won an honor which has never before been given. The collection secured two gold medals and each of the 50 plants in the collection received a first-class certificate of merit. A gold medal was also given to Thomas Roland for his magnificent exhibit of acacias.

A series of exhibits in the loggia which attracted many, consisted of displays by commercial florists, who were allowed to choose their own forms of exhibits. A silver medal was awarded to Penn, the Florist, for flowers arranged on dishes for home decoration, the award being for effective simplicity rather than number of flowers. The Houghton-Gorney Flower Shop received a silver medal for baskets, vases, old-fashioned formal bouquets and a bridal bouquet composed of gardenias and swainsona, an unusual and most attractive combination. The Beacon Florist received a bronze medal for an exhibit which featured "living" floral pictures and flowers arranged in artistic vases. Other awards were made as follows:

Orchid Show Dinner.

An event of importance was the deligthful dinner given in honor of the opening of the orchid show by the horticultural interests of Boston, Mass., to which all visiting members of the craft were invited. This was at the Parker house on the evening of March 24. S. H. Wilson acted as toastmaster, and was especially happy in his introductions of the various speakers. After an excellent menu had been served, he welcomed the guests warmly, and hoped they would drink deep in the waters of good fellowship. John K. M. L. Farquhar was the first speaker. He declared the present exhibition was the highest in the quality of its exhibits of any ever held in this country. F. R. Pierson praised the great perfection of the exhibits of the orchid display, and gave interesting information regarding the New York exhibition of the week before. Arthur Herrington also spoke interestingly of the New York show, of which he had been manager, and referred in glowing terms to the orchid display then on exhibition. Thomas Allen emphasized the importance of proper arrangement of plants to get correct color effects. Leonard Barron discussed the great advance in orchid culture in the past decade. Thomas Roland saw encouraging signs for the future of horticulture in the splendid co-operation of the trade in all such exhibitions as the present and those of other cities. Henry Penn said he believed such shows as those of New York and the present orchid exhibition had great influence in creating a love for flowers. Other speakers were Jos. Manda, S. J. Goddard, F. H. Dunlop, Wm. Bartsch, Wm. N. Craig, Percy Gallagher, Frederick Law Olmstead, Patrick Welch and Robert Kift.

American Orchid Society.

TEMPORARY ORGANIZATION AT BOSTON.

Orchid lovers and enthusiastic growers of this flower took advantage of the occasion when so many were gathered at the exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society at Boston, March 24-28, to organize the American Orchid Society. A meeting was held in the lower lecture room of Horticultural hall, March 25, attended by exhibitors and others interested, at which a temporary organization was effected and plans were made for a permanent body. Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass., was chosen president, William N. Craig, Boston, secretary, and Alfred J. Loveless, Lenox, Mass., treasurer. A committee of 15 was named to draw up a constitution and by-laws to be submitted when the permanent organization is perfected.

The first act of the new society was to send a telegram to Albert C. Burrage, Beverly Farms, Mass., at present in Pasadena, Calif., telling of the great success of the exhibition and the formation of the American Orchid Society, to which Mr. Burrage telegraphed as follows:

"W. N. Craig, Secretary,
American Orchid Society.

"Thanks for telegram received coming from such experts as constitute the American Orchid Society. It surely is ample reward for labor and time required to develop such an exhibit as we have put in this week's Horticultural Society's show. I am delighted the exhibition was successful and that so many people are interested. My only regret is that I am unable to be present and enjoy it."

William C. Endicott, president of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society gave an informal luncheon to exhibitors and other guests Friday afternon in the library. Among those present was Miss Eileen Low, daughter of Stuart Low, London, Eng. Miss Low's visit was principally to attend the flower shows in New York and Boston, the display of orchids in the latter comparing favorably with those held in London. The following interesting papers were read at the orchid conferences, which were held in the lower lecture hall, on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday afternoons respectively, at 3 o'clock: "Basis of Orchid Classification," by Oakes Ames, and "Geographical Distribution of Orchids" by E. H. Wilson; "History of Orchid Culture in the United States" by W. A. Manda, and "Collecting Orchids" by John E. Lager; "History of Orchids in England" by George I'Anson.

By special permission of Mayor Peters, the exhibition was open on Sunday from 9 a. m. until noon for the free admission of school children, accompanied by their teachers, which gave an opportunity that was greatly enjoyed by a large number who otherwise could not have attended. At the close of the show, all of the cut orchids in the Burrage display were distributed among the various hospitals of the city.

National Flower Growers' Association.

BOSTON BRANCH ORGANIZED.

A meeting of more than 70 representative plant and cut flower growers of Boston, Mass., and vicinity, advance mention of which appeared in our issue of March 20, page 468, was held at the American House, Boston, March 23, having for its object co-operation with similar interests in various parts of the country to form a national growers' association, and the gathering proved a very enthusiastic one. J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill., past president of the Society of American Florists, and temporary secretary of the new national growers' body, was present in response to an invitation of the directors of the Boston Flower Exchange, to explain the purposes and benefits of the new association. After describing the good results obtained by all of the other affiliated organizations of the S. A. F., particularly the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, with its annual business of $2,000,000 or more, he predicted that the growers' association would soon lead them all in its financial and other benefits to members. He called attention to the fact that considering all lines of the business, on the basis of capital invested, the growers represented fully 90 per cent, and yet, up to the present time, they had not organized as a body. Individually, the business methods of the great majority were very crude, as few are able to say how much any of their various crops costs to produce. They have no control over the prices their products brought, which varied from day to day, depending on the demand, and frequently results were not known for 30 days. Every article used in the growers' equipment is bought from industries that are organized—steel, glass, paint, lumber, coal, and other such requisites of the business are controlled by national bodies, the different factors of which get together for their own benefit. He said the time was now ripe for the producers of plants and cut flowers in their various communities to get together and organize for their common good. All men are rarely of one mind; there had been opposition to every new movement. The Florists Hail Association, now so successful, was not considered practical, and the F. T. D. was several times on the point of collapse. The national publicity campaign, which had done so much good, was even yet carried on by a comparatively few men of vision, of whom the late Joseph Heacock was a bright example. Its impluse was being felt now in a number of cities which was starting local companies, of which much was expected. He cited the great success of the Chicago movement which had banded together 400 men in the trade for a local publicity campaign.

National publicity is bringing to retailers in New York, and through them to local growers, $400,000 worth of business a year, which amount in orders they fill for florists from all over the country. The F. T. D. now has 1,300 live members, an organization that is a benefit to every one of them. The organizing for mutual advantage is a matter of education; when men get the ideas of others, and think them over, they come gradually to see the benefits to be derived, and are then glad to cooperate. What is necessary is for growers of every live community to get together and elect five responsible men who will consider it a duty to go to the Cleveland convention of the S. A. F. in August, to carry out the ideas and best thoughts of their local body in framing a constitution and by-laws for the national organization, of which they are to be a part.

The dues of the members are to be $1.00 per thousand square feet of glass covered ground, 50 per cent of which is to go to the national association for publicity and other necessary expenditures in which every local body through their representatives will have a voice. The speaker cited as an example of the the benefits of getting together, the milk industry, prices now being made a month ahead, so that day by day, the producer knows exactly what his returns are to be. In the late war, there was co-operation to put down tyranny. If men can organize to kill, they can get together to cure. In closing, Mr. Ammann said: "Now is the opportune time. It is up to the growers of the country; it is up to you men of Boston to receive by co-operation the benefits of this national organization!

Wallace R. Pierson made a forceful address along the same lines. In speaking of the various benefits to be derived, he cited that of credits, which had been so successfully managed by the wholesale trade in the city of New York. There was also the question of labor and wages for greenhouse employes, who if they are to be retained and their ranks added to, must be guaranteed the same renumeration as is open to them elsewhere; this is a burning question which must be solved and this organization is the way do to it. Boston he thought, should take in all New England plant and cut flower growers, who would meet local conditions as they found them. The minimum dues should be not less than $10 per year, paid quarterly in advance, 50 per cent of which was to go to the national association in the same way.

The question of growers of outdoor flowers was brought up which would, it was thought, be best handled by each local body, when organized. The getting together was for the betterment of all interests, and not to antogonize any one. At the conclusion of the addresses, Samuel J. Goddard, moved that it was the consensus of opinion of those present that such an organization should be immediately formed, which was unanimously adopted. Temporary officers were elected as follows: Wm. T. Sickel, president; Andrew Christensen, secretary; Frank Edgar, treasurer. Five delegates to represent the local branch at the Cleveland meeting in August were elected namely: George Elliot, Alfred Potts, Thos. Roland, Herman Bartsch and Samuel J. Goddard.

Those present then signed their names as charter members of the organization. After a rising vote of thanks to the speakers, the meeting which marked a great step forward in the florist industry of Boston, then adjourned.

ANNUAL MEETING AND OFFICERS' REPORTS.

The twenty-first annual meeting of the American Rose Society was held at New York, March 18, a brief report of which, and announcement of the re-election of incumbent officers, appeared in our issue of March 20, page 468. Below will be found the report of Secretary E. A. White, from which we have omitted such parts as refer to the annual address of President Pyle, and the report of Treasurer Harry O. May, both of which were printed in our issue of March 27, page 536.

SECRETARY WHITE'S ANNUAL REPORT.

The twenty-first annual meeting of the American Rose Society was held in Grand Central Palace, New York, March 16, 1920, at 3 p. m. President Robert Pyle of West Grove, Pa., occupied the chair.

Since the last annual meeting, seven sessions of the executive committee have been held, with an average attendance of nine members. On June 2, 1919, the members of the committee, with interested rosarians, met Dr. Van Fleet in his test garden at Bell, Md., and spent a most enjoyable and profitable afternoon looking over the recently introduced rose novelties, which are under Dr. Van Fleet's supervision, and inspecting his many seedlings. In the evening, the executive committee held a joint session with the Washington rose test garden committee to perfect plans for the inspection of the national rose test garden on the following day. Dr. E. M. Mills, B. H. Farr, Charles E. F. Gersdorff, Alexander Cumming, L. A. Anderson and S. C. Hubbard were appointed judges. The question of an exhibition rose garden was discussed, and it was voted that the American Rose Society should endeavor to secure the establishment of a permanent exhibition rose garden in Washington, and a committee consisting of J. Horace McFarland, Frederick Law Olmsted, Representative James B. Mann and S. S. Pennock was appointed for developing the project. The question of the introduction of Dr. Van Fleet's seedlings was discussed, and a committee consisting of the president, S. S. Pennock, J. Horace McFarland, E. G. Hill and Robert Simpson was appointed to formulate a plan to effectively disseminate Dr. Van Fleet's rose introductions.

On June 3, the executive committee and the judges met at 10 a. m., in the Washington, D. C., rose test gardens, and made a careful inspection. The roses were in most excellent condition, and many interesting varieties were in bloom. Following the inspection a luncheon was held at the Ebbitt house and automobiles were then taken for a trip to Mrs. Bell's rose garden at Twin Oaks. In the evening, Peter Bisset, of the United States department of agriculture, lectured at the new national museum.

June 4 was indeed a "red-letter day" for the society. In response to an invitation extended by Captain George C. Thomas, the executive committee met at 9:30 a. m., in his beautiful rose garden at Chestnut Hill, Pa. After an inspection of the garden, there was a session of the committee. At the last annual meeting of the society, Captain Thomas was elected president, but he found it impossible to serve. The committee therefore elected Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa., to serve as president for the year beginning July 1, 1919. The remainder of the session was devoted to a consideration of proposed changes in the constitution and by-laws as presented by a committee at the last meeting. The proposed changes will be sent to each member at a later date.

After the session of the committee, Captain and Mrs. Thomas entertained the members and their friends at a most enjoyable luncheon. On this occasion, Dr. E. M. Mills, in his gracious manner, on behalf of the officers and executive committee, presented the retiring president, Benjamin Hammond, with a special leather-bound volume of Captain Thomas' book on outdoor rose growing, in appreciation of Mr. Hammond's 14 years of valuable service to the society; 12 years as secretary, and two years as president. Mr. Hammond responded in a few well chosen words, expressing his appreciation of the kindly motive which prompted the gift. Following this presentation, Captain Thomas dedicated his seedling, No. 720, to Dr. Robert H. Huey, in recognition of the inspiration for rose culture and breeding which he had received through Dr. Huey's intense love of roses. He formally christened it "Dr. Huey."

At 2 p. m., about 100 members of the American Rose Society gathered in Captain Thomas' garden. After a general inspection, Mr. Hammond introduced Captain Thomas, who spoke a few words of welcome. He expressed the pleasure it gave him to share his garden with others, and he hoped the guests would make the garden theirs for the afternoon. J. Horace McFarland discussed American roses, emphasizing the value of the work Dr. Van Fleet and Captain Thomas have done in introducing types of roses suited for American conditions. He was followed by the "silver-tongued orator from Indiana," who is universally known and loved—E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind. Robert Pyle, the newly elected president, closed the formal programme of the afternoon, emphasizing the value of the work the society is doing in reaching a large number of rose lovers, and in carrying to them information of much value.

On July 14 a meeting of the executive committee was held at the City Club, New York. President Pyle opened the meeting with an outline of what he thought should be the policy of the society during the coming year. These policies will be published in the forthcoming Rose Annual, and if carried out, they will make the American Rose Society one of the most efficient floricultural organizations. The president announced the appointment of the following vice-presidents for the coming year: Dr. E. M. Mills, Dr. Robert Huey, E. G. Hill and John Cook. Dr. Mills was named a member of the executive committee to succeed Robert Pyle. J. Horace McFarland was elected editor, and O. P. Beckley advertising manager of the American Rose Annual for 1920. It was voted to accept the proposition of the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College to establish a rose test garden at that institution. A committee consisting of F. L. Atkins, J. Horace McFarland and J. A. Currey was appointed to outline a policy in regard to the establishment of rose test gardends in the various sections of the United States.

On August 21, a short meeting was held at the S. A. F. convention in Detroit. In the absence of President Pyle, E. G. Hill acted as chairman and Benjamin Hammond as secretary. No official business was transacted.

A meeting of the executive committee was held at the City Club, New York, September 17, 1919. F. L. Atkins, chairman of the committee to outline a policy in regard to the establishment of rose test gardens, made a preliminary report. It was the opinion of the committee that the test gardens should be established only in certain climatic zones. The department of agriculture at Washington has prepared a map showing the rose-growing zones in the United States, which will be published in the 1920 Rose Annual. The report of the committee governing exhibitions of garden roses was received from the chairman, Dr. A. C. Beal, and was accepted by the executive committee. These rules and regulations are now printed, and can be obtained from the office of the secretary.

At the executive committee meeting, November 20, 1919, it was voted that the committee to foster the cut rose interests be authorized to negotiate with the officials of the New York flower show, or other organizations, regarding the spring exhibition of the society and the admission of the members to the exhibition. President Pyle was designated the official representative of the American Rose Society to serve on the board of directors of the S. A. F. J. Horace McFarland reported that a set of 60 lantern slides of American roses and American rose gardens had been prepared to send to the National Rose Society of England, to be shown by the secretary, Courtney Page, at the annual meeting of the society, and afterwards before other English rose organizations. These were sent with the compliments of the American Rose Society, and President Pyle was authorized to send a message of greeting from the American Rose Society to the National Rose Society of England. The following persons were named to constitute a committee to increase membership: J. Horace McFarland, Dr. F. M. Mills, Miss Carrie Harrison and J. A. Currey.

At a meeting of the executive committee held at the City Club, January 12, 1920, G. H. Peterson tendered his resignation from the rose registration committee, because he would be in Florida for an indefinite period. President Pyle appointed F. L. Atkins to fill the vacancy. Because of ill health, J. F. Huss resigned from the chairmanship of the Hartford rose test gardens committee. Alexander Cumming was named as chairman. Judges were appointed for the spring exhibition of roses, which the committee had arranged to hold in co-operation with the flower show in New York, March 15-21, 1920. It was voted that the president should appoint a committee on legislation, to which will be referred all questions relating to national and state quarantine and similar regulative matters, such committee to have power to represent the American Rose Society. J. Horace McFarland, S. S. Pennock, Benjamin Hammond, James Boyd and Dr. E. M. Mills were named on the committee. The executive committee then voted on the three best eligible varieties of roses for the Gertrude M. Hubbard gold medal. As a result of this vote, the medal was awarded to Columbia, registered in 1916 by the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.

The secretary reported a total membership to March 12, 1920, of 1,648.

New York Florists' Club Dinner.

The thirty-third annual dinner of the New York Florists' Club, held at the Biltmore, March 17, was the largest ever given by the club, there being over 400 seated at the separate tables, which entirely filled the large ball room. Between the courses of the excellent menu there was singing of popular songs, in which all joined with a will. The past-president of the club was presented with a handsome set of table silver. Past President J. F. Ammann and President A. L. Miller, of the Society of American Florists, made short addresses, as did commissioners of the parks of New York and Brooklyn. There was an elimination dance, the winners of which were presented with prizes. It was a delightful evening, one of the most enjoyable ever given by the club.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW COMMITTEE.

A meeting of the national flower show committee was held at the Grand Central Palace, New York, March 17. There were present: Chairman George Asmus, Chicago; Secretary John Young, New York; Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; Patrick Welch, Boston, Mass.; Herman P. Knoble, Cleveland, Ohio, and F. H. Traendly, New York. Professor E. A. White, Ithaca, N. Y., represented the American Rose Society, and Samuel J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., the American Carnation Society. There were also present, Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., and President A. L. Miller, of the S. A. F.

Selection of a city in which to hold the next national flower show was the first business of the meeting. Mr. Knoble suggested Cleveland as a city which could house the show satisfactorily. The new municipal building in that city, he said, was expected to be completed in about a year, and he had every reason to believe that advantageous arrangements could be made with the proper authorities for the use of the main hall for the show. The various horticultural interests of Cleveland were, he said, most anxious that the next show be held in their city. On motion of Mr. Roland, seconded by Mr. Welch, it was decided that the next show be held in Cleveland, in the spring of 1922, providing adequate arrangements can be made with the Cleveland interests. Mr. Knoble moved, seconded by Mr. Roland, that the show open on Saturday, March 25, and close Saturday, April 1, and a poll vote resulted in the unanimous adoption of these dates, which were considered most desirable, Easter in 1922 falling on April 16.

Mr. Roland emphasized the importance of preparing and distributing a preliminary schedule of premiums for plants at as early a date as possible, and recommended that a sub-committee be appointed to prepare such a schedule, and submit the same at a later meeting of the committee, which should be held, in the near future, in Cleveland, and then and there settled. The month of June was suggested as a good time for this meeting. The chairman appointed Messrs. Roland, Traendly, Knoble, and Wm. H. Duckham as such sub-committee.

Prof. White received the assurance of the committee that the same arrangements made for the co-operation of the American Rose Society in the projected national flower show in St. Louis in 1918, which show was, owing to the circumstances, postponed, would be entered into for the Cleveland show; and Mr. Goddard, for the American Carnation Society, was given similar assurance.

By unanimous vote, the sub-committee on schedule was given authority to prepare a preliminary schedule of prizes, which should not exceed a total value of $20,000, this amount to include all special premiums which might be offered, and which it was distinctly understood, should be applied to the reduction of the amount of the total.

Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass
President American Orchid Society.

Mr. Knoble was requested to take the necessary steps for organizing the local interests of Cleveland, so that an open meeting could be held at the time of the meeting of the committee there in June, when matters pertaining to the show could be fully discussed; and he was given authority to arrange for this meeting. It was voted that Chairman Asmus and Mr. Knoble be appointed a committee to negotiate with the proper authorities for quarters for the show.

The chairman announced that, following the precedent set in Philadelphia, at the proper time, various committees would be appointed to take charge of the work of the show.

The secretary was authorized to proceed at once with the selling of space in the trade section of the show, with the understanding that if for any reason, the show be not held in Cleveland, the contracts made would become void through cancellation. The rates for space it was arranged should be determined at the next meeting of the committee.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

National Publicity for Flowers.

It is cheering indeed to receive a letter such as the following:

"Ann Arbor, Mich., March 24, 1920.

"John Young, 1170 Broadway, New York.

"At our convention held in Lansing last week, a donation to the national publicity campaign was suggested. As this is the first year of our organization, our treasury would hardly stand a suitable donation to this worthy cause. Nevertheless, we were able to raise $127.00 by popular subscription which I herewith enclose. Please credit this to the Michigan State Florists' Association, and I trust in the years to come this association will be able to support this campaign to a far greater degree.

W. S. WELLS,
Treas., Michigan State Florists' Ass'n.

At the recent meeting of the publicity committee in New York, a number of specimen page advertisements in colors appearing during the past few weeks in the magazines, were offered for inspection. These advertisments were inserted by different manufacturers, and flowers were in every case featured in connection with the specialties advertised, the latter rather inconspicuously obtruded, dependence on the flowers for attraction to the advertisement being most obvious. A well-known hat manufacturer, whose issue of handsome poster cards, drawing attention to a particular make of hats has long been a feature of his advertising, this spring is using a poster showing no pictorial design other than a splendid basket of spring flowers. This is truly saying it with flowers.

Plans for our magazine advertising in the immediate future are now settled, meeting the appropriation made by our committee for the purpose. Mothers' day is to be featured in the big weeklies, in well designed advertisements each occupying two columns; and several two-column advertisements will appear in the June monthlies, with page advertisements in two leading magazines in May. A two column advertisement will also appear in a leading Canadian magazine. During the dull summer months, a smaller double-column advertise ment will appear in a selected list of weeklies and monthlies, giving, practically, continuous publicity for our slogan throughout these months. Our committee was unable to take advantage of one or two of the biggest magazines.

for the reason, often stated in this column, that contracts are required to be made so far ahead that the committee could not conscientiously incur the necessary liability without having sufficient funds in sight.

If a greater and more reasonable support in the way of contributions to the campaign fund were forthcoming, much more could be accomplished. The fund so far available has worked wonders, not only through the publicity we have been able to buy, but through the extra publicity which it has incited, in ways entirely unconceived. Our investment—we must surely call it this, since we are getting full and satisfactory returns for our expenditures—can hardly now be figured in dollars and cents, when we consider it in the light of an asset. Many industrial captains have spent 10 times the amount of money for publicity that the florists have spent, yet look upon our publicity with envious eyes, surprised at the tremendous results we have obtained for so little.

Still, we are only at the edge of the ocean of possibility open to us. We want more money, much more, to secure our full measure of benefit. We are like the small, hungry boy looking into the pastry shop window, without a penny to satisfy his burning desire to taste of the good things he sees. If those florists who have not subscribed to the fund, would only realize what there is before us, they would gladly dip down into their pockets and produce the necessary funds to enable us to make our slogan, one daily, hourly almost, in the public mind. Just think of it—there are more than one hundred million birthdays observed in this country each year. There are, perhaps, one-fifth as many wedding anniversaries, and just as many other occasions when a timely suggestion, "Say it with Flowers," would add to the volume of the florist business. This is what we aim to accomplish—but we cannot do it without the necessary support. Do you, Mr. Nonsubscriber, realize this? Cannot you be convinced?

Your pledge will be quite acceptable, if an immediate cash subscription is inconvenient.

The following subscriptions have been received, and are in addition to those previously announced, annually for four years, unless otherwise stated:

LIGHT BUYING AT LOW PRICES.

Market conditions the past week have lacked vim, the supply being greater than the demand. The stock in all lines is of splendid quality, and offered at prices that should have moved it quickly, but buyers, who during January and February were begging for carnations at from 15 to 18 cents, now turn down better stock offered at from four to six cents. Roses bring fair prices for the season, 9, 12, 15, and 18 to 24-inch stems ranging from $4 to $18 per hundred, while a few of the specials bring more. Callas are quite plentiful, but good stock brings $12 to $15, as also do Easter lilies. There is much speculation as to the Easter price of cut longiflorums, which several market experts say will not be over 20 cents. Carnations are expected to go to $10, and possibly, $12. Daffodils have not been any too plentiful, and cleaned up daily at six cents. The first gladioli made their appearance the past week and brought $3 per dozen. Sweet peas are plentiful, but cleaned up fairly well at from $1 to $3 per hundred. Very good Nelrose snapdragons brought $2.50 to $4 per dozen.

GOOD ROSE STOCK OFFERED.

Thos. Roland, Wm. H. Elliott and Sons Co., Inc., and the Budlong Rose Co., are large shippers of roses to this market, their stock being offered through their own sales forces. All cut roses are handled in layers of two rows of 12 buds, each spread out on a sheet of oil paper. The stems are covered with cracked ice. As they lie on the market counters, six or eight sheets laid one above the other, with only the buds exposed, they look inviting. This is considered to be the ideal way of handling roses in this market. Crusader and Pilgrim, from the Montgomery Rose Co., Hadley, Mass., were offered in fair quantity. They were good flowers, Crusader having long stems and large, rich red buds. A new rose, a sport of Ophelia, with a distinct pink edging on the buds, was sent in by Geo. W. Hilliard, Exeter, N. H. It looks to be quite distinct, and attracted considerable attention.

NOTES.

Wm. H. Elliott & Sons Co., Inc., Madbury, N. H., and Boston Mass., is now the name under which Mr. Elliott's business is carried on, the business being incorporated under the laws of New Hampshire, going into effect March 1. The capital is $200,000. The officers are Mr. Elliott and his two sons, John having charge of the Madbury, N. H., range while the Brighton greenhouses will be managed by George. Mr. Elliott is now in California with Mrs. Elliot, visiting their daughter, who resides there.

Welch Bros. Co. looks forward to a good Easter trade. Sweet peas, daffodils, carnations and cut roses are features. Easter plants are being largely handled. Short, bushy Magna Charta roses, in five to six inch pots, carrying six to eight buds looked ideal for Easter.

Everything points to a good Easter. There is offered by the growers a splendid stock in great variety of well flowered plants, the hydrangeas, rambler roses, lilies, daisies, bougainvilleas and genistas being particularly fine.

The L. J. Reuter Co., who specialize in rooted cuttings and other kinds of florists' stock, reported a great run on cannas and geraniums, the young stock of the latter being particularly in demand. K.

Pittsburgh, Pa.

DEMAND IS SATISFACTORY.

Business is good. Stock is arriving in large quantities, and prices are much lower than some time ago, but no lower than this time last year. The warm weather has caused some stock to arrive in poor condition, especially violets and sweet peas. Roses are coming in good shape and the better grades sell quickly, but the poor qualities are hard to move. Carnation receipts are heavy, and the stock is of very good quality. Easter lilies and callas are the best received in this market for years, but have been moving slowly. Other seasonable items such as bulbous stock, snapragons, mignonette and calendulas are in oversupply. The Easter outlook is good, but some retailers are slow in getting their orders placed, and it looks as though some would get left at the last minute as usual, because the demand is going to be big at the last call, and there is not going to be any oversupply in any item from the present reports.

NOTES.

Theo. Verscharen had the misfortune to have a fire which destroyed the entire upper floor of his residence and the contents. He will have one of the finest crops of Easter lilies in his history.

Hugh Boyd, auditor, and Homer D. Wood, manager of the local factory of the McCallum Co., have both been confined to their homes, with the grippe for the past week.

DEMAND BRISK IN ALL LINES.

Trade has improved quite a good deal over the previous week, and the demand is now strong for all lines of stock. Funeral work has been very steady, and has called for a great quantity of flowers that could be used for any other purpose. Shipping trade has also increased, and this has been of much benefit to the market. There is a great supply of roses of nearly every variety with the exception of American Beauty. Russells are now at their finest. Carnations are in large supply with no change in prices. Laddie is still high owing to the limited supply. Sweet peas from outdoors made their first appearance this week. The stock offered was excellent and it sold on sight for $2 per dozen bunches. Indoor stock brings $1.50 per dozen bunches. The first Spanish irises were also noted this week. They cleaned up quickly at nice figures. Daffodils have stiffened considerably in price. Lily of the valley has shortened up, not much of it being noted last week. Violets are beginning to show the effects of a long season and are losing a great deal in popular favor as well as in quality. Snapdragon is in much more demand than the supply is able to take care of. Whatever stock comes in, is quickly sold out. Cattleyas are very scarce with a brisk demand. In pot plants, rhododendrons, azaleas and rambler roses are being offered. Ferns and greens of all kinds are in large supply.

NOTES.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. will receive large shipments of flowering plants from their nursery from now until Easter. All the Easter specialties are being grown there this season. This firm advises that they have been engaged by the city council of Reno, Nevada, to prepare plans for Wingfield park in that city and submit them as soon as possible.

Victor Ferrari, manager of Ferrari Bros. range, will be in with a fine lot of Lilium giganteum for Easter. He has one large house numbering several thousand plants. The gardenias now being shipped from this place are as fine as can be grown anywhere. Workmen are busy rebuilding several of the older rose houses.

At Albert O. Stein's large store on Sutter street, great preparations are being made to handle the Easter business. Large stocks of rhododendrons Pink Pearl and Lady Armstrong are now being received. Azaleas in various colors will be another specialty. Erica melanthera in all sizes will be featured.

Manuel Rolleri, proprietor of the Western Evergreen Nursery, will have giganteums just right for Easter. Several houses of rambler roses and hydrangeas look in first class shape. Work on his two new rose houses is about completed. They will be used for Russells exclusively.

Eric James' range is a busy place these days, shipping Easter plants. Large lots are going to southern California cities every day. Rambler roses make up the principal item in all the shipments.

The Thomas Floral Company will specialize in flowering plants this Easter. They carry a fine stock of decorative pottery in all sizes and much of their stock will be sold in this container.

The Silva Bergtholdt Nursery Company, of Newcastle, has filed articles of incorporation for $250,000. This firm was formerly known as the Silva Bergtholdt Nurseries.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. have arranged to secure additional space to carry their immense Easter stock of plants. Frank Pelicano looks for a record Easter business.

The Wild Flower Conservation League of California has announced plans for its annual flower show to be held at the Fairmont hotel, next month.

J. A. Axell says that mignonette for Easter stock is coming in heavily. He will have a splendid stock as his growers will be in full crop.

Kenneth S. Murray, of Redwood City, is sending in a large cut of high grade roses to the wholesale house of J. A. Axell.

PRE-EASTER DEMAND LIGHT

The past week in the florist business has been a quiet one, but that is the usual trend of affairs just prior to Easter. Active preparations have been made for an extra large trade, and indications point to a profusion of flowers of all kinds for that occasion. Prices will be from 50 to 75 per cent less than have prevailed during the winter months, when there was a scarcity of flowers. During the past week social activity has been extremely dull, also but few funerals, and on the whole, there was little doing. Easter lilies will be available in large quantities. Jonquils in pots will sell in the neighborhood of $1 to $5, while rambler roses will command from $8 to $15 for the plant. Hydrangeas, hyacinths, tulips, primroses and Martha Washington geraniums will also be in evidence during the Easter period. Roses will probably be plentiful, judging from the present condition of the market. They will sell for $4 to $12 per dozen. Carnations will be quoted from $3 to $4 per dozen, while sweet peas and violets will be about 75 cents to $1.50 a bunch and $2 a bunch respectively. Snapdragons will be in the market in larger quantities.

INDICATIONS PROMISE RECORD BUSINESS.

By the time this goes to press, the Easter rush will be in full swing. At this writing, it is hard to predict just how the business will turn out. If present indications are any criterion to go by, it surely will be a record breaker. The unusual amount of sunshiny weather is a great handicap to some growers, while to others it is a blessing in disguise, in so much as it is going to develop bulbous stock in a hurry. The commission men are prepared for the rush, and in a general sense, the prices asked on stock for Easter delivery are fair. Roses will be good, and the prices range from $8 to $37 per hundred. There will be plenty of sleepy carnations, but the good ones will probably bring around $10 per hundred. Lily of the valley is quoted at $8 per hundred by some, by others, $12.

NOTES.

C. E. Critchell is handling some extra fine snapdragon, also the roses from the Jos. H. Hill Co., which maintain their high standard of excellence.

The Cincinnati Florists' Exchange has been headquarters for choice lily of the valley. Greens of all kinds are in good supply here.

The Avondale Floral Co. has an unusually fine display this year and everything is in readiness for a banner Easter.

C. E. Gillette is strong on Gov. Herrick violets. The wire work demand is unusually brisk.

H. W. Sheppard expects big business, and is equipped and prepared to meet every contingency.

FINE WEATHER BRINGS GOOD SUPPLY.

With ideal weather prevailing, stock has become plentiful. Tulips, hyacinths and daffodils are seen in all stores, the latter being offered at special sales at $1 per dozen. Carnations are in generous supply with a drop to six cents wholesale for the best grade. Roses are equal to all demands with the exception of American Beauty, which are scarce and not of the best quality. Premier is taking its place and the stock is very fine. Violets are plentiful, but diminishing, due to weather conditions. Orchids have a moderate call. With ability to make a good display, the stores are now beauty spots.

NOTES.

S. A. Anderson featured some fine window displays during the week in which California acacias played an important part. Trade, with the exception of funeral work, has been active here. The recent death of a well-known citizen, however, gave several prominent stores some large orders.

Grever's Flower Shop on Allen street, one of the coziest in appearance in this city, is in very attractive dress as usual.

This city was well represented at the New York spring show. S. A. Anderson was one of the judges on Tuesday and W. J. Palmer, Henry Kraus, John Fiebelkorn, E. A. Slattery, E. C. Brucker, Art. Kowalski and J. B. Wiese were among the visitors.

From all indications, the lily supply for Easter will be ample. Azaleas will be missed as will spiraeas, but there will be good stock in genistas, lilacs and rhododenrons.

CANADA imported cut flowers during 1919 to the value of $165,277.

BELGIAN growers are heavily stocked with fine azaleas, palms, etc., for which there is no demand.

GERANIUM growers are saying it is not now a question of prices, but one of plants to meet the demand.

THE soldiers and sailors fought and closed the world war, but the fight of the industrial armies goes on forever.

FLORISTS of the United States are doing wonders in overcoming the difficulties imposed upon them by the federal horticultural board regulations, but, of course, many old garden favorites will be missing the coming spring and summer.

Fare Increase Canada to U. S. Canceled.

The Canadian railway commission, March 29, ordered Canadian railway companies to cancel the 10 per cent fare increase to points in the United States, which they had announced would go into effect on that date, to make up for the adverse rate of Canadian exchange in the United States. The 15 per cent increase, from $8 to $9.20, in head tax on Canadians entering the United States, and which the roads collect on their lines, also was ordered canceled.

AT the annual meeting of the American Rose Society, held in New York, March 16, Secretary White reported a total membership of 1,648 to March 12, 1920.

THE New York Tribune says anthracite operators produced a volume of income tax reports at the executive session of the wage board committee to prove wages have more than kept pace with the increased cost of living. They state a 30 per cent wage advance and seven-hour day will increase coal cost at least $2 per ton to the public.

Glass Makers Extend Working Time.

The American Window Glass Manufacturers' Association at Pittsburgh, Pa., March 24, decided to extend the first period of plant operation three weeks, bringing the end of the current fire to June 8, and to advance the second period three weeks to August 8.

DEPARTMENT OF REGISTRATION.

The following rose has been accepted by the rose registration committee of the American Rose Society, and unless objections are received in the secretary's office within three weeks of this publication, the registration will become permanent:

Name—Red Columbia; Class, hybrid tea; Parentage, sport of Columbia; description: General characteristics of this variety are identical with Columbia, except the color is a brilliant scarlet, and the petalage is not so full as Columbia. The color is similar to Hoosier Beauty; originator, Jos. H. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.

International Chamber of Commerce.

The new International Chamber of Commerce, projected at the international trade conference at Atlantic City last October, will be formally organized, it is announced by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, at Paris during the week of June 21, 1920. Invitations have been sent out by the American group of the international organization committee to business and industrial associations, asking them to name delegates to participate in the organization meeting. About 100 American delegates are expected to attend.

It is hoped the horticultural interests of the United States will be adequately represented at this important meeting.

NEW YORK SHOW LOCATION

The American Dahlia Society has engaged the entire conservatory and roof garden of the Hotel Pennsylvania, opposite the Pennsylvania station 32nd, to 33rd streets and Eighth avenue, New York, for September 27-29, for the annual exhibition of the society.

The roof garden is used during the summer as a restaurant. It has good daylight on all four sides, and the entrance is through the conservatory on the roof. The space is very large, something like 12,000 square feet, in a long hall, giving wonderful decorative opportunities.

A determined effort will be made to make this the largest exhibition ever given of any single flower. Plans will be rapidly perfected and developments will be announced later.

E. C. VICK, Sec'y.

[This is a most desirable location for a show, as there are many fine decorative plants in the conservatory that will make an excellent background for the dahlias. We hope that dahlia growers will make a special effort to make this show a grand success.—ED.]

Wild Flower Preservation.

The Wild Flower Preservation Society urges every child to learn the following quaint poem:

Pluck not the wayside flower;
It is the traveler's dower;
A thousand passers-by
Its beauties may espy,
May win a touch of blessing
From Nature's mild caressing.
The primrose on the slope
A spot of sunshine dwells
And cheerful message tells
Of kind renewing power;
The nodding bluebell's dye
Is drawn from happy sky.
Then spare the wayside flower
It is the traveler's dower!

—William Allingham.

HEAVY EASTER DEMAND.

The demand for cut flowers for Easter is heavy and everything points to a complete clean-up in fresh stock at an early hour. Orders are arriving in every mail and by wire at this writing and the demand this Easter promises to be the heaviest in years. Lilies are seen in large supply at several of the stores, but are moving nicely in the better grades at the advertised quotations. Some stock reached the market in poor condition the early part of this week and had to be sacrificed at low prices in order to move it, but this was due more to poor packing than anything else, practically all the flowers being bruised by carelessness in handling. American Beauty roses are in good demand and the same holds true for Mrs. Chas. Russell, Columbia and Premier. Milady, Hoosier Beauty, Killarney, White Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, Sunburst, Ophelia, Montrose, Champ Weiland, Mrs. George Shawyer, Mrs. Aaron Ward and all the other varieties grown for this market are having a good call. Carnations are in large supply, but in heavy demand and should clean up early. Sweet peas are moving fast and so are violets. Orchids do not appear to be any too plentiful and lily of the valley does not appear to be in any oversupply. A few gardenias are among the offerings but clean up quickly. Tulips are seen in quantity and some freesias are obtainable. Jonquils are available in quantity at some of the houses including a good proportion of southern grown flowers. Mignonette, snapdragons, calendulas, daisies, callas, anemones, pansies, stocks and a few other miscellaneous items are included in the list of offerings and give the buyer a great variety to select from. Pussy willows are a good seller this week. Green goods are none too plentiful especially ferns, which have advanced considerably in price the past week. Blooming plants in this vicinity are practically all disposed of and if the weather is at all favorable the local demand will clean up all the cut flower offerings.

Stock is in heavier supply at this writing, Wednesday noon, March 31, owing to the extremely warm weather and it looks as if there will be more than enough in some lines to go around. Roses appear as if they will clean up but considerable pushing will be needed to move all the carnations and cut lilies. The American Railway Express Company is giving the market pick-up service until 5 p. m. daily during the heaviest shipping period.

NOTES.

Many greenhouse establishments in this vicinity had a narrow escape from being wrecked by the tornado, which swept this district, March 28. First reports after the storm were to the effect that many ranges were completely destroyed, but after the rumors has been traced down, the greatest loss appears to be from hail and the heavy wind which broke or lifted out the glass as the storm swept by. Here and there, a gable was broken, and in some instances a part of the house bent in, but taking everything into consideration, the growers consider themselves extremely lucky to escape as easy as they did, which was certainly remarkable judging from the heavy damage to other property in the immediate vicinity. Wietor Bros., Peter Reinberg, Poehlmann Bros. Co., Wellworth Farm Greenhouses, C. V. Wolf, Riverbank Greenhouses and others report considerable breakage in glass. Otto Trebwaner, of the Calvert Floral Co., Lake Forest, reports the loss of one small house by the tornado.

Fred Lautenschlager, of Kroeschell Bros. Co., is back from a successful business trip in the east, which included a visit to the recent New York flower show, held in the Grand Central Palace.

Harry C. Rowe, who has been engaged in the retail business in the loop for 20 years; is now comfortably located in his new store at 4401 Sheridan Road, at the corner of Montrose, considered by many one of the best locations in the leading residential district. The interior is finished in ivory, the proprietor's favorite color, and when the place is lit up, it is one mass of beauty easily seen as there is a big window frontage both on Montrose and Sheridan road. The Broadway car crosses the boulevard at this corner and the motor busses stop right in front of his place while autos park on Montrose. His trade is following him from the loop, and one order filled last week was that of the Boyer funeral calling for a casket cover, of violets, lily of the valley and roses, besides several other designs. Heaton Nichols, Mr. Rowe's right-hand man, is again on duty after being confined to his home for several weeks with a touch of pneumonia.

The local department stores are having their usual sale of pot lilies this Easter, one firm saying in its advertisement, "of course, this stock will be sold at reduced prices." No prices are mentioned. Some day, the grower will wake up to the fact that he is not playing fair with his customers who patronize him all the year, by supplying outsiders with stock to sacrifice at low prices in compeition with the regulars. The retailers, as a whole, are against this sort of competition, which should not exist for the simple fact, that in some instances, it is sold at such a low price, that if he depended upon this outlet, for his regular weekly returns, he would be obliged to close up shop.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are having their share of the Easter business with a heavy call for stock from out-of-town points, not mentioning a good local trade. This firm has a new location in sight for May 1 and will be on the job as usual right in the heart of the wholesale district. Mr. Vaughan's careful handling of his shipping trade in the past would permit him to do business from the top of the Masonic Temple if necessary for the average customer is not likely to leave a house when he is receiving satisfactory service such as here.

The American Bulb Co. made a generous contribution to the advertising campaign of the local florists in the form of a 5-column advertisement, 16½ inches high, exploiting Easter lilies, in the Chicago Sunday Tribune of March 28. Reprints of the advertisement were distributed free to the trade, who displayed them to good advantage in their store windows, etc.

Joe Einweck, of the Bassett & Washburn sales force, and Miss Anna Theiner, will be married, April 14. Mr. Einweck is well and favorably known to the local trade, and has the best wishes of his many friends in his intended dip into the sea of matrimony.

The Florists' Club will meet at the Hotel Randolph, next Thursday evening, April 8, at 8 p. m. E. D. Burton, of the American Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., will present his firm's two-reel movie, entitled, "Wonderland under Glass."

The E. C. Amling Co. is having a strong demand for Darwin tulips, which it is handling in quantity. John Michelsen has no complaint whatever to make in regard to the early Easter demand.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. cleaned out completely in pot lilies for Easter this season, and managed to make deliveries to all the out-of-town customers, notwithstanding the express strike.

Peter Reinberg is having a heavy out-of-town call for stock this Easter, according to Herbert Hansen, who says that all the regular, besides many new customers, have been heard from.

The A. L. Randall Co.'s cut flower department is busy as can be at this writing, the out-of-town Easter demand being strong. Some fine cut lilies were seen at this establishment.

Chas. McCauley, of the Riverbank Greenhouses, Geneva, says that he never saw the Fox river so rough as last Sunday, March 28, when the tornado swept this district.

The Foley Greenhouse Manufacturing Co. is completing an addition to the range of St. Mary's Training School near Des Plaines. J. Mueller will have charge.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is busy with shipping orders at this writing, and everything points to a big Easter demand at this establishment.

The J. A. Budlong Co. is pleased with the Easter demand so far, especially from out-of-town, where the call for stock is heavy.

Kennicott Bros. Co. is again receiving regular shipments of adiantum, which is a big item in its green goods department.

Zech & Mann report the early Easter demand as very satisfactory, with a strong call for fancy lilies and sweet peas.

At Vaughan's Randolph street store, all lines are in good demand, with lawn supplies and nursery stocks in the lead.

A. T. Pyfer, of A. T. Pyfer & Co., is looking for a cleanp in cut flowers for Easter at fair prices.

According to some of the local growers, a good portion of their lilies were too early this Easter.

G. B. Dawes, of Elgin, is reported to have suffered some loss by the tornado, March 28.

Wietor Bros. report a brisk Easter demand, with a splendid call for roses and carnations.

O. A. and L. A. Tonner are moving a good supply of fancy sweet peas this week.

Trade was never better at this season, and with stock of excellent quality and in good supply, it is a pleasure to do business. The past week has been one of sunshine, which brought joy to the grower; all flowers excepting violets benefited thereby. Roses are in fine shape. Dunlop, Russell Premier, Columbia, Ophelia and American Beauty are all of excellent quality. Carnations are greatly benefited, especially in their keeping qualities. Snapdragons, sweet peas, stocks, pansies, clarkias, calendulas and mignonette are all good, and will be in plentiful supply for the day of flowers. The market is well supplied with flowering plants. Lilies, of which there is a large supply, azaleas, roses, hydrangeas, rhododendrons, primulas and numerous varieties of bulbous stock give the largest variety we have had for some years. From observation there is not likely to be a shortage of flowers in this section. At Dunlop & Sons, Richmond Hill, it was a grand sight to see that excellent new rose, Frank W. Dunlop. The sunshine has given the foliage a beautiful red tint, and with many blooms as good as those shown at New York, you could not help but praise this wonderful variety. The houses in general looked equally good. The last house just completed, of Lord and Burnham type, seems as substantial as a sky scraper, and as light as the outside atmosphere. Carnations and the lilies were in good shape, showing the benefit of growing stock in a modern range.

NOTES.

The retail florists club has invited the growers to meet with them, April 19, at the club rooms, 12 Adelaide street, West, for a friendly discussion on co-operation, and for further advancement of the trade in general. Geo. Asmus, of Chicago; J. E. Cooper, of Brampton; W. E. Groves, of Hamilton, and W. J. Gammage, of London, have been invited as speakers. Supper will be served at 8 p. m., and a large attendance is expected.

Miller & Sons, of Lawder avenue, have been cutting Premier, and as grown by this firm, it certainly is a grand rose. They get good depth of color and fullness to their flowers, which sell them on sight. Russell and Columbia also do well here. Carnations are good, but lilies have turned out poorly, which is blamed on the bulbs.

The Dale estate of Brampton, will have their usual good cut, although the orders are coming in so fast they expect that most lines will be scarce. They have a large cut of American Beauties coming in, which will help out considerably. The orchid range also promises a large cut. Lilies are of fine quality, as also are sweet peas.

Carl Groba, of Mimico, is well in front with his usual supply of pot stock. Roses, azaleas, lilies, rhododendrons, spiraeas and bulbous stock are grown here in large quantities, all of which find ready sale.

W. E. Calvert, of Brampton, our violet specialist, is at present sending in good violets, and expects to have them in large supply for Easter, providing the weather does not get too warm.

THE LEO NIESSEN CO., 1201 Race St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Philadelphia.

LIGHT DEMAND PRECEDES EASTER.

Mild weather and the usual apathy of the Lenten season, together with a low death rate, combined to make rather unsatisfactory conditions the past week. Cut flowers of every variety were in full supply, particularly sweet peas, which were seen in large lots that required a lot of pushing to move them. The end of the week saw large shipments of outdoor southern daffodils, which are jobbed off to the street men at from $5 to $10 per thousand, depending on quality and demand. There is a good supply of carnations of fine grade, which manages to clean up at prices a shade better than those of the week previous. Roses in all grades and varieties hung fire, but for the most part, brought fair prices. Lily of the valley is now one of the staple flowers. There is not, however, the normal, before the war demand, and it will take some time to restore it to public favor. There is snapdragon of good quality that finds favor with many. Violets are in excess of the demand, while cattleyas are shortening up. Take it all in all, the market has improved over that of last week and conditions can be said to be fairly satisfactory.

March 29.—Shipments of roses were larger than the market required. Carnations and sweet peas, however, sold up clean. Easter lilies are holding at 20 to 25 cents, with callas at 16 to 20, and select stock at 25 cents. The weather, cloudy and warm, is bad for holding cut flowers.

NEW ROSES.

Stephen Mortensen, the rose specialist of Southampton, Pa., has had splendid success with Premier, it being the best paying variety on his list the past winter. He finds it to come back quickly after a crop has been taken, although it does not make strong shoots from the bottom as is the case with a number of other sorts. Columbia has also done very well. Killarney, both white and pink, have always been bread winners and great favorites, and he is now debating whether to let the last of these go or not. Edward Towill has a sport of Columbia, which appears to be quite an improvement over the parent plant. The flowers are more refined, the outside petals being smooth and well formed, making altogether a more perfectly formed bud. The crinkled appearance of the bud of the Columbia before it opens has been its only fault. The difference in the vases of the old and improved sort are very noticeable.

NOTES.

Habermehls are preparing for a busy Easter. John Wilson, a graduate of the Habermehl school, and recently in charge of the Ira G. Marvin store, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., is now with his old alma mater. He has artistic ability, combined with an active disposition that makes him a valuable man. Wm. Graham, another artist of renown, is also with the Bellevue-Strafford store.

The sympathy of the trade goes out to Edward Reiger in the death of his wife, which occurred last week. Mr. Reiger, who has been in the retail business for a number of years on 20th street above Spruce, at once sold his store to M. J. Callahan, who will conduct it as a branch of his West Philadelphia establishment.

The Easter rush has caused addition to delivery equipment, the Robert Craig Co., having purchased a Pierce Arrow truck, and Alfred M. Campbell, two Ford trucks. New Fords and autos of other makes are now quite common, scarcely a week passing when some of the trade are not seen on the street in a new car.

In the stores, all is hustle and bustle, the first loads of the Easter plant stock being received and staged. The growers have made a wonderful cleanup, there being nothing now to offer but marguerites and Easter lilies. First selections of the latter in pots have sold for 25 cents per flower.

Wm. K. Harris' Palm Sunday exhibition was up to its usual standard and was visited by thousands of people. The long shed, lined on both sides with orders going out early Monday, and the view into the many houses makes a beautiful display that is a great treat to the delighted visitors.

Excellent Ward carnations are a feature of the Edward Reid stock. Mr. Reid said that everybody should be happy this Easter, as there would be a splendid business, and an abundance of flowers.

Alfred M. Campbell's stock was as good as any ever seen in this market, it being perfect in every respect. He did an immense shipping trade in cut lilies.

Leo Niessen, in speaking of the Easter prospects, predicts plenty of business and a lot of flowers, and then expressed the wish that it was all over.

The Robert Craig Co. had a splendid crop of lilies. They have had a splendid business, selling out of almost everything by the first of the week.

Berger Bros. are strong on Easter lilies, carnations and sweet peas. Mr. Berger predicts a good Easter business for all.

The Jos. Heacock Co. is still cutting large quantities of fine sweet peas. Callas and calendulas are also features.

EXCELLENT STOCK MEETS FAIR DEMAND.

There was a fair business during the past week, but nothing above the ordinary. Real spring weather came in with the week, and has been sending to market an excellent quality of stock. In roses, the Premiers, Columbias and others of the newer varieties have shown good points, but special stock, including American Beauties, has been rather slow. Carnations made a good start in price the first of the week, but fell off to some extent before the end. There is, and has been, an abundant supply of bulbous stock; the Darwin tulips, in particular, are showing up in fine shape. Several wholesale stores have received considerable quantities of tulips in pans from the growers, and it now appears that there will be an abundance, if not a superabundance, of that kind of stock for Easter. Cinerarias seem to have been more generally grown since the azaleas were embargoed, and are now coming in. The mild temperature and bright sunshine of the past week brought all stocks on fast, and there is not likely to be any scarcity either in plants or cut flowers. Although the general stock of carnations ranged from $4 to $8 per 100 during the past week, Laddie wholesaled for $15.

March 29.—A heavy and cool rain that came on this morning has dulled market activities, but cool weather may be better for the Easter trade in cut flowers, as the stock received a great start with the warm weather of the past week.

NOTES.

A long time ago, one had reasons to believe that about all the ideas in vandalism had been exploited, but a new one has been thought out by a bunch of scoundrels in this city. It is to race through the streets in the dead of night in an automobile, firing with a rifle, equipped with a silencer, at plate glass windows. Thousands of dollars worth of glass has been ruined. The windows of Wm. H. Lang's retail store, at 412 Columbus avenue, has recently been shot up on three different occasions.

John Fitzsimmons, senior member of the firm of Fitzsimmons & Rooney, 161 Court street, Brooklyn, died recently, age 90 years. He had been in business in that city since 1867, and at the present location since 1869. He was a good citizen and highly respected. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Rooney, wife of the partner in the firm.

Thus far, the outlook for Easter business is good, and the retailers are already stocking up with plants. At the store of David Clarke's Sons many good features have been noticed. It was stated that the past week had been a busy one, and that Easter orders were coming in.

William Kessler, 113 West 28th street, has received an exceptionally fine stock of cyclamens from the range of C. F. Curtis, Plantsville, Conn. They are in seven and nine-inch pots. It is the finest stock we have noted in this city.

Malandre Brothers always carry a fine stock, and although their Easter quota is not yet in, at this writing, they have many good features in orchids, acacias, azaleas and other plants.

The new firm that now conducts the store known as the Astoria Florist, are exhibiting fine specimens of hand painted designs of wedding and table decorations as publicity features.

The next meeting of the florists' club will be held on the night of April 12. Reports from the recent flower show and various other interesting features, are expected.

A writer in "London Answers" argues that plants reason. Now let's hear what they think of some of the people that are supposed to care for them.

Andrew Angelis has bought the retail business formerly conducted by Louis C. Pajan at 2424 Eighth avenue.

GOOD STOCK IN ABUNDANT SUPPLY

Favorable weather conditions have helped the production of flowers and there seems to be no scarcity in any line. In reality, there is a great abundance. Roses have taken on a better growth and carnations are now arriving in great perfection, justifying to a large extent the price of $4 per dozen. For the most part they are of extremely large size and a dozen of them make a handsome bunch. Outdoor daffodils are blooming in great profusion and hundreds of them are seen in private gardens. Many of these are disposed of at 10 cents a dozen. There will be a great abundance of flowers for Easter and pot plants will also play an important part. The market house dealers, favored by the fine weather, now have their stock blossomed with full vigor and color and they will be on hand for the occasion in full force with plants for everybody. Prices are being well maintained with no indication of going lower and there seems no danger of a letup in the demand. With the market house florists, cinerarias appear to be quite a feature and these sell readily at good figures. There are also offered geraniums, calendulas, heliotrope and similar stock. It is also encouraging to note the excellent lots of Easter lilies that will be available. Trade in general has been good for some time and the florists have laid in supplies of handsome baskets and novelties. Pot hyacinths are now very attractive offerings, especially white, and the price, $5, seems to meet with approval.

The thirty-eighth annual meeting will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June 22-24, 1920.

SEED POTATOES were $4.05 a bushel at Chicago, March 31.

A. T. FERRELL and wife, of Saginaw, Mich., are at Asheville, N. C.

CALIFORNIA seed growers were greatly encouraged by recent copious rains.

VISITED BOSTON: C. W. Scott, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., New York, and Hamakichi Suzuki, of the same firm, Yokohama, Japan.

ED. LEONARD, of the S. F. Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, and wife, made a honeymoon visit to Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Reuter, New Orleans, La.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—O. H. Drew, formerly of Hibernia, N. Y., has returned to the city after a successful season's trapping in the mountains.

GENERAL dock strike at Rotterdam has prevented all horticultural shipments from there since February 16. Shipments are being diverted to Antwerp.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district are about the same as last week, $3.00 to $3.50. There is still a good demand from the south, due it is said, to the late season.

GUADALOUPE, CALIF.—Spaulding Lawrence has resigned his position with the government seed reporting service and is now with the L. D. Waller Seed Co., of this city.

THE Missouri seed law, applying to grass seeds in all packages of 10 pounds and over, as to purity, with weed seeds percentages to be shown on labels, is now in force.

VISITED CHICAGO: Alfred J. Brown and T. Herschel Brown, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich.; W. W. Freeborn, representing the H. G. Hastings Co., Atlanta, Ga.

COLUMBUS, O.—Mail order business is somewhat ahead of that of 1919 at the establishment of the Livingston Seed Co. Store sales are showing up well under the influence of sunshiny days.

BOARD OF TRADE—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade, March 31, were as follows: Timothy, $10.00 to $12.25 per 100 pounds; red clover, $45.00 to $53.00 per 100 pounds.

SHENANDOAH, IA.—March business with the Henry Field Seed Co. is about as usual with a slight gain over last year. For the week ending March 20, there were 17,920 retail mail order sales totaling $112,692.

MADISON, Wis. — The catalogue business of the L. L. Olds Seed Co., is running more than 100 per cent. better than in March, last year. There is a very strong demand for farm seeds, especially clover, in spite of the prevailing high price. Garden seeds are running about 20 to 25 per cent better than last year. The market gardening trade, which fell off very materially the past two years, is now returning.

Clover Seed Export Embargo in France.

A cablegram from Commercial Attache Adams at Paris, March 23, 1920, states that a decree of February 26, published in the Journal Officiel March 23, prohibits the exportation or re-exportation of clover seed except under license from the Ministry of Finance. The decree went into effect March 23.

Secretary Meredith on Free Seeds.

Secretary of Agriculture Meredith has struck a knockout blow at the seed graft by sending a letter to the Senate committee advocating refusal of the appropriation. He said: "In its inception, this activity was constructive and experimental, but for the last 35 or 40 years we have been distributing old, standard and thoroughly tested varieties of seeds. The need for seed distribution has ceased."

Clovers Advanced—Grasses Lower.

With the first sign of the approaching spring demand, according to government reports, prices of red clover advanced from 50 cents to $2.00 per 100 pounds, and alsike, 50 cents to $1.00 during the week ending March 20. Stocks of red clover at the larger markets are fairly well maintained by continued imports, but they are limited and would be greatly reduced, if not exhausted, by a good demand of only a few weeks.

Grasses generally are lower and inactive.

Templin-Crockett-Bradley Co.

The Templin-Crockett-Bradley Co., Cleveland, O., say the severe cold weather of early March was reflected in sales slightly under normal for the first two weeks. The increase of the past few days, indicates that the 1919 record mark will be passed before the season closes. Sales for the 22nd were about 50 per cent greater than the largest single day in the history of the business.

Last summer, this firm built a one story addition in the rear of the four story building, affording about 40 per cent more space for the filling of orders and handling of stock in the shrubbery department. Foundations strong enough to carry three more stories have been laid, so that eventually the old and new buildings will have the appearance of a single unit. in 1916, the first unit, two stories high and 60x140 feet, of reinforced concrete construction, were built. At that time, it was thought by the members of the firm that this unit would care for about three to five years needs. But in 1918 it became necessary to add two more stories. It seemed as though this would take care of several years' growth, but the closing of the war brought such an increase to the business of the shrubbery department that the one story addition mentioned above became a necessity.

ROCKFORD, ILL.—One seed firm here had 21,000 unfilled orders, March 26.

JOHN LEWIS CHILDS, Floral Park, N. Y., reports business 25 to 30 per cent ahead of last year.

CLEVELAND, O.—The fine weather the past week, crowded the Kendel, Johnson and other retail seed stores with buyers.

NEW YORK.—Weeber & Don blame the late spring for the deferred counter trade, and they say market gardeners are buying reluctantly. Their mail order business, however, is quite satisfactory.

SIOUX CITY, IA.—The business of February and the first half of March, according to the Sioux City Seed Co., was behind that of last year, but the latter part of March showed material improvement.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—Guy M. Purcell, vice-president and general manager of W. H. Small & Co., will make a trip to New Mexico this month to look after his interests in a coal mine in that state. Chester Cox, also with this firm, is a candidate for the republican nomination for county clerk of Vanderburg county.—W. B. C.

CINCINNATI, O.—The J. M. McCullough's Sons Co. claims the backward weather has prevented farmers from buying, many having delayed their purchases until they actually needed the seed, because of the high prices. The past few days of warm weather has crowded the retail department with buyers. There has been unusual demand for spraying materials, probably due to the promising outlook for the fruit crop.

Dutch Bulb Decision.

Judge Shenk, of the superior court of Los Angeles county, Calif., has decided the case brought by R. E. Hoyt, assignee of claim of Van Zonneveld Bros. & Phillipo against S. Murata & Co., Los Angeles, Calif., and in favor of defendant, the defendant being represented in said case by F. L. Stobbs and Hyman Schwartz. The suit was brought to record the amount alleged to be due upon the shipment of bulbs ordered by the defendant from the plaintiffs, December 30, 1916, and other orders subsequent to that date. The order was given upon condition that the shipments be specially boxed and marked. When they arrived at Los Angeles, they were not marked as per the order; neither were they insured in conformity with the orders given, as is customary in such cases. The goods arrived in Los Angeles in a spoiled condition, and S. Murata & Co. refused to accept the shipment on that account, and for the other reasons given. The following is a copy of the decision handed down by Judge Shenk:

"That the merchandise was not delivered to the defendant; that the merchandise was not marked in accordance with the instructions of the defendant; that the merchandise was not insured as is customary and in accordance with the agreement between plaintiff's assignor and the defendant; that the title to the merchandise remained in the plaintiff's assignor because the same was shipped to the plaintiff's agent and not to the defendant; that the defendant was not liable or indebted therefor unless he accepted the merchandise; that the plaintiff take nothing by the said cause of action, and the defendant is entitled to have judgment in his favor for costs."

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

E. A. Dunbar, Ashtabula, O., President; Louis F. Miller, Toledo, O., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; H. J. Cheney, Grand Rapids Mich., Treas. Next annual convention September 1920.

DELTA, COLO.—H. S. Chase is operating in onions and doubling his money. Japanese gardeners here are producing 500 sacks to the acre.

AN effort is being made throughout Ohio to organize vegetable growers into county bodies, and through representation, greatly strengthen the Ohio Vegetable Growers' Association, which is affiliated with the Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

Dried Mushroom Exports From Poland.

One of the few articles now available for exportation from Poland to the United States, reports Harry A. McBride, consul at Warsaw, is dried mushrooms. It is estimated that before the war about $4,000,000 worth of dried mushrooms were shipped annually to the United States from territory now within Polish frontiers. It is understood that there is a considerable demand in the United States for this article, which is rather difficult to obtain in Poland at the present time because of the fact that the pre-war organization for collecting and shipping mushrooms has been almost entirely neglected during the last five years. The consulate, however, is in receipt of a communication stating that the writer's concern is in a position to supply the article in considerable quantities at the following terms: White mushrooms, without roots, 140 Polish marks per kilo (2.2 pounds), white mushrooms, mixed with roots, 95 Polish marks per kilo (2.2 pounds). The prices are quoted f. o. b. Krakow, and at present the rate of exchange, which fluctuates greatly, is about 120 Polish marks per dollar. The writer of the letter requests that American importers interested in this matter correspond direct with him, giving full conditions and terms of payment; and he further reports that, as he is obliged to pay for his supply in advance, payments should be made promptly.

THE EASTER BUSINESS.

All Previous Records Passed.

Even the blizzard of April 3-4, which swept the central west, in many cities recorded as the worst weather for the season in many years, apparently had little effect on the Easter demand, reports from many points showing substantial gains over the corresponding period of 1919, and in many instances, where more favorable conditions prevailed, record sales were reported. In general, while prices were as a rule higher than in previous years, quality was such that complaints were rare, or where the purse was limited, a splendid showing of plants in large variety, offered a most satisfactory substitute. Of course, plant sales predominated, with lilies taking precedence, the supply in nearly all cases being of generous proportions, with quality all that could be desired. The other Easter favorites found ready buyers, and rambler roses, hydrangeas, azaleas, where available, genistas, and in fact, anything in good flower, cleaned up fast. In cut flowers, violets and sweet peas were most sought, the former in some cases offered in limited supply. Roses and carnations appeared to drag. The following condensed reports indicate that the Easter trade this year showed an excellent increase in volume over that of a year ago, most gratifying under the adverse weather conditions prevailing in some parts of the country:

NEW YORK.—With fair weather on Easter Sunday, and favorable conditions preceding, there was a fine stock of plants, and while prices were high, there were few complaints, so that all in all it may be said that the trade of this city enjoyed good business. With some stores it was stated that large plants moved in preference to the smaller offerings. Never in many years was there such a large supply of Easter lilies of fine quality, favored by the good growing weather of the two weeks previous. There were also some excellent azaleas, acacias in both large and medium sizes, good rose plants in variety, bougainvilleas, hydrangeas, etc. To meet more moderate purses, an excellent showing of single hyacinths and tulips found favor. While plant sales took preference, cut flowers, which were available at reasonable figures, with the exception of orchids and violets, were not overlooked.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Easter business in this city proved of record-breaking proportions, both in volume and number of sales. While prices showed an advance over last year, the buying spirit was strong, and there were few complaints, with plants of the higher grade moving freely as first choice. A limited supply of rambler roses, caused these to be the first item to close out, and there were not enough azaleas to go around. Lilies were plentiful and held their usual place, although other plant offerings had a splendid sale. Easter novelties and basket arrangements were probably never shown to better advantage and added in their proportion to making this probably the best Easter business ever experienced by the trade in this city.

SEATTLE, WASH.—While rainy weather prevailed at Easter, and resulted in disappointment in some instances, business was much ahead of the volume recorded a year ago. Although the week opened with a slow demand, the close was surprisingly strong, resulting in a cleanup in nearly all lines, with buyers well pleased at the high quality in all offerings. Affected by the weather conditions, pot plants held an undisputed lead, with corsages next in favor, taking precedence over cut flowers. The supply of Easter lilies was most plentiful, but they held their usual popularity without difficulty and in nearly all cases, prices were well maintained. Coming next in popular favor were hydrangeas and basket arrangements, the latter offered in pleasing variety. In general, the quality of stock, both cut flower and plant, graded higher than in former years.

DENVER, COLO.—While this city suffered from the effects of the severe snowstorm in common with other cities in the middle west, the Easter trade held a fair average, and, according to reports from leading stores, sales equaled last year's volume. With unsatisfactory weather prevailing Friday and Saturday, late business was to a certain extent curtailed and deliveries made more difficult. In lilies, there was a good supply; in fact, more than the demand could absorb, and some were left over. Orchids and sweet peas were scarce, while roses, violets, carnations and snapdragons were plentiful and there was a good showing of bulbous flowers. Hydrangeas, rose bushes and combination plant baskets found ready buyers.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—An Easter demand of excellent proportions is reported by both wholesalers and retailers in this city and vicinity, added to which to swell the general volume, has been a strong demand for funeral work, many orders being of large proportions. All lilies that were received in this market found ready buyers at high prices, there being a noticeable shortage in cut stock of this flower. Roses were good, with receipts about balancing the call. Callas also sold well. Carnations of good grade were in limited supply and moved fast. Baskets made of grass were a popular feature and there were good calls for tulips and irises. All local flower shops report good business.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—While prices compared favorably with last year's level, the increase in volume of Easter business in this city, estimated at 10 per cent. met with satisfaction. The supply in both cut flowers and plants was generous and made it possible to meet the choice of the customer in nearly all cases. While there was a heavy call for cut stock, sweet peas easily took the lead, one firm alone disposing of more than 150,000 of these flowers. In the plant offerings, lilies of course, were most salable, but all other good stock moved freely. To properly handle the unprecedented demand that came to some of the shops, it was necessary for them to keep open all night.

ST. PAUL, MINN. — Unaffected by what was probably the most unsatisfactory weather in 30 years at this season, the Easter trade in this city was 30 per cent better than a year ago, a remarkable record considering the fact that prices were on about the same level as in 1919. The supply in all lines was excellent, and in the plant section, there seemed to be little preference, all items moving freely. In cut flowers, violets and sweet peas easily took the lead, American Beauty roses falling far to the rear in popularity. All things considered, the business was most satisfactory, despite adverse conditions and delivery difficulties.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—The Easter trade in this city, from all reports, was most satisfactory. With roses the only item in short supply, the offerings in both cut flowers and plants were ample to meet all needs. Easter lilies took the lead and the stock was unusually fine. Daffodils in pots and pans failed to attract much attention. Carnations were poor sellers, roses, lilies and corsages taking the lead in the cut flower section. Prices were much better than a year ago, and the sales volume also showed a great increase. Added to the generally satisfactory condition, the call for funeral work continues strong.

LAWRENCE, KAN.—A heavy fall of snow, which began on Saturday and continued through the night with a drop of temperature to 18 degrees, which remained unchanged until April 5, resulted in a decrease of 25 per cent in this year's Easter business compared with the volume in 1919. Prices, however, were better than a year ago and the supply of plants and cut flowers was ample to meet all requirements. Flowering plants of all kinds, barring bulbous varieties, met with a good demand. In cut flowers, sales were also satisfactory.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—The Easter demand in this city was one of the best in years, showing an increase in volume of approximately 25 per cent compared with last year and better prices were received in all lines. Easter lilies, as usual, had a heavy call, but with the plant supply in general just about equal to the demand, there were ready buyers for all offerings of flowering varieties. In cut flowers, violets were the leader in favor, and as a result the limited supply was depleted early. Carnations proved the slow item. Quality in general was all that could be desired.

CINCINNATI, O.—Stock of splendid quality, much better than was offered at Christmas, brought higher prices than at Easter, 1919, and showed an increase in volume of business of about 50 per cent, compared with that period. The plant supply was about equal to the demand, with most sales at from $3 to $7.50. In cut flowers, roses and sweet peas easily took the lead. From all reports, it was a most satisfactory Easter in all lines, with remarkably few complaints as to prices or quality.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—Local retailers experienced the worst Easter in their history as to weather. Snow was a daily occurrence, and deliveries were marred by engine trouble. The Miller Floral Co. had three autos tied up, and the machine of the Lambourne Floral Co. had to be pulled out twice, according to Paul Richmond. All of the stores cleaned up nicely, however, the demand centering on plants.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL.—From all indications, Easter business among the retailers in this city showed a gain of 25 per cent over the corresponding period of 1919. In cut flowers and flowering plants there was a generous supply of good quality, which moved freely at prices slightly higher than last year. In the latter, lilies were easily the favorites, and the supply was abundant. Carnations failed to meet with much popularity and the movement of bulbous flowers and sweet peas was also light.

TORONTO, ONT.—With Easter business showing an increase over the corresponding period of 1919 of about 35 per cent and higher prices received than in former years, the flower stores in this city have little cause for complaint. The only shortage in stock reported was in lily plants. Cut flowers in all varieties were plentiful, with violets and sweet peas in the lead in popularity. In plants, lilies as usual, sold out first. There was little call for palms and ferns. Corsages were very popular. Roses in the higher grades moved slowly. Taken as a whole, however, there was little of anything left on the counters when the rush was over.

Wichita Floral Co., Wichita Falls, Tex.

The floral department and greenhouses of the Witchita Nursery and Floral Co., Wichita Falls, Tex., which will now be conducted under the name of the Wichita Floral Co., have been purchased by Robert, M. R. and Forrest, Bebb, of the Muskogee Carnation Co., Muskogee, Okla., and Edwin A. Bebb, of Chicago, the latter acting in the capacity of manager. The firm has secured a splendid downtown location at 1706 Ninth street, and was well prepared to serve its many customers at Easter in one of the most attractive and up-to-date flower shops in northern Texas, with every facility for prompt and careful attention to F. T. D. orders.

Three members of the new company, Robert M. R. and Forrest, are graduates of the four-year course in floriculture at the University of Illinois, Urbana, under Professor H. B. Dorner, while Edwin A. Bebb is well known from his connection with the Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Association, Chicago, under the direction of W. N. Rudd and Charles W. Johnson. All have the best wishes of a host of friends in the trade for the fullest measure of success in their new location, a thriving, progressive city.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Easter in New York Stores.

Taking a broad view, it can be said that the New York retailers had good Easter business. It is doubtful if on any previous Easter, conditions were more favorable, the date, fair and cool weather preceding which brought in a fine stock of plants, made conditions as near ideal as can ever be expected. Plants necessarily were high, but it made no noticable difference in the sales. Some retailers stated that large plants went better than small ones. As to the plant stock in general, lilies were much in evidence; in fact, we venture to state that not for a number of years has there been so many good lilies. Considering the favorable weather conditions, the early date of Easter was probably fortunate for the growers of pot lilies. As it was, many came in flower that were not expected to two weeks previously. In other plants, though the growers have been somewhat handicapped by the quarantine, they made a splendid showing. That was noticeable in the azaleas. It seems that importations being now cut off, the growers were more careful with their stock in summer. Both large and medium-sized acacias were noteworthy. The various types of pot roses made a good showing. Dorothy Perkins and a sprinkling of Crimson Ramblers were all noteworthy. There was a most excellent stock of bougainvilleas and hydrangeas, the latter in white, pink and blue. In smaller and cheaper stock, there was an abundant supply, and down to single hyacinths in four-inch pots, there was something to suit the most economical buyers. Many pans of tulips and hyacinths, tastefully decorated, found favor. As a matter of course, the retailers pushed their plants, but cut flowers were not neglected, as the wholesale prices on cut stock were not unreasonable. Orchids were not plentiful and went high. The wholesale prices on violets were also boosted, as they usually are at a holiday. A. F. F.

Easter in Chicago Stores.

The Easter business was very heavy this year with a strong demand for both cut flowers and plants. The sales for April 1 were good, but the cold weather the following day, put a damper on the buying, which was anything but encouraging to the dealers. Saturday was an ideal one for the shopper, and trade was so brisk that it was impossible to handle the crowd, even with an added store force. There probably never was such a large supply of cut flowers and plants sold in any one day before in the retail stores in this city as there was April 3, which practically everyone will agree to. Lilies, hyacinths, tulips, jonquils, cinerarias, rambler roses, rhododendrons, hydrangeas and a few azaleas and lilac were the principal offerings in the plant line and cleaned up completely in all items. In cut flowers, roses had a good call and cleaned up nicely at high prices. Carnations were plentiful, but sold well, and there was a strong demand for sweet peas, orchids, lily of the valley, violets and gardenias. Spring flowers were good sellers, and miscellaneous stock met with a ready sale. The retailer did not have any trouble securing what cut flowers he needed at reasonable prices, and barring the blizzard, which made deliveries hard on Easter Sunday, the sales for this occasion were the best on record. F. T. D. orders were plentiful. The loss of sales on Sunday due to the blizzard was greater than at first expected, consequently some stock was left which otherwise would have cleaned up. One loop dealer says that the storm cost him $1000 in sales compared with last year, while others report losses ranging from $200 to $500 and more.

The Alpha Floral Company had a big Easter business at its South Wabash avenue store, and cleaned up completely in plants and cut flowers. Andrew Chronis says that the only drawback to his best Easter ever was the blizzard on Sunday which made deliveries difficult.

Fleischman made a splendid showing of flowering plants, including fancy azaleas, which cleaned up at an early hour. The demand for cut flowers was heavy, and the regular store force, headed by Manager Mallison, and assisted by I. Rosnosky, Dick Parker and Ed Palmer, had more than they could do to handle the rush.

Friedman did a very satisfactory Easter business, according to Tom Fogarty, who was pleased with the total sales at this Michigan avenue establishment. Corsages were in strong demand here, but both cut flowers and plants had a good call.

Harry C. Rowe was more than pleased with business at his new store at 4401 Sheridan Road, cleaning up completely in all lines, especially pot plants, which sold exceptionally well.

Schiller's had a wonderful Easter business at both of their stores with the total sales Saturday, April 3, establishing a new record. This firm reports that there were twice as many customers in their two stores on that day than the heaviest day ever experienced before, consequently the sales more than offset those that were lost on Sunday, owing to the heavy blizzard.

The George Wittbold Co. did a fine Easter business, which was much better than expected, considering the threatening weather on Friday. The sales on Saturday were the biggest in the history of the firm, with pot lilies cleaning up early. This firm had about $1,000 worth of funeral work for the Bowman funeral, which kept the entire force working almost all night.

Ronsley never did a better Easter business than this year, cleaning up early in all lines. A big funeral order last week helped considerably in making the total sales remarkably heavy. Saturday was the best day he ever experienced.

A. Lange did a remarkable business, and cleaned up completely in plants and cut flowers, the force having all it could do to handle the rush of customers on Saturday, when more people were served than in any other one day. Manager Nielsen and the proprietor's son, Homer, had everything in tip-top shape to handle the rush, which made the selling easy, owing to the fine display and arrangement of the stock.

Mangel had a splendid trade in his Palmer House store and cleaned up entirely in plants. His place was completely filled with customers on Saturday, which kept the force taxed to the limit to handle the many people who kept pouring in until late at night.

The Central Floral Co. did all the business it could conveniently handle at its North State street store, which was completely filled with customers all day Saturday, when large quantities of both cut flowers and plants were sold.

Miss Edna Frauenfelder says that business was exceptionally good at Frauenfelder's store on West Madison street, everything in the plant line being disposed of by 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Cut flowers were also in strong demand, and the total sales made a new record this Easter.

H. N. Bruns was well satisfied with his Easter business, which was the best ever at his West Madison street store. Pot lilies and bulbous stock were the best sellers, and cleaned up at an early hour. The sales Saturday were surprisingly heavy.

George Wienhoeber never did a better Easter business than he did this year. His sales were good on Thursday, but those of Saturday were the largest in the history, when it was almost impossible to handle the crowd that kept pouring in the entire day. A grand clean-up was experienced.

Philadelphia Retailers' Easter Business.

The Philadelphia retail stores, without exception, reported a splendid business. In spite of the higher prices, the great majority, particularly all the larger shops, were crowded to the doors with the standard Easter flowering plants in various sizes, together with well arranged plant baskets and boxes, most of which were featured with ribbons and otherwise decorated.

J. J. Habermehl's Sons' three stores contained a wonderful array of decorated and well filled baskets. They were high class in every respect. These are filled at their Diamond street greenhouses, where in addition to stock of their own growing, they assemble selections from the best growers. Their store on the 22nd street front, and show house in the rear, was filled with beautiful stock, which Manager Bell said was having a splendid sale. Their Bellevue-Stratford and Ritz-Carlton shops were extremely busy the entire week.

Charles H. Grakelow's business greatly exceeded that of any previous Easter. Handsomely arranged plant baskets, choice azaleas, hydrangeas, rambler roses and pans of bulbous stock were features in his handsomely arranged store.

H. H. Battles, Pennock Bros. and Charles Henry Fox had their beautiful stores filled with specimen plants and arranged baskets, the best the market afforded. All reported a very large and satisfactory business, even at the higher prices. George Craig, Robert Crawford, the Mullers, Chas. Stahl, Nelson T. Geiger, The London Flower Shop, Rupert Keinle and M. Heron, of the central city retailers, all had a record trade while from Ross's comes the report of splendid business.

The uptown retailers all made fine displays which brought them phenomenal business. Columbia and Montgomery avenues, North Broad street, Kensington and Frankford avenue stores were all well stocked and without exception reported splendid business.

There is no question but what it was the best Easter business experienced by the trade in this city.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

This is the season when the shop, both inside and out, can be made most inviting with well arranged displays of blooming plants and cut flowers. There are so many in the trade who do not appreciate the importance of making a bid for business, or calling the attention of the public to their wares, by especially featuring the various seasonable plants and flowers as they come into season. It adds very little to the expense to display and keep the new and choice things to the front as they appear. Every live florist is on the lookout for such stock, and should make the most of it in attracting new business.

People who have no intention of purchasing, can be induced to buy flowers if they are attractively placed before them. This is seen in all the large cities, where on bright or good shopping days, the street men, when flowers are plentiful, handle them in large quantities. Men with stands, turn over their capital several times a day; even the boys with trays containing violets,, pansies, roses, etc., who have no fixed location, take in from $50 to $75 a day. The great majority of the sales are made to people who had no thought of requiring flowers, but were induced to buy because they looked so fresh and inviting. This proves that people will buy flowers if they are brought favorably to their attention.

This is the secret of successful merchandising of flowers, the bringing of the people and the flowers together, for which every avenue of publicity should be brought into play. The corner stone of the business is the store; if this, in its varied, seasonable and well displayed stock and up-to-the-minute service, is up to standard at all times, success is assured.

As the curb man makes his bid to the throngs of the streets, so also should the storekeeper, whose fixed location gives him a greater opportunity. His store front, in its advertising advantages, is as good as preferred locations in the newspaper columns, and in its every point of vantage, from pavement to roof-top, should be kept up to the highest efficiency. Every window ledge, space over the brick and under the show window on the pavement, should be at all times filled with boxes of seasonable plants. Pansies and daisies are now at their best, and a liberal display of these will encourage their use and popularity as home adornments.

Well arranged, small vase baskets of sweet peas or other short stemmed flowers, in good color contrasts, well displayed in the window, are sure to find buyers, as they are so ready to be carried along. People are in a hurry most of the time, and it is often the readiness of the article displayed in addition to its beauty that induces purchases.

This is the wedding season, and the featuring of the various accessories, such as the kneeling stool, shepherd's crooks, bridal hats filled with flowers, a bride's shower bunch and other details that suggest the wedding, will make an attractive and seasonable window decoration that is likely to induce business of this kind. The annual forget-me-nots are now at their best. Plants of these will be found good sellers in low pans and baskets.

Now is the time to start the window-box campaign for the summer. The store man who has not the facilities for handling or filling these boxes, can find growers who will be glad to fill and deliver all work of this character. There is not one-tenth of this outside house ornamentation in any of the large cities, or in any community for that matter, that is possible, if the business was properly worked up. The newspapers would help through their reading columns if "The City Beautiful," was played strong, and the material and photos were furnished them. In some cities this is done by civic societies, who offer prizes for the best window or porch boxes, best kept lawns, gardens, etc., all of which improvement work should be given ardent support by the local craft.

EASTER PLANT GROWERS OF BOSTON
Tausendschon Roses at Thos. Roland's, Nahant, Mass.

Easter Plant Growers of Boston.

In the course of a tour of inspection of the principal growing establishments of Boston, Mass., and vicinity a few days before Easter, the first call made by the writer was at the range of Wallrath Bros., Waverly. There was every evidence that a skilled grower was at the helm here, the Easter specialties being of excellent quality and finish. Bulbous stock was a feature. Choice hyacinths in 8, 10 and 12-inch pans were seen in large quantities; a large shed filled with these in a variety of colors was a gorgeous sight. Darwin tulips, 9 to 18 to a pan, were also a quantity product. As an Easter special, these tulips unquestionably have a place. They grow from 18 to 24 inches in height, but with their abundant foliage and handsome large flowers that hold their bud form, present a very salable combination. Marguerite daisies are also done exceptionally well. Five and six-inch pots, with a half-dozen or more leading shoots, contained 50 to 75 large open flowers. They were certainly top notchers. Dwarf ramblers, very well flowered, varieties Ellen Poulsen and Mrs. Cutbush, and a good sized block of Magna Charta, full of bud and bloom were features. The roses had been pruned nearly to the pot, producing a number of short stout breaks, which made a bushy short plant that looked like a quick seller. Cyclamens are a specialty here, the selected stock bringing as high as $12 per plant, wholesale, last Christmas. At present, much of the young stock is coming on in flats, all raised on three-inch pots above the table, so as to insure perfect drainage. The shift from the flats is into 3½-inch pots, which for some has already been made. Large flowered French hydrangeas, very classy, were another choice item. A cheese cloth that slides along on a wire support near the glass has been used to protect them at times from a too intense sun.

Edgar Bros., Waverly, specialize in rambler roses, Easter lilies, hydrangeas and genistas. Quality is the rule here, every plant having room enough to give it a fine finish. The houses are high and very light, the advantage of which is shown in the great quantity of bloom on the roses, hydrangeas and genistas. The Easter lilies were of good height and well clothed with foliage. A block of Tausendschon roses, in six-inch pots were particularly bushy and well flowered. The French hydrangea, Trophee, a bright pink, showing a nearly white center in each floret, is said to have a firmer and more lasting flower than some others of this type.

Easter lilies are a specialty with the Wm. W. Edgar Co., also at Waverly. Sixteen thousand pots are grown for Easter, and 10,000 for Memorial day. The Easter crop was in fine shape. Herman Baarsch, the manager here, in speaking of the reason for short growth in giganteum lilies, stated that tall, airy houses kept the atmosphere too dry and they made a short plant. Lower houses, close and moist, induced a taller growth. The temperature should never go below 60° after the foliage had started. Darwin tulips, in pans, were also seen here in quantity. They certainly make a very showy Easter offering. Several houses of dwarf rambler roses were splendidly flowered. The varieties were Teschendorff, Jessie, Mrs. Cutbush and Baby Rambler. A house of cyclamens in their early stage looked well, but Mr. Baarsch said: "You never can tell. More men fail than win with cyclamens. However, many a cloudy morning turned out to be a bright and sunny day. If you do not succeed the first, or even the second time, then try once more." A quantity stock was flowering begonias, 5,000 Cincinnati, 12,000 Melior and a block of Mrs. Peterson, all in two-inch pots, were breaking nicely. The show house of Easter lilies and hydrangeas in which their retail business is done looked very attractive. There was not a foot of spare room in the many houses, with enough young stock in sight to again fill up the empty space of the Easter plants.

The premier and most noted holiday plant grower of the country is Thomas Roland, of Nahant, whose large establishment, particularly at holiday seasons, always contains the highest class of stock for the retail store. Easter specialties are Tausendschon roses, fine, shapely plants, well budded, and of splendid shades of color, white and pink heather, very well flowered, a fine block of French hydrangeas, Mme. Chautard, Trophee and Mme. Mouillere with well colored large heads of bloom. All were just right in point of time. A house of marguerites in six and eight-inch pots, and another of Easter lilies were well done. Genistas were also a feature. Begonias and cyclamens, which are specialties here, the young stock of which were coming along in good shape, filled two houses. The most forward cyclamens are now in fours. They are planted from their seedling boxes into larger flats, which are raised above the table on three-inch pots to allow a good circulation of air. The largest of these, as they grow, are selected for the four-inch pots. In speaking of raised narrow shelves, Mr. Roland says they should never be used, except in cases of emergency to make additional room at such times as Easter and Christmas. Stock on the tables underneath is bound to suffer from the shade cast by the plants above, and those on the shelf, from want of water, as they dry out so quickly.

A. M. Davenport, Watertown, grows a variety of retail florists' stock. A block of Tausendschon roses in six-inch pots, only one year from the cutting bed, were well flowered and very salable in this size. A house of Calceolarias Stewartii, Golden Gem and Golden Bedder, all in six-inch pots, looks very promising. There were several houses of small ferns for fern dishes. Cyclamens were coming along in quantity, and Begonia Rex was also a feature.

PLANT NOTES.

Cyclamens.

The plants of cyclamen grown from seed sown last fall will now be nice, stocky little plants if properly grown and should be large enough to transplant to 2½ or 3-inch pots. The soil should be live fibrous loam with about one-third leaf mold, and in mixing a liberal sprinkling of sand should be included. In potting, the small bulb should be so placed that the soil just covers it; many leave the bulb out of the soil, but best results are obtained with the young stock to leave the bulb in the soil. Later, after the bulb has grown large and mature, this is not so necessary. The plants should be placed in a cool house and if possible near the glass and where they can have all the ventilation possible. Just as soon as safe they should be removed to frames outside and plunged in the soil even with the rim of the pot. The cyclamen will not tolerate poor drainage and if anything happens to block the drainage the plant quickly sickens. This sometimes happens where the pots are sunk in the soil and is often caused by angle worms. Where these are seen or the appearance of lumps on the top of the soil denotes their presence, they should be removed at once. In the final potting, be sure and place plenty of crocks in the bottom of the pot.

Salvias.

There are few more popular plants for bedding purposes than the salvia and when properly grown they are a great ornament to a garden either as beds by themselves or as an edging for cannas or other tall plants, the dwarf varieties being especially adapted to this purpose. To make a showing in mid-summer the plants should be started early either by cuttings or seeds so that the plants at this time should be large enough for a 3-inch pot and should have been pinched back at least once and beginning to branch. These can be potted into 4-inch pots in April and will be showing bud by the time for planting them outside in June. Such plants of course cannot be sold as cheaply as the late-sown seedlings that are grown closely together, and allowed to run up to a single stem, but it will not take so many of the former plants to fill the same space and the bed will be in flower through the summer and fall while with the latter too often there is no bloom until just before frost, and when the first frosts are early the plants are not in bloom but a few weeks. The early plants are much more satisfactory to the customer and will cost but little more owing to the larger space which they will cover during the season.

Geraniums.

At the approach of spring, the geraniums and other bedding stock will make rapid growth and from those which are large enough, a top cutting may be taken now. While these cuttings will not make good-sized plants for bedding out, yet they can be grown on for stock plants for another year. It is time now to take account of the stock on hand and look over the amount that has been required in the past, and if it is found that there will be a probable shortage of any varieties procure them at once. They can be obtained at this time, either small plants or rooted cuttings, at low prices. Many growers lose every year by putting off their buying too late when the prices have advanced to such a figure that there is no profit in handling them. It is seldom that one who has much bedding to do, has geraniums enough, especially of S. A. Nutt or Alphonse Ricard, and this is the time to procure the stock, and if a grower has any room to spare it is good business to stock up with these varieties, for there is a guaranteed sale for all well grown plants in May. The plants that are now in 3-inch pots will require going over often and spacing out, that well-grown stocky plants may be had. If crowded now, tall, weak, spindly plants are too often the result, and when grown in this way, are not fit to make a good showing in the bed when planted.

Bedding Plants.

The plants for bedding out in the spring will take not only much of the plantsman's time, but will keep demanding more room, for the growth from now on will be rapid, and unless constantly watched and cared for, the plants will quickly get crowded and much of the stock injured. The final shift of the geraniums in the northern section of the country may be delayed until the first of April, but the plants should not be allowed to get badly potbound, and they should be given plenty of growing room. The propogating bed should be full of cuttings of the more rapid growing plants and the seedlings will have to be potted as soon as of proper size. The cannas and other bulbs that have been started should be potted and given good location for growing on. Now is the time to take account of stock and see of what kinds there is going to be a shortage and of what there will probably be an oversupply and obtain the first and dispose of the second. This is the time to buy, for the stocks are large and shipments can be guaranteed, and the prices are low compared to what they will be a month hence. The amount of stock that annually goes to waste is large and a little foresight will prevent much of it. Every summer some growers throw away thousands of plants that have cost much in labor and should have made returns. Auction sales in some sections are the means of disposing of much of this stock, but this is generally at low prices. This stock can most all of it be disposed of by a little judicious advertising and letting the other fellows know where it can be obtained. An attendant at any plant sale in early spring will find many growers looking for all kinds of stock. It is often quite difficult to know just how much of each kind of bedding stock is wanted, but as soon as an oversupply is noted let the other growers know where they can obtain it, and place a price on it that will guarantee a sale. It is much better to move it at some price than to throw it away. The wide-awake, up-to-date growers clean up their stock every year.

National Publicity for Flowers.

With Easter behind us, we may now look forward to another important flower day, Mothers' day, May 9. Our campaign advertising programme has provided for liberal space in the magazines for advertisements covering this day. Florists who use the advertising columns of their local newspapers, and who have not availed themselves of the special electrotype issued for this day by our promation bureau, should at least use the slogan, "Say it with Flowers," prominently in their announcements, for such use, in good measure, links up with the national advertising. The more the slogan is used, the better it is for our industry.

It has been erroneously reported that our promotion bureau is to be removed to a western office. The bureau probably has been confused with our department, which has all along handled our dealers' helps, and which is to be transferred to Chicago. The amount of business tranacted by this department becoming too great for the small staff maintained in our promotion bureau, and an extension of our service being considered advisable, our committee at its last meeting decided to open what is to be known as "The Florists' Publicity Service Bureau of the S. A. F., which is to be conducted, under the management of H. V. Swenson, at 431 South Dearborn street, Chicago, and to which is to be transferred, as soon as possible, our stock of electrotypes, signs, stickers and other dealers' helps handled by the promotion bureau. The promotion bureau remains as part of the administration offices of the society, at 1170 Broadway, New York.

In everything but funds the organization of our publicity campaign is very complete. It is unfortunate that a better response is not made to our appeals for contributions to the fund. A big and profitable industry such as ours should be able to provide the $100,000 fund for one year's work that our committee so earnestly desires—less than an average $5 per head from those who are conducting florist establishments. A contribution should not be considered as in the category of many other contributions a business man is called upon to make, as for churches, institutions, local enterprises and functions. It is a contribution he owes to himself. It is an investment in the clearest sense of the term. It is an investment of a very small sum of money in a fund for advertising the florist business, the business from which all in the trade make their living, so that they can make more than a mere competence. It is a business proposition, the success of which has already been assured. Until this campaign started, the florist industry, unlike other industries no more important, was never advertised. It was not in the public eye, and suffered in consequence. The publicity we have secured in the last two years has worked wonders. Never were flowers in better demand than they are today, for people have been brought to look upon them as necessities in every home of refinement. Many now make the permanent decorations of their living rooms in neutral color so that flowers shall give the color note, changeable at will. Remembrance of anniversities by gifts of flowers was never so general as it is today. And what has caused all this? Simply the publicity which has been provided by our campaign. And you, Mr. Nonsubscriber, are asked to contribute a small share of the expense, yet hesitate to come across with your mite. You want to see the good work go on, without doubt. Then sit right down, no better time than now, write out your check for what you think you can afford, and send it in to the secretary. It is needed. JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Orchid Import Restrictions Stand.

Chairman Marlatt, of the federal horticultural board, Washington, D. C., has supplied the following report as the result of the conference of February 10, 1920.

The federal horticultural board has decided that no modification of Quarantine No. 37, with regard to orchid importations, is warranted at this time. As a result of a general discussion of the orchid situation in connection with the Detroit meeting of the Society of American Florists in August, 1919, it was suggested by the chairman of the federal horticultural board that if those interested in orchids in the United States, both as to the importers and as to orchid growers or propagators, would endeavor to harmonize their interests, which seemed to be more or less conflicting, and present the board with a programme which these interests had agreed upon as most desirable and necessary for the development of orchid production in this country, the board would be very glad to consider their recommendations, and if such recommendations seemed to be reasonable and well founded, to put them into operation so far as might be practicable. An effort was made on the part of these interests to meet this requirement, but without much success. It seemed, nevertheless, desirable to give an opportunity for a full discussion of the subject, and, therefore, a conference was held at the department of agriculture, February 10, 1920.

This conference brought together the principal orchid importers and orchid growers of the United States, and the needs of this industry from the production and other standpoints were fully discussed. As a basis for this discussion, the principle which governed in the drafting and promulgation of Quarantine No. 37 was pointed out by the board, namely, that inasmuch as any importation of plants carries some risk of bringing in new and probably dangerous plant diseases and insects, such importations should be limited to those classes of nursery stock and other plants for propagation which are determined to be absolutely necessary to the horticultural, floricultural and forestry needs of the United States, and that on this principle the question of orchid importations would have to be decided on the determination of this factor of necessity.

The discussion which followed developed the cleavage already indicated, nor were these two conflicting interests able to come to any agreement. The orchid producers contended that the restrictions on the importation of orchids under Quarantine No. 37 were necessary and desirable and were not hurtful in any way to the development of the orchid industry in this country, but, on the other hand, would be distinctly helpful to such development, and, further, that the needs of the country could be met by home production from existing stocks and by importations already provided for in Quarantine No. 37 of the necessary propagating material not now available. On the other hand, the orchid importers, who have hitherto been bringing in wild orchids in considerable quantities from South America, the Philippines, or elsewhere, objected very strenuously to the restrictions on their business and the elimination of this source of profit, and contended that such importations were necessary at the present time for the maintenance and development of orchid production in America. No new and specific reasons for this contention, however, were advanced, and in the end there was a general agreement on the part of practically all of the persons who participated in the discussion that the production of orchids from seed, either of species or by hybridization, was entirely feasible and practicable, the group of importers, however, still contending that the importation of orchids should be continued pending adequate development of such home production.

It appeared, however, that the only thing to be considered by the board was the time factor, and from the information presented, it did not appeal to the board that this factor was of vital importance in view of the showing of large available stocks now in this country, together with the progress which had already been made in the growing of orchids from seed. It was believed that the future needs of the industry, therefore, could be met under existing conditions, and under the provisions of Quarantine No. 37 for the importation of any stocks necessary for the introduction of new varieties, and for the supplying of propagating material not now available in the United States.

After a full consideration of all the representations made at the conference, the board has decided that no new or valid reasons had been brought forward to warrant any modification at this time of Quarantine No. 37 with respect to orchid importations.

Boston Orchid Show.

A VISITOR'S COMMENTS.

The recent annual spring show and orchid exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, at Horticultural hall, Boston, March 24-28, marked a distinct advance in the progress of floriculture in this country. It was attended by many of the most prominent members of the craft, both commercial and private growers, who were unanimous in their praise of the high quality of the various exhibits, particularly the orchids, which in their variety and excellence of arrangement, had never been equalled at any previous exhibition in the United States.

The magnificence of the Albert C. Burrage collection, and the great variety of the orchids in this beautifully arranged display, will do much to increase the love for these flowers of the tropics, without which no private greenhouse collection is now complete. Commercial men could also see possibilities in the wonderfully flowered sprays of the cymbidiums and phalaenopsis, which as cut flowers should rank very high in the quality stock of the markets of all the large cities.

Flowers are most beautiful as seen growing in their natural surroundings, and exhibitors and managers of exhibitions are gradually planning and arranging interiors to simulate outdoor natural or garden effects. This was the central idea of the Burrage display; they were shown, the terrestrial or ground growing classes, in mossy banks, while the epiphytal, or air plants, were attached to tree trunks. The scene, as a whole, resembled a tropical orchid forest, and considering the limited space, was well carried out. The five fern topped tree trunks in the center of the hall, appeared too large for the space, but this was necessary to conceal the pots of the various plants with the bulky cork bark. It was thought by some that a better effect would have been produced with the trees at the sides, and the low beds in the center, but the idea was a forest, through which the visitors could walk and closely inspect the flowers. It was a long step forward in orchid display which will have its effect on future exhibitions.

The commercial exhibit of orchids of the Julius Roehrs Co. was very artistically grouped together. This large display was a feature of the main hall, which would have been enhanced with natural surroundings, had the space permitted. There were many beautiful specimen orchid plants staged in the small hall, which would have made a much more artistic showing with a more or less tropical setting or background. Such surroundings must be planned for, and set up by the management of the show, ready for the exhibits when they arrive.

The arrangement of R. & J. Farquhar & Co.'s exhibit, in garden effect, across the end of the large hall, was much admired. The center bed of Regale lilies, flanked on each side with the brilliant coloring of the Kaempferi azaleas, against a background of tall cedars, and finished in front with a wide grass border, was most complete, an ideal decorative exhibit.

The collection of Kurume azaleas, exhibited by C. S. Sargent, were, next to the orchids, the most striking feature of the show. These interesting and beautiful plants are a decided novelty. Many of them have a petaloid calyx and hose-in-hose flowers. In such flowers, the stamens of which there are always five, the pistil is perfect, and there is no malformation as in ordinary double flowers. This new azalea belongs to the same group as the well known Hinodigiri, amoena and obtusa, but its larger and different shaped flowers, together with the great range of colors, will make it most desirable as a garden shrub. Very few plants, with the exception of those exhibited, are now in the United States. They can be propogated from soft wood cuttings, and come freely from seed, but their increase in any quantity will necessarily be slow. These plants were purchased by E. H. Wilson for the Arnold Arboretum, at Kurume, a town on the island of Kyushu, Japan, in 1918.

The trade is certainly indebted to Thomas Roland for bringing out the commercial value of the acacias. His exhibit of two groups, containing a number of varieties of the longifolia type, pubescens, and the glaucous cupleaf Baileyana, was splendidly arranged and easily one of the features of the show. The grower who will make a specialty of these hardwooded plants, will surely find a remunerative market for both the finished specimens and cut sprays.

One of the most striking and valuable hardy flowering plants was Rhododendron Miss Louise Hunnewell. While it belongs to the rhododendron family, it is better known as Azalea mollis, and this new comer can truly be called a glorified mollis. The heads of bloom are much larger, and the 18 plants exhibited, all seedlings, presented slight variations of flower and color, but were all brilliant orange shades. The plants in tubs, stood four to five feet in height, and carried from 12 to 18 blooms. The variety is a cross between Azalea chinensis and A. japonica. It was raised by Superintendent T. D. Hatfield of the Walter Hunnewell estate. This was exhibited for the first time last year, and was awarded a gold medal by the society. As a decorative feature, and one to be highly commended, Mr. Hatfield had sown grass seed over the soil of the tubs, which green verdure gave a neat appearance to each plant.

The various groups of flowering plants, while containing many beautiful spicimens, lacked space to show them to advantage. In fact, the only criticism of this beautiful exhibition was that during the popular visiting hours of the day and evening the building was too crowded for comfort, the aisles being too narrow for convenient passing.

James Wheeler, in charge of allotting the space for the various exhibits, seemed able to find the proper space for the different classes, and the whole exhibition had a most finished appearance.

The leaflets describing the various species of orchids, and their history, together with a beautiful picture of a phalaenopsis, that were handed to each visitor as they entered the hall, were very acceptable souvenirs. These were presented by Albert C. Burrage. A history of the Kurume azaleas had been made the subject of a bulletin of the society, which was presented to all its members.

Th attendance was most satisfactory, breaking records of all previous shows, although the admission, $1.00, was twice that ever charged before.

Florists' Club of Philadelphia.

The features of the April meeting of the florists' club were the address on advertising by Charles Bloomingdale, Jr. and the Illustrated News of Penn, the Florist, Boston, Mass. Mr. Bloomingdale's talk was very short but practical and to the point. He believes in constant plugging with new matter every day which people will unconsciously absorb until it will so become the custom to use flowers that their sale will be greatly increased. The advertising of Penn was wonderfully illustrated and well written. His series of publicity schemes that call to mind all current events make this matter timely and so attractive that it is sure to be read. This series, shown on 150 slides, embraces the entire season and contains ideas of much value to retail florists.

Daughter—A certain young man sent me these flowers this morning.

Papa—Do not say "a certain young man," my dear. There is none of 'em certain till you've got 'em.

GOOD SUPPLY OF EXCELLENT QUALITY.

Stock of very good quality and a satisfactory demand are features of the market. In roses, there are generous offerings of all standard varieties, all showing good condition. Carnations are plentiful and rather low in price, while sweet peas of good grade are scarce. The indoor stock seems to lack vitality, while the outdoor flowers are still behind requirements. Daffodils are seen in quantity, but will not be a factor much longer. Limited receipts of cattleyas move fast and the lily of the valley supply has diminished considerably, but as the demand is not strong, it is not greatly missed. Violets are plentiful and cheap and snapdragons, which are very popular, are coming forward more freely. Pot plants are beginning to occupy a prominent place in the store displays. Green receipts are generous.

NOTES.

Plans are progressing rapidly for the state's sixth annual wild flower and United States forestry exhibition, which will be held April 22-24 at the St. Francis hotel in this city. The trade will be well represented at the show. The directors are Luther Burbank, Santa Rosa; Dr. R. L. Wilbur, president of Leland Stanford University; Dr. David P. Barrows, president of the University of California; John McLaren, superintendent of Golden Gate park, Frank D. Pelicano, Lester L. Morse and George C. Roeding, among others.

The Richard Diener Co., of Kentfield, is experiencing a very heavy demand for their new hybrid gladioli. Richard Diener is one of the most prominent hybridists in this country, and he has produced many valuable novelties in plants, which will be put on the market in the near future.

S. Gaggero, of Colma, says that trade at the cemeteries has been very good all season. His stores there are in much favor with the buying public. He has recently completed two large greenhouses which will be used for growing stock for cemetery work.

Percy Ellings, of the Lynch Nursery Company, says business with them has been excellent this spring. Shipping trade has been all that could be expected. In the landscape department, he says they have been engaged continually.

Andrew Miluiovich, of The Conservatory, on Larkin street, says trade has been good with this firm since its opening. J. R. Sievers is the manager.

F. C. Jaeger & Son are showing a fine assortment of hybrid amaryllis in bloom. Many of them are of immense size and dazzling shades of crimson. They are proving a great attraction at their Powell street store.

Ernest Jacobson, of 509 Haight street, has been absent from his store for some time, owing to illness. His friends are hoping to see him around again soon.

The Hillsborough Nurseries report a strong demand for plants of all kinds, and report outdoor planting much heavier this year than for some time.

William H. Reese, of 1613 Ellis street, has a nicely arranged flower store and is meeting with much success in this neighborhood.

M. H. Ebel, of Sacramento, says there is every indication that trade there will be much in excess of former years.

Lazarian & Bartev are doing a nice trade at their store at 1237 Polk street. A thriving business in plants has been built up at this establishment.

Bab Pagano, of Avensino Bros. & Co., says his firm has met with much success since opening up their new store.

Podesta & Baldocchi are receiving large shipments of stock which are required for their trade.

J. A. Axell, at 463 Bush street, says the shipping demand is brisk.

EXCELLENT SUPPLY BRINGS GOOD PRICES.

No previous Easter welcomed more or better flowers than the one just passed. In view of the scarcity for many weeks previous, the supply and display was truly wonderful, and the weather for the most part was good. While Thursday came in with rain, which continued throughout the day, Friday dawned bright and beautiful, which enabled the florists to present splendid displays in the shops. The supply of Easter lilies was never surpassed in this city nor better displayed, being in greatest abundance this year and of splendid quality, a great contrast to last year. There were at least 10,000 of them on this market. The price continued high—$8 per dozen—but that had no effect on sales. In some few instances good blooms could be had at 50 cents each. The prominent flower stores all were well prepared with enormous stocks, and every small grower in the vicinity had a wagon in the market place. As a rule, few of the latter had lilies, their offerings consisting of geraniums, ferns, tulips, hyacinths, begonias, pansies, etc. The day was bright and pleasant and all did a good business and received good prices. Roses for the most part were inclined to be scarce and very high priced, ranging from $4 to $10 per dozen. Carnations, only offered by the most advanced growers, held their own at $4 per dozen. Snapdragons, sweet peas, pansies, violets and lily of the valley gave pleasing variety and there were many cinerarias in the market also.

NOTES.

The Joy Floral Co. had an enormous stock of lilies, roses, carnations and everything else desirable. After shipping a carload to its Chattanooga branch, which does nearly as large a business as the local store, they still had abundance of fine stock to meet all requirements. This firm's Columbia roses were exceptionally fine, and with the good foliage easily commanded $10 per dozen. They also had perfect snapdragons, which were quite a favorite, also mignonette, violets and lily of the valley. The decorated baskets here were things of beauty and brought prices ranging from $5 to $25, the latter selling briskly.

Geny Bros. had a perfect fairyland in their splendidly arranged store. Hundreds of Easter lilies, pot hyacinths and tulips, as well as beautiful baskets and birch boxes made up a wonderful collection. There were throngs of eager buyers and quick sales. Their roses were unusually fine, but the supply was limited and the same was true of carnations, but in fine pot stock there was practically a supply without limit.

The McIntyre Floral Co. was right to the front with magnificent cut stock of Easter lilies, decorated baskets and boxes and some of the most artistic combinations ever shown at their establishment. They had quantities of well-grown lily of the valley, but were not so well prepared with roses and carnations.

The Mt. Olivet Conservatories saved their stock for the cemetery trade and had excellent lilies, pot hyacinths and tulips in variety.

L. H. Haury Sons & Co. had a fine stock of desirable quantity. They had many customers who made liberal purchases.

WEATHER FAILS TO STOP BIG EASTER.

The market shows an entire cleanup in seasonable cut flowers. Easter lily plants sold out entirely and 1,000 more could have been disposed of in this city had they been available. The retail stores report one of the worst Easters in their history as far as weather was concerned. Notwithstanding the snow which fell, daily, sales were not affected to any great extent, and stripped of their large stock, the stores all look like the "western front."

NOTES.

The Miller Floral Co. worked under great disadvantage. Three of their auto delivery cars broke down during the stormy weather, but with the assistance of the Western Union and an army of boys, all orders were delivered on time.

At the Sanders Floral Co., Mrs. Unire B. Frontyes, formerly of Frontyes Floral Co., Payson, Utah, was rendering valuable assistance during the rush.

The Lambourne Floral Co. had to have its car pulled out of the mud on two different occasions.

The B. C. Morris Floral Co. report a heavy business and were prepared to meet all demands.

The Huddart Floral Co. had a very busy Easter and cleaned up nicely in all lines.

Bailey & Sons had a heavy run on plants, of which they had an abundant supply.

WEDDINGS FACTOR IN HOLDING AVERAGE.

An increasing number of weddings has figured in keeping up the general average of business of late, and the store decorations have also been increasing in volume. Local greenhouses are cutting freely enough to almost bring a halt to California shipments, with the exception of violets and asparagus. Shipping orders for other northwestern points have been filled on a number of spring lines, notably jonquils, tulips and hydrangeas. The local supply of the latter flower has been especially heavy, and the blooms are all of fine quality, so that this has been one of the popular sellers. Calceolaria has been a popular novelty in the pot plant list, and cinerarias are being offered in a wide variety of shades. Azaleas have been popular when offered in the larger sizes. The cut of carnations could still show a good sized increase, Laddie continues the popular seller, with other varieties cleaning up in good style. The supply of lily of the valley and orchids has been holding up to late averages while a big increase is seen in the cut of gardenias, so that some shipping business has been cared for of late. Columbia and Ophelia roses are free sellers, and lead the local deliveries, with Ward and Rose Premier in increasing supply. Spring roses are also coming to hand and are being shown in a variety of holders. Some of the finest sweet peas of the season have been arriving within the past week or so, and these have been combined with orchids in most of the corsages.

NOTES.

Rosaia Bros. showed a window of hydrangeas, primroses and azaleas the early part of Easter week, which attracted more than passing comment. The hydrangeas were of especially notable quality and size. A big crop of Ward roses is being grown at this firm's greenhouses and tulips have been making a fine showing as well. Bob Corrier, an old time employe of the firm is again on the floor, helping to take care of the retail trade.

March business was considerably in excess of that for the corresponding month of last year, reports Harry Crouch, of the Woodlawn Flower Shop. This firm is getting the greater share of its supply from the local growers, and finds this more than adequate.

The Burns Floral Company reports a fine demand of late for pot hydrangeas and calceolarias. A number of large weddings have been handled of late, and the corsages developed, were a source of comment in the social columns of the daily newspapers.

Fred H. Rowe, of McCoys, expects to be entirely settled in the new Second avenue home of this firm in another week, although the building was nearly enough completed by Easter to allow the establishment of a salesroom there for the holiday trade.

Felix Rosaia has been featuring ready-made corsages in one window during the shopping hours, and reports that this practice has paid well for the time and effort involved.

William Goldberry of Kenney's Home of Flowers spent a part of last week in Vancouver, B. C., on a combined business and pleasure trip.

BRISK AND PROFITABLE TRADE.

Trade during the week previous to Easter was the best in the history of the industry in the Buckeye capital. On the whole, the demand was brisk and profitable and the downtown shops had difficulty getting sufficient extra help to take care of the rush. The week was marked by a scarcity of violets and sweet peas, with other flowers offered in sufficient abundance to take care of the demand. The call for plants was not quite as active as was anticipated, although the stores did not have much stock on hand when the day was over. Easter lilies, primroses, hydrangeas and jonquils were the most popular of the plants. There were also frequent calls for hyacinths. Easter lilies sold from $2 to $12, depending largely on the plant. Roses were in exceedingly good demand, and the quality was extra fine. Sweet peas sold at 75 cents to $1.50 per bunch, and violets at $2 per bunch. Jonquils brought about the same price as violets. Carnations were rather plentiful and retailed in the neighborhood of $3 per dozen. Total sales in money were much larger this year than in any previous season. Prices were generally good, and with the exception of plants, stock entirely cleaned up. The supply of cut flowers was about equal to requirements, excepting in the case of sweet peas and violets. Social functions during the week were slow because of the season, but florists are booking a number of events in April, and the wedding season is expected to open about May 1. Funeral work has been rather quiet, as has been the case for several weeks. The big feature of the business was the demand for corsages, and many of the downtown florists had orders that could not be filled.

ARBOR DAY in Illinois is April 30.

THE date of Easter in 1921 is March 27, eight days earlier than this year.

PROF. A. C. BEAL, of Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., will give an illustrated talk on "Gladioli" at the New Century Club, Philadelphia, Pa., under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, April 13.

Hail Damage at Lincoln, Neb.

Damage totaling approximately $5,000 in loss of glass resulted from a severe hail storm which swept Lincoln, Neb., and vinicity on the night of March 24. Hiltner Bros.' establishment suffered the greatest damage, thousands of lights being broken, entailing severe injury to plants. At the Frey & Frey range, practically all glass on the south side of the houses was broken, the loss totalling nearly $1,500. The Eiche Floral Co., was more fortunate, the total damage being about $200. Other losses reported are Yule Bros., $600, and the greenhouse at the state farm, $300.

Cottage Gardens Nurseries.

An important collection agency says: "The equities of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries are fast vanishing by foreclosure suits."

Easter Results.

From all parts of the country have come reports of a greatly increased Easter business, both in plants and cut flowers. The plant growers, who had the courage in spite of higher costs of production, to continue or increase their usual line, made no mistake, and were amply rewarded. The progressive retailers, who, in spite of the greatly increased prices, catered to their patrons with an even larger and more varied stock, realized handsome profits, and added as well to their reputation. It was a great Easter and should give encouragement to all branches of the trade in the business of the coming spring months, which have opened so auspiciously.

Coal Situation.

Owing to the coal strike during the fall of 1919 and the continued poor car supply; also the unusually long winter season, the coal year ending March 31 terminates with a big demand for coal from all over the country. It finds the large coal docks along the great lakes and in the northwest, bare, where usually a good supply is carried over at this time of the season; it finds a great many of the steam plants running from hand to mouth; it finds the railroads still so short of coal that they are confiscating coal shipments daily; it finds an unusual demand for export. Coupling these demands with the persisting poor supply of cars at the mines, makes coal a scarce article today. Unless there is an increase in the supply of cars, and a general decrease in the demand for coal (which the writer does not look for) the new prices, effective April 1, running from 50 cents to 75 cents a ton over the government prices just expiring, will undoubtedly be unstable; in fact, we look for advances even above these new figures. Therefore, it looks as though prices for the next 90 days will range from 75 cents to $1.00 per ton higher than they were during February and March. What the situation will be after 90 days, is hard to foretell, but the wise buyer stocks his coal early, regardless of what the price may be. It is far better to be insured with a good supply of coal, than to be without coal in zero weather.

New York Spring Show.

VISITOR OBJECTS TO SALES.

It has occurred to the writer and to many others whom he has approached on the subject that the effect of a beautiful exhibition such as the flower show was partially annulled by the efforts of some exhibitors to coin money from their exhibits. Not that an exhibition should not have for one of its indirect objects the stimulation of the sale of an article shown. We cannot expect human beings to forego the chance to boost their particular enterprises even in such an æsthetic effort as a show of flowers. But it does seem a pity that many exhibitors looked upon the opportunity to show the public what they could produce as a chance to take fat orders, to make of Grand Central Palace not a show place but a store or a stall for which they paid, considering the popularity of the place for that purpose, only a nominal rental.

Next time we may expect a hardware dealer, a shoe manufacturer, a clothier, to reserve the house for show purposes and, after asking us for $1 admission, fit us out with a new suit of clothes, or a fine pair of shoes, or induce us to invest in a kitchen cabinet.

I protest at paying for a show which is nothing better than a market place. —Rhododendron, in New York Sun, March 27.

Ladies' Society of American Florists.

The many friends of Mrs. E. M. Bullock, Elkhart, Ind., member of the above society and life member of the Society of American Florists, will be sorry to learn that she has been critically ill of Bright's disease and other complications since the middle of January. At the present time, she is able to sit up for only a few minutes at a time. Mrs. Bullock is well known to the florist trade from coast to coast, and many will be the wishes for her speedy recovery.

SPLENDID EASTER IN ALL LINES.

The bright, sunshiny weather of the days previous to Easter Sunday made the business of this holiday the best ever. Bulbous stock popped open, and large quantities arrived in unsatisfactory condition. Lilies, especially, were affected by the heat. Any one so fortunate as to need this condition to put his stock in shape for Easter delivery, was indeed a lucky personage. The commission men were rushed to death with belated demands for stock to meet an oversold condition. Cut lilies brought various prices ranging from $10 per 100 for flowers without stems, up to $25 for the best. Snapdragons were of very good quality and sold at prices ranging upward to $2 per dozen. Single daffodils sold well, considering that southern stock flooded the market. Sweet peas showed the effects of the hot weather, and while they lacked quality, they were eagerly sought. Two dollars per 100 was the prevailing price for good stock. Carnations held their own, but owing to the bulbous competition, did not go above a normal price of $10 per 100 for the best blooms. Orchids and lily of the valley were scarce articles, and out of town shipments arrived short, making for the retailers, a condition hard to overcome. Plants sold out in moderate priced grades; in fact, everything moved easily, the people willing to pay for anything that was reasonably priced, and in good condition. Pot lilies were very good sellers and moved out early. Genistas, pans of double yellow and pink tulips, rambler roses and the new French hydrangeas were among the most satisfactory plants offered on this market. K.

HEAVY EASTER DEMAND.

The demand for stock for Easter this year was exceptionally heavy, and while the market did not clean up as completely as the wholesalers would like, everything sold up well, considering the large quantities handled, with the exception of a few items. The shipping trade was particularly heavy, and the local demand, which started in rather late, was surprisingly brisk. Some of the stock reached the market the early part of last week in very poor condition, which had a tendency to weaken the prices on first-class flowers, which, however, brought good figures. Lilies were in great over-supply, and much poor stock was included in the offerings, the prices ranging from 10 cents to 35 cents each, according to quality, with very few obtainable at the low price mentioned. There was a good supply of lilies left over after Easter, but there probably never were so many cut lilies offered in the market as this year, notwithstanding all reports to the contrary. Roses were good property, and cleaned up quickly in all varieties at good prices, with Premier, Columbia and Mrs. Chas. Russell having the best call. American Beauty roses were none too plentiful, and the same holds true for Cecile Brunner, Elgar, Nesbit and Baby Doll. Sweet peas were in strong demand at good prices, and so were violets, both items cleaning up quickly at very satisfactory figures. Orchids brought high prices, and there were just about enough to go around. Gardenias cleaned up as usual. Lily of the valley had a good call, with fancy stock bringing $12.00 per 100. Tulips and jonquils moved fast at good prices, and so did freesia, which was in limited supply. Daisies, calendulas, snapdragons, callas, mignonette, stocks, sweet alyssum, anemones, statice, pansies, forget-me-nots, narcissi and other miscellaneous stock had a good call, with some items cleaning up completely. Carnations were in exceptionally heavy supply, but much inferior stock was offered, consequently prices were not as high as expected. Fresh carnations brought good returns, but the poorer stock had to be sacrificed at low figures in order to move it. If one had to mention the different quotations made, and prices realized on carnations, he would have a pretty tough job of it, for taking everything into consideration, and the quotations that were published, the returns were in some instances very disappointing to the growers. Green goods were in heavy demand and cleaned up at high prices in all lines, including huckleberry from California and other greens from the south, never before offered in this market. The weather was against the local retailer last week, consequently he held off buying in most cases until Saturday, when it was ideal for shopping, and the stores cleaned up all the plants they had to offer, as well as the cut flowers in stock, and those brought in from the market late in the day. A heavy blizzard struck this vicinity stores sold a large supply of stock this year, chiefly pot lilies, hyacinths, tulips and ramber roses at ridiculously low figures. Business, according to nearly everyone in the trade here, was much better than last year. Prices were not as high, but more stock was handled by far, and the sales naturally were more numerous. There is a good supply of stock in the market this week, but the demand for it is good, which points to a clean-up for Easter at all points. The express embargo is affecting shipping to some extent, consequently stock is accumulating and considerable pushing is needed to move it even at reduced prices. The blizzard proved to be more serious than at first expected, for very few buyers were seen in the market Monday.

One of the loop dealers estimates his loss owing to the blizzard on Sunday at $1,000, while others in different parts of the city report various losses, which otherwise would have enabled them to clean up everything salable.

NOTES.

W. S. Wells, of the Blue Maize Blossom Shop, Ann Arbor, Mich., was here buying stock this week for the junior prom to be held in the University of Michigan building April 9. The color scheme will be yellow and blue and in addition to the cut flowers that will be needed in the corsages and decorations he will use 125 cases of wild smilax and other greens. About 40 booths made of birch poles and trimmed with greens will each be decorated with a large basket of cut flowers. Mr. Wells says that his Easter business was exceptionally good and he filled over 200 telegraph orders.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. never offered such a fine supply of orchids for Easter as this year, some of the Cattleya mossiæ measuring nearly 11 inches across. John Poehlmann appeared to be more than satisfied with the total cut flower sales which were far in excess of those of last year.

Miller & Musser beat the department stores at their own game by selling pot lilies at 25 cents per flower for Easter. This firm managed to pick up a bargain in this stock at the last minute and did not lose any time in moving them.

Percy Jones, Inc., disposed of all the stock it had to offer at Easter besides a large supply bought in the open market. This firm's sales should be the best ever judging from the business it did.

George Wienhoeber had a big decoration at the Dryden home at Evanston this week which kept his right hand assistant, Peter Miller, and several men busy for two days arranging it.

The Joseph Foerster Co's. entire force was busy as bees all last week filling Easter orders and stock at the establishment cleaned up nicely in all lines before the rush was over.

Lewis & Rocca did a very satisfactory business at their East Jackson boulevard store with plants having the best call although cut flowers were in good demand.

Erne & Company had their share of the Easter business and are well pleased with the result.

Max Awizzus has been on the sick list for a couple of weeks, but is improving nicely.

The White House Florist had a splendid Easter trade with a complete clean-up in plants.

W. N. Rudd's son-in-law, Dr. Speed, has been appointed delegate to the surgical congress to be held in Paris, and expects to sail in June, accompanied by Mrs. Speed. Mr. Rudd's elder daughter, Mrs. R. M. Arnold, and Miss Phyllis Rudd, returned from California last week.

Wm. Keller, for a number of years in charge of the packing department at Vaughan's greenhouses, Western Springs, died April 1, age 35 years, leaving three small children, orphans, Mrs. Keller having died some 18 months previous.

The retail stores in the outlying districts, which usually do a good Sunday business, had a considerable stock of plants and flowers left on their hands on account of the Easter Sunday storm, which held most of the people in doors.

George Asmus is confined to his home this week with a severe attack of rheumatism. He managed to be on the job all during the Easter rush but had to give in when the blizzard struck this city on Easter Sunday.

The E. F. Winterson Co. did all the Easter business it could handle and cleaned out everything it had to offer in cut flowers and plants. The supply department moved a large number of baskets last week.

Bassett & Washburn had a heavy cut of roses for Easter and cleaned up at an early hour each day in this line. Their shipping trade was exceptionally brisk and the city demand exceeded all expectations.

Zech & Mann had a big Easter business, with the total sales showing a big increase over those of last year. Their shipping trade was particularly heavy and the city demand was very satisfactory.

Vaughan's Seed Store is turning out a big line of fill-in orders from the trade over a wide range of the central states and west. Quick service was never more appreciated than this belated season.

Walter Tonner is now engaged in the landscape business for himself. He is a brother of Misses O. A. and L. A. Tonner, who conduct a wholesale house in the local cut flower market.

Wietor Bros. had a brisk call for roses and carnations for Easter and cleaned up nicely in both lines notwithstanding the heavy supply of stock in the last named item.

D. D. P. Roy, now at Moline, called on his friends here this week. He reports that the trade there enjoyed a brisk Easter business with the usual heavy call for pot lilies.

A. E. Turner, Mosinee, Wis., called on the wholesale trade here this week. He is supplying quite a number of the wholesale florists with ferns and is now in business for himself.

Kennicott Bros. Co's. sales were larger than last year and much stock was handled at this establishment. The out-of-town demand was heavy and the city trade was brisk.

A. L. Vaughan & Co's. sales for Easter were ahead of last year with those of March 31 establishing a new record. Large quantities of lilies were moved at this establishment.

Chas. Drissler, of Wietor Bros., has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his father who died suddenly last week at the age of 80 years.

The J. A. Budlong Co's. sales this Easter were ahead of those of last year with a heavy call for stock from out-of-town points.

The Weiland-Risch Co. is cutting especially fine Mrs. Chas. Russell roses, which made a big hit with their customers at Easter.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. cleaned up nicely in all items for Easter especially roses and lilies of which they had a large supply.

The A. L. Randall Co. had a heavy demand for cut flowers for Easter from both the out-of-town sections and local points.

The John Kruchten Co. had a fine Easter business and took splendid care of all their regular customers.

Tonners' had a very satisfactory business in both their retail and wholesale departments for Easter.

It is rumored a new jobbing house will enter the wholesale field here in the near future.

A. F. Amling and wife are back from a pleasant visit to California.

BLIZZARD AFFECTS TRADE BUT LITTLE.

The pre-Easter period, rather than the day itself, brought a wonderful business to the florists of this city, for Sunday was marked by a blizzard which started the day previous and continued throughout the forenoon of April 4. Church services were interfered with somewhat, and business in the flower shops naturally suffered to some extent from this cause. The general volume of business considering the unfavorable conditions, was very good, however, hundreds of orders being booked well in advance with few cancellations. The late demand, of course, which is always somewhat of a factor, was lost due to the storm. Stock, nevertheless, was well cleaned up. Easter lilies sold out well, although many had been shipped in for the occasion. These, according to the local trade, were of inferior quality this year.

PICKLED STOCK BRINGS PROTEST.

The Easter trade in this vicinity, from the standpoint of retailer, wholesaler, and grower, was very satisfactory, as far as volume was concerned, but it came with a rush on Saturday, the previous days of the week failing to maintain the average of former years, when more advance orders were the rule. The retail stores were well prepared with a fine stock of seasonable plants, which included well grown bulbous stock. There were lilies, bougainvilleas, hydrangeas, roses, some azaleas, genistas and rhododendrons. Most of the plants were well grown and nicely timed as to blooming period as they were in full flower when required on Saturday. The stock of bulbous plants exceeded the other varieties and a greater range in prices and sizes adjusted them to the varied calls. Easter lilies were fine but the stock was far short of requirements as every dealer ran short of this item, notwithstanding the fact that prices were held high, mostly 75 cents and $1 per flower and bud. It was noted that the cut flower stock in this market, for this occasion was at least ninety per cent "pickled", and this applied to every item except lilies. Violets were ancient, ill-smelling and unsalable and thousands of sweet peas were spotted with age and water soaked, while roses were in a sorry condition, the majority of them appearing to have been cut 10 days or two weeks previous. Subject as we were to the censure of a disgruntled public that called us profiteers during the winter, because of high prices, they were again made victims of the nefarious "pickling process" of the growers, who apparently will never learn by such experience, which robs the trade of its dignity and delivers a body blow to the slogan, "Say it With Flowers." Retailers encouraged the buying of plants because they were well grown and would prove satisfactory, but it will be some time before the evil of this Easter will be forgotten by the retailers. The weather on Saturday was favorable to shopping, but Sunday was bitter cold and windy and entirely unsuited to the parade of corsage wearers, whose numbers were great as the call for these arrangements indicated.

NOTE.

The next meeting of the florists' club will be held Tuesday evening, April 13, when a publicity campaign will be inaugurated and J. F. Ammann will be the principal speaker. M. Bloy will also address the meeting on his trip through the "sunny south." Philip Breitmeyer will also have a message of importance to those who attend this meeting.

BIG VOLUME OF EASTER BUSINESS.

The first large flower holiday of 1920, namely Easter, is gone, and as far as volume is concerned, business came up to expectations and was the best ever. Pot plants in bloom easily were the favorites, with choice cut flowers a close second. As predicted some time ago, the supply of plants did not equal the demand, while in cut flowers conditions were more favorable. Due to the unexpected mild weather the forepart of the week, a good many more cut blooms came in than were expected. Especially was this a set back to carnations. Being quoted a little too high in all price lists, prospective buyers turned their attention to other lines and bought. The announcements of reduced prices failed to make good, because it was too late. The cut of sweet peas also was very heavy during the warm spell, but toward the end of the week, when the locals wanted them, especially for corsage work, they shortened up considerably. The heat also put the violets out of commission just when they could have been used to good advantage. While a large supply of greens had been ordered, the same did not arrive in time for the rush. In spite of the fact that better prices than ever were asked, especially for flowering plants, the public was not inclined to hold back, for every good plant in bloom was easily disposed of, and more could have been sold. The weather on Easter Sunday was cloudy, with the thermometer a little below the freezing point. Had it been ideal, we dare say that we would have been able to report a complete clean-up. The receipts, April 5, were not heavy, and with quite a bit of funeral work, the market starts off in a healthy tone.

NOTE.

We have been treated to some very severe wind storms during the past fortnight, which, while not causing any great damage to anyone in particular, have caused more broken glass than the average florist cares to replace at the present high prices.

EXCELLENT BUSINESS UNDER DIFFICULTIES.

All over but the shouting—and too tired to shout—describes the feeling of the local florists Easter Sunday afternoon. It certainly was a busy Easter; plenty of stock in most lines, plenty of customers and consequently plenty to do, with an addition to the work part of it, by the setting in, at 8 p. m. Saturday evening, of high north winds, with rain turning to sleet and snow, a temperature Sunday morning of 24°, and the air full of flying and drifting snow. Most plant deliveries had to have additional wrapping, and "a generally good time was enjoyed by all concerned"; even the delivery drivers showed deep feeling in strong words. The supply of lilies was adequate and these were leaders in demand. Marguerites, pelargoniums, hydrangeas and good bulbous stock, all found good sales. Prices, of course, were higher than before the war. Lilies sold for 50 cents per flower, and most other plant stock showed a corresponding price level, but the stock was good, and few complaints were heard. Cut flowers were excellent all down the line, although a few sleepy carnations will still show up in stock from some growers. The advance in price for Easter was barely enough to cover wholesale advances. Roses brought from $3.00 to $9.00 per dozen, with shorts selling at various lower figures. The best carnations brought $3.00 per dozen. Daffodil Emperor was good property, and good tulips sold well. However, after all is considered, the plant customers were the most numerous. Made-up baskets were only in moderate demand. The various flower shops made splendid displays, and the public certainly responded handsomely.

THE EASTER BUSINESS.

The business of the great spring holiday of 1920 has proved to be record breaking, both in value and volume of trade. It was a big Easter for the growers. With the exception of giganteum lilies, all the plant specialties of first or second choice were sold out before deliveries began on Monday. Rambler roses closed out first, as they were scarce, then the azaleas—a few imported from Belgium last spring—and the Hinodigiri, of which there were a fair quantity, but not enough to go around. These latter were very well flowered, and will be a strong factor as an Easter plant from now on. Some of the hardy Azalea indica alba were also forced, and will be included in future lists. Hydrangeas were the quantity stock, but there were hardly enough of the higher grades to go around, and too many were left to be closed out to the hucksters and street men the last day. The buyers sized up the pot lily situation and waited, just taking enough to start off with at 25 cents per flower and bud. Later the price softened in some quarters, going as low as 20 cents, and other stocks were sold, provided certain quantities of lilies were included. As the week's trade developed, good lilies were in demand, and both pot and cut stock closed on Saturday at $25 per hundred buds and flowers.

April 6.—This Easter Monday finds the market with a fairly good supply, all fresh stock, a little late getting in, and meeting with a very good demand. There was practically nothing salable in plants and cut flowers carried over from last week; in fact, in many lines, there was not enough to go around. All the stores, both large and small, as well as those who take a flyer with a lot of plants in an empty store, and the curbstone merchants, who stock up late on Friday and Saturday with the culls of the greenhouses, all sold out, at prices considerably in excess of those of last year. Now that retailers have time to survey the situation, most that is said in reference to the trade appears extravagant, and every adjective of a descriptive nature is called into play. From all parts of the city, there were the same satisfactory reports, indicating at least a 20 per cent increase in the total volume of business.

GROWERS AND WHOLESALERS PLEASED.

Alfred M. Campbell was congratulated on all sides for his handling of the product of 45,000 giganteum bulbs for the week. Many thousands were sold in pots, but the great bulk of the stock was grown for cut flowers. The quality of the plants and blooms was excellent, and they appeared to be timed to a nicety. To bring this quantity of bulbs, grown in five different houses, all in at once, and on time, is a feat in itself, and then with the same management, to sell them at the top market price, shows wonderful business ability. Twenty thousand Emperor daffodils, as fine as ever seen in this market, was another of his Easter successes, this number being actually sold and delivered for the week.

The Robert Craig Co. moved an immense Easter stock, one item being 18,000 pots of giganteums, Azaleas, roses, genistas and marguerites were other quantity items. Mr. Craig said it was their biggest Easter, and the last at 49th street. The present season was the silver anniversary of the founding of the business, the first greenhouse being erected there 50 years ago. They will move to their Norwood branch in July.

W. K. Harris also sold all of their immense stock, and H. I. Foust, Aschmann Bros., Godfrey Aschmann, Floracroft Gardens, and other specialists in Easter stock, all report a demand that took all salable plants at higher prices than ever before.

The wholesale commission houses never experienced such a demand, the out-of-town business being exceptionally large. The Leo Niessen Co. had a large extra force that worked at full speed all day and far into the night on Wednesday and Thursday in getting out their shipping orders. Over 500,000 sweet peas were handled for the week, which will give some idea of the extent of the business transacted in other items. It was the best Easter they have ever experienced. Edward Reid also had a record-breaking trade. The orders were a little late, but when started, they came so fast as to almost swamp him. He had a splendid stock of roses, carnations, sweet peas and snapdragons. He was also strong on violets. Berger Brothers' report was "a splendid Easter trade." All the standard stocks sold well, particularly cut Easter lilies, carnations and sweet peas. The S. S. Pennock Co. turned over an immense amount of cut flowers, the out-of-town demand being very heavy. The Joseph Heacock Co. could have sold three times as much stock. Callas, calendulas, sweet peas and roses were their quantity items. Charles Meehan Eugene Bernheimer, W. J. Baker, the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co. and the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange, all reported a stronger demand than they could supply.

NOTES.

The weather for the week, was fine with the exception of Friday, which was wet and blustery in the morning, but cleared up at 3 p. m. Saturday was ideal, bright and sunny, and not too warm. Sunday was a day for rain coats and umbrellas, but from a business point, it did not matter, as the trade was all over by that time; in fact, some of the stores closed their doors on Saturday afternoon as they were swamped with orders and had nothing else to sell. Five years ago to a day, Easter Saturday saw the worst blizzard ever experienced so late in the season. It was a great blow to the trade that year.

The Joseph Heacock Co. cut over 90,000 sweet peas for the week. They were high grade and for the most part brought top market prices. They had also a good crop of cattleyas.

EASTER TRADE ALL THAT WAS EXPECTED.

While the Easter trade in the wholesale district was not wonderful, it was up to expectations. Easter always brings a great demand for plants, and necessarily cut flowers get the last call. The week preceding Easter was, up to April 3, an ordinary week for business. As the 3d was an exceptionally fine day, it naturally quickened business in both plants and cut flowers. In the afternoon and evening—the wholesalers all being open at night—as plant stocks began to thin out, the buyers of cut flowers were more numerous. Except in orchids, there was an abundance of stock, with a surplus in some lines. In addition to a great supply of lilies, grown for cutting, a considerable quantity of pot stock was the finish, cut and thrown on the market, creating a surplus. Cut lilies, April 3, sold in some instances as low as 10 and 12 cents, bud and flower, at wholesale. Roses, other than American Beauties, were somewhat higher in price than on preceding days, but reached no extravagant figures. Special American Beauties went to $1.25 and $1.50 each, wholesale rates. There were heavy stocks of carnations and sweet peas. Eight dollars per 100 was about the best for such carnations as Mrs. Ward, but many of the other varieties went at $4 to $6, with a surplus in the evening. Sweet peas went well at $2 to $4 per 100. Good violets brought $2 and $2.50 per 100, but some of the stock that came in was worthless. Some of the best cattleyas of the darker shades, wholesaled at the rate of $2 and $2.50 per flower. There was a heavy stock of gardenias, and while some of the best brought $6 per dozen, more went at $2 to $4. There was a fair movement in good tulips and narcissi, but nothing above an ordinary day. The weather had been so fair and cool that it brught in a great stock, more than could be disposed of, and that was the case in various lines, but all things considered, there was no cause for complaint.

April 5.—There is necessarily some buying this morning to replenish stock, but no great activity. Reports from all over this city, and from neighboring cities and towns, indicate that the Easter business was good. The plant trade was excellent, and the comparatively moderate prices on cut flowers, helped their sale. Good weather was also a feature. Easter Sunday was dark and chilly, with occasional splashes of rain, but the business was then over. A cold rain continues today. American Beauties are now quoted at $75 to $100, and carnations, $6 to $8.

NUMEROUS REMOVALS PLANNED.

There will be several changes in location of retailers, May 1. Charles Thorley, now at Fifth avenue and 46th street, will remove to 604 Fifth avenue, near 49th street. This is the former home of the late Mrs. Russell Sage, which was recently purchased by Mr. Thorley.

The Van Praag Florist Co., now located at 4 West 40th street will, May 1, remove to 49th street, near Fifth avenue.

About the middle of April there will be a number of removals by wholesalers from 28th street to Sixth avenue and 18th street in the Greenhut building, which will be the headquarters of the Wholesale Florists, Inc. Although the majority of the wholesalers are leaving 28th street, several firms will remain.

NOTES.

Hughes & Estabrook, well known commercial photographers, of 251 West 42d street, had an unfortunate accident in their studio on the evening of April 2. A quantity of flashlight powder accidentally ignited, exploded, wrecking the place and seriously burning three of their employes. A number of photographs that have been reproduced in THE AMERICAN FLORIST were made by this firm.

Malandre Brothers had a good stock of plants, their acacias, orchids and azaleas being noteworthy, and their business was good. It was said by a partner in this firm, that some of the plant stock had been forced to excess.

At the Dards store, there was a great stock of plants that began to move early in the week before Easter, and by the evening of April 3, they were sold out. They also had an excellent cut flower trade.

Craig Muir, retailer of 62 West 40th street, has taken a partner, and the business has been incorporated as Craig Muir and Irene Hayes. Miss Hayes is a clever young lady from the great west.

Stephen Masur, of Brooklyn, who sustained a bad fracture of an ankle over a month ago, was able to be about for the Easter trade, and had a fine stock of plants.

The sympathy of the trade will be general for Benjamin Hammond and family, on account of the death of Mrs. Hammond, which occurred April 1.

At the store of David Clarke's Sons, plants began to move early in the week, and there was no complaint about business.

Max Schling, as usual, had an exceptionally fine stock, and was rushed with business, both in plants and cut flowers.

The Broadway Florist, Broadway and 72d street, had fine features in plants, and reported good business.

No better plant stock was anywhere noticed than at the store of G. E. M. Stumpp, and it sold well.

Frank Millang, Jr., has returned to business after two months of illness with pneumonia.

W. R. Nicholson and J. T. Butterworth, of Framingham, Mass., were visitors, April 2.

A. T. Bunyard had a good stock throughout, and reported excellent business.

A. B. Cazan a Broadway retailer, reported a satisfactory business.

American Seed Trade Association.

E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, 216 Prospect Avenue, S. E., Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer.

The thirty-eighth annual meeting will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June 22-24, 1920.

THE price of bags at Chicago, April 7, was $64.

THE slow selling seeds, of which oversupply continues, are onion, beet and carrot.

UTAH-IDAHO beet sugar companies are reported having difficulty in getting out their acreages.

OLLIOULES, FRANCE, April 5.—It is raining here, and the French bulb prospects are now good.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district are $3.00 to $3.50. At Louisville the price is $3.75 to $4.00.

THE winter in Holland has been very mild. Golden Spur narcissus bloomed in February in the open.

S. F. LEONARD, of the S. F. Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, is planning to leave for the Pacific coast this week.

HERMAN REED, of Milwaukee, Wis., is reminded of the old panic days when he sold white clover seed at four cents per pound.

O. L. COULTER, well known in the Pacific coast seed growing districts, is now with J. E. & F. C. Sloan, at Sacramento, Calif.

EMIL HERTZ, of Copenhagen, Denmark, reports seed trade has been slow and depressed, but hopes the turning point has been reached.

SWEET CLOVER is strongly recommended for alkali lands, by E. B. Hitchcock, extension soil specialist of the University of Idaho, at Moscow.

BOARD OF TRADE—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade, May 7, were as follows: Timothy, $10.00 to $12.25 per 100 pounds; red clover, $45.00 to $53.00 per 100 pounds.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Wood, Stubbs & Co. say business so far is 25 per cent ahead of last year, practically everything in small orders, some of which make a great deal of additional work.

VISITED CHICAGO: Thos W. Chisholm representing the Braslan Seed Growers Co., San Jose, Calif.; Louis M. Kimberlin, of the Kimberlin Seed Co., San Jose, Calif.; M. S. Smith, representing Manitowoc Seed Co., Manitowoc, Wis.

VANCOUVER, B. C.—This port expects an increase of at least $25,000,000 in business as a result of the embargo of the United States on the importation of shipments packed in Japanese soil. Seattle bulb buyers are arranging with local dealers to have such stock come here, be repacked in Canadian earth and then reshipped.—H. M.

HAVANA, CUBA.—Alberto R. Langwith, of the long established firm of seedsmen and plantsmen here, Alberto R. Langwith & Co., was killed by a street car, February 16. The firm will continue under the same name. Mr. Langwith, it will be remembered, won the capital prize of $100,000 in the Havana lottery, and spent the years of 1912-1913 touring Europe.

PIRATING help from the neighbors' staff is becoming common in the New York seed trade as well as Chicago.

LESTER L. MORSE, of C. C. Morse & Co., San Francisco, Calif., writing under date of March 30, says: "We have had some late rains which have greatly improved crops, and prospects are brighter than they were a few weeks ago. We have had a very dry season this year; in fact, only two or three have been drier in the writer's lifetime."

COLUMBUS, O.—The leased seed warehouse of the Livingston Seed Co., 61 East Chestnut street, was destroyed by fire April 1. The loss in seeds and other stocks is estimated at $100,000. The firm expects to be able to handle all orders, mail express, etc., from its retail store, 114 North High street, having additional stocks at its farm warehouses.

NEW YORK.—The sudden break from winter to spring weather last week put the seedsmen on their mettle, and some of them have been almost swamped with orders, while counter trade has been active, and in addition, corners in the vicinity of Barclay street and West Broadway, and other localities, have blossomed out with miscellaneous collections of plants.

THE backward weather of February and early March greatly curtailed the seed selling season. A few days toward the end of last month promised better but the widespread and unusually severe blizzard of the first week of April, with increasing transportation difficulties, has discouraged the trade, though many still believe that liberal counter business will come with a rush, if seasonable weather sets in. It is getting late, however, to make up for the losses of the past few weeks.

Cabbage Seed Prospects on Long Island.

MATTITUCK, April 1.—The cabbage trenches are now being opened up and the condition of the stock taken out is very bad. The loss, due to a rather severe winter, has been quite heavy. It is too early to state definitely what acreage will be saved, but J. M. Lupton & Son say the loss certainly will be as much as 50 per cent, and may possibly reach 75 per cent, leaving a very poor percentage for growing the season's crop of cabbage seed.

Potato Conditions.

The commercial crop of 1919 was estimated to be about 15 per cent below that of last season, the shortage being chiefly in the west The movement to date has been nearly as heavy as for the corresponding time last season. The stock reported on hand January 1 in 13 leading shipping states was less than three fourths that of January 1, 1919; thus, the comparative shortage of 15 per cent at the beginning of the season, became a deficit of 25 per cent January 1, as a result of liberal early shipments and loss from freezing and other causes. Accordingly, the quantity remaining must be far less than at the opening of the spring shipping season of last year.

At the beginning of the present spring shipping season, market conditions are also attractive. Prices are two to three times as high as a year ago, while the estimated stock on hand would indicate only about three-fourths as many cars to move during the rest of the season as were shipped in April, May and June last year, still it is possible that continued high prices may draw upon distant supplies and low-grade stock to such an extent that shipping figures will be brought near the total of last season. Shipments from the principal shipping states during January, February and March were about five-sixths those of the corresponding period a year ago, notwithstanding the lighter crop and a much lighter January stock on hand.

The location of the remaining surplus stock is favorable to heavy shipments. Usually, the surplus has been in the far western potato sections, but this season it is largely in states fairly close to the principal consuming markets, and therefore not subject to especially heavy freight charges.

Potatoes have advanced almost continuously since the height of the harvest and shipping season in early October, starting at that time with a range in leading markets of $2.20 to $3.00 per 100 pounds. Steady gains carried the price level to an early high range of $4.45 to $6.00 the last of January. February was a month of recessions, several markets losing 25 to 50 cents and the month closed with a general jobbing level of $4.30 to $5.00 in leading consuming markets. March has shown a recovery of the February losses and further gains were recorded, with a new high range of $5.25 to $6.25 in late March. These quotations include jobbing and carlot prices in consuming markets for No. 1 western, southern and eastern round white stock. Prices of best eastern potatoes have ranged often 25 to 50 cents above similar stock in western markets, but in general, the market was comparatively uniform in the various sections.

Auction Seed.

"One of the best places to get low quality seed, containing many of our most noxious weed seeds, is at an auction sale," says B. F. Sheehan, field agronomist of the University of Idaho. "Samples examined at various sales indicate this to be true. In many instances a farmer's low quality seed could not be gotten rid of otherwise.

"Farmers must remember that it is unlawful for them to offer for sale seed of alfalfa, timothy or the clovers, unless it conforms to the Idaho seed law and is tagged so as to indicate its quality. Farmers are as liable as any dealer, and individuals purchasing seed should remember to get the best from a source known to be reliable."

NOTES.

The flower show held by the florists' club on the night of March 25, was remarkable for the beautiful display of Easter stock shown by the growers. Henkes Brothers contributed three vases of carnations, mostly White and Pink Enchantress; William Hannell displayed rambler roses and white and pink spiræas; William Maver, gardener for Henry M. Sage, staged gardenias; George E. Nagengast, Jr., hydrangeas; Frederick A. Danker, roses, and James Snyder, Rhinebeck, violets. F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, sent a vase of 50 blooms of his new carnation, Hope Henshaw, a pink variety that attracted favorable comment. Several of the retailers contributed bouquets and corsages. After the show, the exhibits were auctioned off to the retailers present. F. A. Danker bought the vase of Hope Henshaw for $12. The sale brought $223.50.

Fine weather during Easter week worked to the advantage of the florists. On Palm Sunday, invitations were extended by two of the retailers, Frederick A. Danker and George E. Nagengast, Jr., to the public, to visit their greenhouses. The result was a remarkable response. It is estimated that over 2,000 people in the afternoon passed through Mr. Danker's greenhouses. Not so many visited the Nagengast houses, but, nevertheless, the number was considerable. This is the first year that Mr. Nagengast extended an invitation to the public to visit his range. Two of the houses are new, having been finished last fall.

Under a plan of co-operation agreed upon between the New York State College of Agriculture, Cornell University, Ithaca, and some growers in Columbia county, the state college will establish at Kinderhook, this season, a field laboratory. It will be in charge of an expert, who will devote his time next summer to help the growers to solve their problems. The growers will provide a salary, maintenance, and an automobile for the expert, who will make investigations of insect pests and plant diseases. The plan has been tried out in a number of sections of the state since 1909, and is reported to have proved satisfactory.

Charles S. Wilson, state commissioner of agriculture, has extended his quarantine order of last year against the European corn borer to include 10 counties in the state. In this matter, the commissioner is co-operating with the federal authorities, who have prohibited the exportation from the quarantined districts of corn, broom corn, celery, green beans in pod, beets with tops, spinach, shrubbery, oat and rye straw, chrysanthemums, asters, cosmos, hollyhock, gladioli and dahlias.

Philip Bender, city superintendent of parks, has announced the resumption of the municipal programme of tree planting, which was interrupted by the world war. The park department is planning to set out shortly 3,000 trees along new thoroughfares.

Frederick A. Danker has added to his nursery equipment, a 1½-ton Packard truck. During the winter, he had an expert thoroughly overhaul his two delivery automobiles used at the retail store, and they are in fine condition.

BEST EASTER IN MANY YEARS.

Easter trade this year was exceptionally good. Stock sold almost on sight, with everything offered having a heavy call. Violets were in somewhat limited supply, and of poor quality, but they moved freely. Corsages of sweet peas were very popular and a sufficient supply of these flowers to meet requirements could not be obtained. Plants enjoyed an excellent sale, the offerings including daffodils, bougainvilleas, rambler roses, tulips, spiræas, hyacinths, primulas, cinerarias, deutzias, azaleas and rhododendrons. Ferns, Ficus elastica and palms also found buyers. As a whole, stock sold exceptionally well with volume of business better than in any previous year, from present indications.

WEEK BEFORE EASTER IS DULL.

With few social functions and trade being held back for Easter the demand of the past week has been quiet. Stock of all kinds is plentiful with the exception of plants affected by the embargo, and due to the cool weather it has been easy to hold back tulips, daffodils and all bulbous stock for Easter. Carnations are excellent and continue to bring fancy prices. Violets have also maintained good quality, favored by the cool weather. Roses of all kinds are very fine and lily of the valley is good and the supply plentiful. Cattleyas are numerous but do not have much call.

NOTES.

Representatives of horticultural interests are making strong protest against a bill introduced in the legislature calling for an appropriation of $600,000 for another cattle building on the state fair grounds. Steps are being taken to secure a suitable horticultural building and $500,000 will be asked for that purpose.

H. E. Wilson is well supplied with a fine lot of Harrisii lilies. Mrs. Arvilla Smith, of this establishment, has resumed her duties after an absence of two months.

Salter Bros. have been featuring attractive window displays of bulbous plants and pussy willow trees in full bloom.

C. W. Curtis, of Irondequoit, is cutting excellent stock, included in which are some very fine cattleyas and genistas.

Horace J. Head is making plans for a trip to England, sailing the latter part of May for a visit with his parents.

The Easter display of Geo. T. Boucher is one of the finest in the western part of the state.

Mrs. George T. Boucher is convalescing after a severe illness.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Sweet Peas.

A sowing of sweet peas made in pots late in March which can be transplanted outside as soon as all danger from late frosts is passed, will give a crop of these flowers two or three weeks earlier than the seed sown in the ground. There is generally a time in late June and early July that the sweet peas in the greenhouses come very poor, owing to the excessive heat under glass and the infection of red spider, and the early sowings outside are not yet in flower. Five or six seeds sown in a 3-inch pot and these placed on the sill or window ledge or on a hanging shelf will make nice stock for planting out after the middle of April and the advantage of those started in the greenhouses over the ones sown in the cold ground will be quickly be seen upon trial. They can be grown so that they will take but little valuable room under glass and the extra expense of this and the labor in transplanting them, will be more than recompensed by having fine flowers at at time when most of the stock is in poor condition. The plants that are growing inside will require considerable attention as the sun increases in power; the growth is very rapid and the vines must be kept erect or crooked flower stems will be the result. They should be gone over every day, and where the growing shoots are getting away frm the supports they should be fastened to them.

Lilium Lancifolium.

Among the best flowers for greenhouse culture during the summer months is the Lilium lancifolium, of varieties rubrum, roseum album and Melpomene. While these varieties can all be grown outside, yet under those conditions they rarely give perfect flowers and they also tarnish quickly in the direct rays of the sun or under heavy rains, and to have flowers that can be used for decorative work or designs it is far better to grow them under glass. Those that are to bloom in July should have been started in March, but for August blooming they can be planted now. One of the easiest ways to grow these bulbs is to plant them in boxes from four to six inches deep, not too large, but of a size that one man can handle when filled with soil. Do not fill the boxes too full when planting the bulbs, for like all lilies they throw out roots at the surface, so it is well to leave room for top dressing later. Grow them in a cool, shady location and after the spikes begin to grow, give them plenty of water and keep them tied erect to stakes. Constant fumigation will be necessary to keep the green fly in check. This is in no way forcing these bulbs, and if properly dried off after blooming the bulbs may be grown year after year and a good crop of flowers obtained.

Freesias.

Although the freesias are a cheap bulb they should not be thrown away, for it takes but little attention to ripen them off after they are through blooming and as good bulbs can be procured as those that are purchased. The freesia is a native of southern Africa, so they are blooming at the natural season when flowered in midwinter in the north. But the bulbs must be allowed to mature their growth and then dried off gradually. The pots or boxes in which they are grown can then be placed in full sunlight and allowed to become very dry. A shelf near the glass makes an admirable place on which to place them after the growth has finished, and no more watering is required, but they must not stand where any drip from the roof on a stormy day is liable to keep them moist. They can be shaken out in June and the bulbs started, as it is comparatively easy to select the flowering bulbs and store in a dry place until wanted for planting. For Christmas blooming the bulbs should be started early in July and a succession of plantings until September will give the grower flowers until the following spring.

Hydrangeas.

There are very few plants that are generally grown that show more variance in their culture or in the returns to the grower than the hydrangeas, especially those that are grown for summer blooming. In looking over the stocks in the several markets one will often see the extremes of these plants grown in the same sized pot; one with eight to 10 heads of bloom, short and stocky, with fine foliage, an ornament on any porch or in any yard; and the other tall and long jointed, with two or three heads of bloom and five or six branches with no flowers and the foliage thin and small, the former bringing the grower $3.00 to $3.50 and the latter hardly averaging $1.50. Yet these two plants have practically cost the grower the same amount of labor. These plants grow rapidly and must have plenty of room, an abundance of sun and lots of nourishment. It is useless to try to grow a good plant when they are crowded together. Many growers finish these plants by raising the pots over the benches of bedding plants that do not now require the full amount of sun, placing the hydrangeas about four feet apart in the center of the bench and standing the pot on a stand two feet above the other plants. This gives the hydrangeas a fine location. When the plants have set their buds, the pots will probably be full of roots and a watering of liquid manure once or twice a week will greatly assist them in finishing up the flower and keep the foliage in good color. To grow good hydrangeas they must have plenty of food, room enough to grow shapely and for the air to circulate all around the plant and a light, well ventilated location. Under these conditions they are easily grown and are remunerative to the grower.

Bedding Plants.

The general florist will now have his hands full with bedding stock, which should now be spread out and given the necessary room. The geraniums should be spaced, and if any have grown too tall to make shapely plants the tops should be cut back, but at the present day the trade wants a geranium in bloom at bedding time, and very little pinching should be done after the first of April, for it will take from then until the first of June to produce a new branch with a flower. Ageratums, alternantheras, alyssums, heliotropes and like blooming plants should be kept on the move and be given good light positions. Salvia should be kept pinched back until the latter part of the month, which should produce fine, shapely plants. The coleus should be rooted and the top rubbed out as soon as established in the pots. Seedlings should be potted or flatted, the former preferred if a price can be obtained commensurate for the extra labor, but if flatted give them room enough to develop properly. Cannas will now require a warm, light location and plenty of root room. The one great factor in growing good bedding stock is, at this season, to keep the plants moving and never allow them to get a check, for if once severely checked, a good plant is an impossibility.

Gypsophila Paniculata.

There are few summer flowers that are of more use to the florist having a local trade than the gypsophila, for it lightens up work beautifully and greatly aids in softening the appearance of the summer flowers, many of which have a course look in floral work, and in bouquets, sprays and basket work the sprays are particularly useful. The grower not possessing a good bed of this should procure stock at once and plant them in a good, sunny position, and after once becoming established they require no further attention than to keep the bed free from weeds and occasionally cultivated. Seed can be now sown and as soon as large enough transplanted in rows outside, where they can remain until another spring, when they can be again transplanted to permanent quarters, but to have plants that will bloom this year it will be necessary to procure older stock. The double form of this plant is even more beautiful than the single for some purposes, and its lasting qualities make it more valuable for a cut flower than the older variety.

Peonies.

As soon as the frost is out of the ground the poeny beds should be forked over and the manure mulch that was placed on them last fall should be forked or spaded in, but let this be done by a careful man, or at least not by help that knows nothing about this work. The young growths start very early and are very tender, so it is best not to fork too close to the crowns, but loosen up all the soil around the plants. It is also well to leave the stems covered as deep as they have been all winter, for a sharp frost may injure a stem that has been protected through the severe winter and then subjected to sharp cold. But the loosening of the soil to good depth will conserve the moisture and allow the air to get into the soil. If the plants were not mulched with manure in the fall, it is well to spread some old manure, not fresh, on the beds before spading and fork it in. Although the fall is the best time to transplant peonies, yet if not done and it is desired or necessary to move them, they can be transplanted early in the spring, but this must be done before the growths are above the surface of the ground and as much soil left about the roots as possible. These plants make their young roots in the fall, and if any attempt is made to shake the soil off, the roots will be broken doing this. Divisions must therefore be carefully made ,so as to disturb the roots as little as possible. The dry roots that are purchased at this time are much better planted in pots or boxes until the roots are formed in the soil and later transplanted to the ground. It cannot be expected that plants of this kind will produce any flowers this year, for it will only be possible to get them established in their new location the first season.

Camellias.

While it is a question if the camellia will ever become as popular as it was years ago, yet there seems to be a growing demand for the blooms of the "Japonica" as it was so familiarly known to the grandparents of the present generation, and the flowers are well adapted to certain classes of work or occasions. A few dwarf plants are now also seen in flower in some of the stores. They are easily grown, the prime requisite being a cool house, one with a night temperature of 45° to 50°, and the constant care throughout the year that all hard-wooded plants require. The large specimens which are grown for cut blooms may be planted in the ground of the house, first spading in a quantity of leaf-mold and rotted cow manure. The small plants are generally grown in pots, firmly planted in the same kind of soil, with plenty of drainage. They do not require repotting often, and when done, the shift should be to only to one size larger, and this should be made just after the plant is through flowering, for it then starts to make its growth for another season. When the growth starts, the plants should be given plenty of water and frequently syringed; in fact, careful watering is the one thing necessary in their culture. They should never become dry, and during the hot days of summer, frequent syringings are required, which also greatly assists in keeping down mealy bug and scale, the only two insects to which the plant is subject. The cause of the buds dropping, which will sometimes occur, can invariably be traced to the plant becoming dry sometime during its growth. During the summer, heavy shade over the plants will be required, and an abundance of air should be provided at this time.

Potting Young Stock.

At this season of the year the plant grower will have thousands of young seedlings to pot or place in flats and as many more to shift from a small pot to a larger size, and it does not seem that any instruction in potting should be necessary, but we chanced not long ago to see a boy potting and wondered if the plants would live and we then saw in the houses many of the plants which had been potted struggling for existence. It seems to be the general idea with the young gardener that the one that can pot the most plants in a given time is the smartest, regardless of how well it is done and how the plants afterward grow. The young man whom we saw would fill the pot full and then make a hole in the soil with his finger, place the seedling in the hole and then press the top soil around the stem. The chances were that the roots of many of these plants were still hanging in an enclosed hole in the center of the pot, for the soil should have been firmed around the roots. That he could handle a large number of plants in a given time was no question, but a much better plant can be grown if the soil is made firm around the roots first and then the top firmed down. The same thing happens in transplanting where the loose soil is thrown around between the plant and the pot and the top then firmed down. A little soil should be first thrown in the bottom of the pot, and the plant placed in this, then a little soil around the plant, which should be firmed down, then a little more soil, which can be pressed down from the top. This will take longer, but the plant will live and grow enough better to pay for the extra pains.

Celosia Plumosa.

The plants of Celosia plumosa or the ostrich plume celosia are of very easy culture and make very showy plants for either the garden or the greenhouse. They form pyramidal bushes and the yellow and red plumes which resemble ostrich feathers stand gracefully above the foliage. While they make showy plants for the garden, finer specimens are grown under glass, and they make very showy plants in the late summer and fall. Seed sown in April will make fine plants for culture during the summer, but like all the celosias the young seedlings damp off easily. As soon as large enough, they should be potted in good light soil in 2½-inch pots and later shifted to 4-inch to grow large plants to 6-inch pots. They should be grown in a good, strong light, for if shaded the plants will become drawn and the dwarf, compact plants are more desirable. C. plumosa aurea, the orange ostrich plume, and C. plumosa coccinea, the crimson ostrich plume, are the two best of the older varieties, and Pride of Castle Gould, a new introduction of the last few years, is the best of all the ostrich plume varieties and can be obtained in many colors.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

April and May are months that always show good returns; there is considerable going on in the way of weddings and other social affairs that create a steady demand for cut flowers. This, together with the call for window and porch boxes and plants for the flower beds, that are an important part of the business, particularly of the grower-retailer, keeps everybody busy.

Flowers of all kinds are now plentiful, and it is a good time to quicken the sales with specials of one sort or another. Feature a window of boxes of cut flowers, marked, "Special at $1.50," with three or four filled, arranged in good color effect, with a few pansies on the top. A number of the same size, empty, help to fill the window; some of them tied, tagged as for delivery, and decorated with a few flowers and a sprig of green on the top of the box, will give the impression that they are also full. Such a window can be made very attractive.

Another good display is small vase baskets, filled with all one kind of flower—calendulas, sweet peas, or short roses. These can also be sold at $1.50, and should be marked, "Special." Arranged in varied positions or heights on the bottom of the window, and suspended in shower effect from the ceiling, they will make a good showing. To make the sales worth while, and get the most publicity for the business, they should be planned for at least a week ahead. A special post card or leaflet, calling attention to these specials, that can be mailed for postage of $40 a thousand, should be sent to all customers on the store's list, and another of prospects. Such special sales can be made at least once a week at this season, and aside from the profit, are a splendid medium of publicity, giving evidence that the store is wide-a wake, where flowers can be purchased at a moderate price, which will be welcome news to many after the experience of the past winter.

While a little early, the store front boxes should be filled with geraniums, marguerites and vincas. Every point of vantage for this sort of decoration, from the pavement to the roof, should be taken advantage of. It makes the store the most attractive in the block, sure to be noticed by the throngs on the street, in the passing car, and in addition, calls to attention of many, that the time has come to have their window boxes filled so they can enjoy them before they go away for the summer.

The pavement box, close up to, and below the show window, is a good decorative point that could be used to advantage by many in the trade who do not consider it worth while. If not shaded by an awning, and given ordinary care, geraniums and marguerites will do well. Even when planted with ferns, kept dusted, and given a bath from the hose occasionally, they will be found quite decorative.

Birthday and other anniversary occasions must not be overlooked. Those who keep this feature to the front, and from their records constantly added to, follow it up, find in these recurring events a profitable and increasing source of revenue.

A good and inexpensive form of advertising is a series of leaflets containing seasonable matter on the plants and cut flowers in the market, and other information in relation to their care. Subjects for others are spring weddings, commencements, Mothers' day and Memorial day, window and porch boxes, etc. One or more of these should accompany all letters or bills, sent out, and also included in every box or package. Such communications are sure to be read and appreciated, and emphasize the importance of the store.

Mothers' day comes again, Sunday, May 9, less than a month away. The trade in each community could do a great deal in pushing the propaganda of this event by getting up a small fund to have capable newspaper writers prepare articles for the reading columns, emphasizing the importance of this beautiful custom, which should be universal the world over. They could also interest pastors of churches to make that occasion a day of social service. The mayors of cities are generally glad to co-operate in sending out a proclamation for that day. A co-operative ad is also productive of good results, having been tried out in a number of cities with wonderful and immediate returns. This is to be supported in each store by decorations featuring the day, and with literature sent by mail to the store's list of customers and others. In just the degree men believe in Mother's day and push it, will be their measure of success. The matter of most importance is that the trade in each community get together at once, and by concerted action, start an impetus that will result in greatly exceeding their expectatiaons.

Display a basket of fruit and flowers as one of the window features occasionally. It will attract attention and favorable comment. Mark it, "Cheer for the sick room." It will help to make business.

The gilt frame, in which can be shown a vase or basket of flowers, is always a good window piece or for selected positions in the store. Illuminated at night after the store is closed, it is very attractive to late pedestrians.

As the records show a phenomenal Easter business all over the country, is it not fair to attribute some of this buying impulse to the good work of the national publicity committee? It was certainly a grand wind-up to the winter's business. Their Mothers' day ad in the magazines is very effectcive, both in illustration and text. All local committees should tie up to this by using the electros in their newspaper work. Send in your check today to help this good cause along.

Memorial Day in Britain.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

The following is a copy of a letter received from Glasgow, Scotland. We ask you to give space to it so that all retail florists in the United States and Canada may know that any orders received for this occasion will be properly taken care of and executed accordingly.

William Leighton is a live wire florist, and I feel sure he is entitled to be encouraged in his desire to perpetuate Memorial day in behalf of the boys who gave up their lives.

ALBERT POCHELON, Sec'y.
Florists' Telegraph Delivery Ass'n.

Glasgow, Scotland.

Mr. A. Pochelon,
Detroit, Mich.

Dear Sir:

Last year I was favored by the American Red Cross Society, in London, with an order for laurel wreaths for the graves of the American soldiers and sailors, who perished on the Island of Islay by the wrecking of two steamers. If it were known to the members of your association, that I am in a position to execute orders for Memorial day here, it might be an inducement for them to receive orders which I would be pleased to execute.

Had time permitted, I would have circularized all the members of the F. T. D., but we are at the present moment over head and ears in our spring seed trade, which occupies the whole of our staff, I thought that I would mention it to you, for if you can make it known, it might be to our mutual advantage.

With all good wishes and kindest regards, Yours faithfully,

WM. LEIGHTON.

THE CLEVELAND CONVENTION.

It has been definitely settled that the annual convention and trade exhibition of the society, August 17-19, shall be held in the Ninth Garage, St. Clair avenue and East Sixth street, Cleveland, Ohio.

The building is of fireproof, reinforced concrete and steel construction, equipped with a modern sprinkler system. An entire floor of the immense building has been leased, which allows of about 20,000 square feet of space being available for the trade exhibition. The sessions of the convention will be held on the same floor, in quarters partitioned off from the rest of the floor, but light and cheerful, and having entry from the exhibition floor. There is every convenience for a gathering of this kind, and the convention and exhibition will be most comfortably housed.

The location of the Ninth Garage is immediately adjacent to the very heart of the downtown business, shopping, financial, office and amusement district of Cleveland. It is just across the street from the new $3,000,000 convention hall. It is one block from the city hall, two blocks from the post office, three blocks from the public square, two blocks from Euclid avenue, and one block from the Hollenden hotel. The transportation lines of the city, railroads, interurban and street cars, center in and around the public square. Visitors journeying to the convention in their automobiles, can store their cars in the convention building.

Plans of the trade exhibition floor, showing the different blocks of space available for exhibits, will be issued about the middle of April, and the secretary will be pleased to mail one, with regulations governing exhibits, and blank forms of contracts, to anybody making request for same. The rate for space is 60 cents (sixty cents) per square foot. The selling of merchandise by persons or firms not having engaged space, will not be allowed, unless such person or firm shall have secured a permit or license from the secretary, the fee for which is $20. The exhibition classes will be as follows: Plants, cut blooms, boilers and heating apparatus, greenhouse structures, florists' supplies, including fancy pottery; bulbs, seeds, and garden requisites; miscellaneous. Judges of trade exhibits will be appointed by President Miller in advance of the convention, who will examine all exhibits, and make detailed reports on them in the afternoon of the opening day. Exhibitors showing novelties, or improved devices which they wish to have examined by the judges for special notice, or award, are required to make an itemized entry of them in advance. For exhibits deemed worthy, diplomas in three grades are granted, as follows: Certificate of merit, honorable mention, highly commended. The judges also are authorized to recommend to the executive board, any exhibits they deem worthy for award of the society's medals. Such exhibits must be of unusual merit, but the judges' action will not be made public until passed upon by the board. Diplomas of equal value may be awarded to several exhibits in the same class. No award will be made to exhibitors who are not members of the society, or to firms or corporations not represented through personal membership of partner or officer; and no exhibitor will be allowed to exhibit any other goods than those sold in the regular course of business by such exhibitor, without the permission of the secretary.

The committee in charge of the programme for the convention is now giving attention to this important matter, and the prospects are that this programme will excel in interest all previous convention programmes. There will be no souvenir programme this year, the executive board having disapproved of such publications.

National Publicity for Flowers.

We could hardly start our column this week with a more cheering announcement than the following from the Dutch Bulb Growers' Association, Holland:

"A. L. Miller,

"The Dutch Bulb Growers' Association of Holland has admired your efforts to 'Say It With Flowers,' and as the Holland bulbs are part of the flowers with which to say it, we believe that we should show our sympathy with your ideas, and therefore enclose check for $1,000 for the national publicity campaign fund as a donation to this worthy cause."

Our Holland friends evidently appreciate to the full the efforts that we are making to promote increased sales of flowers, realizing that success in this direction means better business for them. We are also pleased to announce the receipt of a cheque for $400 from Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, completing their subscription of $500 for this year.

Greater publicity than ever is being given to the Von Tilzer song, "Say It With Flowers," through its adoption for reproduction as a phonograph record by the Columbia Graphophone Company. The record appears in the Columbia list for mid-April, and is now on sale in every city and town in the United States and Canada, and will soon be available throughout the civilized world. This publicity costs us absolutely nothing; in fact, we are to receive a royalty on every score copy sold. The exploitation of this song has certainly proved a triumph for the publicity committee.

The May magazines which are to carry the Mothers' day advertisements, will be on sale in a few days, and some of the big weeklies will carry the same advertisements about one week before the big event. Any florist who has not received a pamphlet describing the "helps" provided for securing Mothers' day business, should write for one immediately, addressing the request to "The Florists' Publicity Service Bureau of the S. A. F., 431 South Dearborn Street, Chicago." These helps include poster stamps, posters, folders, electro-types and lantern slides, all calculated to produce local publicity, and to link up with the campaign advertising.

The campaign is swinging along to the full extent of the funds available. What a tremendous advantage we are missing through being obliged to adopt a parsimonious course. Was ever a good movement so hampered as ours through downright niggardliness on the part of most of those whom it was promoted to assist? Instead of a drive for subscriptions, we should be driven in the acceptance of them. There has been a very unreasonable amount of the "let George do it" spirit shown so far in the campaign. To think that 20,000 or more florists in this prosperous country cannot raise $100,000 to promote benefit for themselves worth many millions of dollars, is to think wrong. It is more than possible to raise this amount, if those it is to benefit will only think the right way. What is an average contribution of $5 apiece, in comparison with the resulting good—and, surely, none can dispute the fact that the campaign has resulted to our great benefit?

Mr. Non-subscriber, please do not block the best game ever played in the interest of the florists' industry by withholding further your support. You owe it to yourself. You owe it to that little band of generous brother florists who have personified "George" up to this time. Think of your Holland friends. Do not be an outlaw. Show us, through your cheque, that you do not intend to be. JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

McCallum Float in Porto Rican Carnival

The accompanying illustration shows part of the beautiful large float entered in the Porto Rican carnival parade by the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., and which was awarded a cash prize of $200, the carnival being a yearly event of great importance, participated in by the leading business and financial men of the West Indies. As previously announced in these columns, the McCallum Co. has opened a branch house in Porto Rico, with Juan De Chaudons as representative in that territory. Mr. De Chaudons is seen standing beside the float, the young ladies riding on which are all students of the University of Porto Rico.

EASTER TRADE.

Great Demand Sets New High Mark.

As indicated from reports from all sections of the country, the 1920 Easter demand, as stated in last week's issue, passed all previous high marks in point of volume, and in practically every instance, the price trend showed a gratifying increase in keeping with greater cost of production and selling. With probably 35 per cent as a fair average of the gain in volume of business, it is hard to estimate to what extent this was curtailed by the severe blizzard which swept the middle-west on Saturday and Easter Sunday, cutting off the usual late buying, in some cases no small item. Both plants and cut flowers were in good supply and of high quality, reports from many cities bringing only two complaints of "pickling." As will be seen from the following condensed reports, the volume of business, and the conditions contributing to it, were generally most satisfactory.

TERRE HAUTE, IND.—With prices about the same as last year, with the exception of lilies, which were advanced, cash sales during the Easter period were about the same as in 1919, although the credit business showed an increase. The plant supply, while large, was far short of requirements, hyacinths taking first place followed by lilies. Cut flowers were available in ample quantities, with sweet peas the best sellers. Roses came next, and there was little call for carnations, as reported by N. B. & C. E. Stover. From all indications, the popularity of cut Easter lilies is on the wane, purchasers offering decided objections to paying for buds. On the whole, the business was better than last year.

DALLAS, TEX.—The Lang Floral & Nursery Co. had a 50 per cent better Easter business than a year ago, with prices higher on lilies only, and had the force been able to handle the crowd of buyers, a greater volume of sales would have resulted. Florist Telegraph Delivery orders were so numerous that a separate store and staff could have been used to advantage, but the business, large as it was, was handled most efficiently. A large supply of plants was offered, with thousands of Easter lilies and hydrangeas, and everything attractively arranged went out rapidly. All offerings in cut flowers found ready buyers.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—With prices maintained at about last year's level, Samuel Murray's Easter business showed an increase of more than 28 per cent. Both plants and cut flowers were in good supply and of quality that left no room for criticism. Lilies took the lead although all plants were quickly moved. There was a light call for roses, the brisk buying being in spring flowers. Florists' Telegraph Delivery orders at this establishment were four times greater than in 1919. All in all, results were most satisfactory, despite the handicap of the worst blizzard of the season.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—C. W. Eichling reports a 40 per cent gain in Easter business compared with last year, prices being more satisfactory and a plant supply about equalling the demand. Cut flowers were a disappointment, there being much "pickled" stock in evidence and roses and lilies shipped in from other markets had to be thrown away. There was no call for foliage plants and ferns, but, anything in flower found a buyer, lilies, of course, taking preference. It is evident that Easter in this part of the country is fast becoming as important a flower day as Christmas.

FREDERICKTON, N. B.—John Bebbington & Son, while handicapped with a shortage of Easter lilies and daffodils, and with prices somewhat higher than prevailed at Christmas, closed the Easter period with a volume of business 200 per cent better than a year ago. The cut flower supply secured from the Boston market was ample for all needs, with the best call for carnations, roses, tulips and daffodils, violets coming next. The weather was favorable and several large funeral orders during the week added to the generous total. Cut flower sales were the best in five years.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—Easter sales during the 1920 period were more numerous with a 35 per cent increase in volume at prices much better than a year ago, according to Mrs. Mary C. Dorris. In pot plants, there were supplies of lilies, hyacinths, etc., sufficient to meet requirements, with cut flowers enough for all needs. Lilies, roses and carnations were the best sellers, with jonquils inclined to lag. The call for corsages was phenomenal, prices ranging from $5 to $10. All in all, it was a wonderful business, with a good cleanup in all lines.

BUFFALO, N. Y. — With an ample supply of good plant stock and sweet peas the only short item in the cut flower list, S. A. Anderson reports 1920 Easter business 15 per cent better than last year with prices showing an advance of about one-fourth. All well grown flowering plants met with ready sales. Carnations were in light demand, with brisk sales of corsages, lilies and roses. The effect of national publicity for flowers is being noticed, out-going telegraph orders being 10 per cent more numerous than last year.

BRISTOL, TENN.—Fairmount Gardens Florists report 1920 Easter trade far ahead of last year at much better prices than prevailed at that time. The quality of everything offered was fine, and plants, cut flowers and basket arrangements sold readily and at better returns than ever before. Roses and corsage bouquets were prominent features in the demand. Trade in general during the past three months has been good and the market has been well cleaned up at all times.

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO.—With prices ranging from 20 to 25 per cent higher than a year ago the volume of 1920 Easter business showed a proportionate increase, as reported by the Pikes Peak Floral Co. With the exception of lilies, the plant supply was adequate and in cut flowers, there was a shortage of roses, sweet peas, violets and pansies. Everything in the plant line moved well. With carnations the least salable; other offerings were in strong demand.

MOBILE, ALA.—The Minge Floral Co. reports Easter trade for 1920 showed a 15 per cent increase over last year with prices somewhat higher. The cut flower supply was not equal to requirements and pot Easter lilies were also short of the demand. They easily led in popularity. Every cut flower in the store was sold out early. There was no Easter day business, as all stores are required to close by city ordinance.

OMAHA, NEB.—Hess & Swoboda report a 10 per cent increase in the volume of Easter business as compared with a year ago, although there was no advance in prices. With the exception of lilies, the plant supply was sufficient to care for all orders, with good sales of most offerings. An ample supply of cut stock moved well, especially spring flowers. Cold weather and a blizzard hurt business to some extent.

WICHITA, KAN.—With prices somewhat better than last year, Chas. P. Mueller had an increase in volume of business this year, with a large gain in F. T. D. orders, both incoming and outgoing. There was an ample supply of cut flowers, with sweet peas, roses and carnations in the lead in sales. Plants were in supply nearly equal to requirements, with the heavy call for lilies, bulbous stock and hydrangeas.

DES MOINES, IA.—Easter business for Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the establishment of the J. S. Wilson Floral Co. went 55 per cent above the 1919 record with prices showing practically no advance over that period. The cut flower stock was ample with carnations in oversupply. In pot plants, lilies took the lead, and with hyacinths, hydrangeas, daffodils and tulips, cleaned up nicely.

DETROIT, MICH.—John Breitmeyer's Sons had 40 per cent better Easter trade than last year, with prices higher on all items. Plants were in good supply and the same was true of cut stock with the exception of bulbous flowers. Lilies were the favorites, with a strong call for hydrangeas and roses. Cut lilies and spring flowers led in their class. Baskets of flowering stock met with an average sale.

BOSTON, MASS.—Easter sales this year were about 25 per cent better than in 1919 according to Phillip L. Carbone, with plant prices somewhat higher and cut flowers offered somewhat lower than a year ago. Pot lilies, bulbous stock, roses and hydrangeas were the favorities with few calls for genistas and azaleas. Violets, sweet peas and gardenias were in short supply and all cut stock sold out well.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—With prices better than last year, the volume of this year's Easter trade at the establishment of Gustav Bartholome showed a 50 to 75 per cent increase, compared with that of 1919. Plants were plentiful with a strong demand for roses and hydrangeas, while in the cut flower section, sweet peas and violets were not in large enough supply to meet the call.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—J. B. Keller Sons report Easter business 50 per cent better than a year ago, with no appreciable increase in prices. Both plants and cut flowers were in good supply. Any well grown plant met with ready sale. Sweet peas and roses had a brisk call, with carnations lacking in favor.

BALTIMORE, MD.—With an ample supply, both in plants and cut flowers, and prices no higher than a year ago, Samuel Feast & Sons recorded Easter sales of 20 per cent greater volume than in 1919. Sales in practically all seasonable items were brisk.

Pittsburgh, Pa.

WONDERFUL PLANT EASTER.

It seemed impossible this year to exceed last Easter's sales, but nevertheless it was accomplished by at least one-third, and still, in some ways it was a disappointment, in the fact that some of the stock had been held too long by some of the growers, in particular, roses, sweet peas and carnations, and that there were too many lilies at the last minute that had to be sacrificed in order not to lose them. The weather was perfect, which helped the retailers in making deliveries. Never in the history of the business, were so many plants handled and what is more, they were all sold at a good price. American Beauties were in short supply, and many more could have been sold, had it been possible to secure them. Premier and Columbia, with a few exceptions, were of good quality, and were all sold on advance orders. Most of the carnations were fairly good, but some showed the effects of the warm weather previous to Easter. Lilies were in big supply; too many to be properly handled, and disposed of at a good price. Sweet peas were a disappointment, both in number and quality. Violets were also on the short side. Lily of the valley and orchids cleaned up nicely. Calendulas, mignonette, myosotis and baby primroses moved slowly, and there was a large number of these left at the finish. Summing it all up, it was a very satisfactory Easter and will be one long to be remembered. There is still a surplus of Easter lilies and callas, and it looks as though it would continue for some time. The quality of stock is better, due to the cooler weather of the past week.

NOTES.

The regular meeting of the florists' and gardeners' club was held in the North Side Carnegie Library, April 6. Due to the fact that it was so close to Easter, and bad weather, there were not many in attendance. "Seasonable Flowers and Plants" was the subject, while the members who attended the New York show, described the same to those who had been unable to be there. Several new members were taken into the club.

Wm. Turner, of Wilkinsburg, Pa., had the misfortune to lose the services of two of his best men, who have left him to open up stores of their own. Mr. Richards has opened up in Wilkinsburg, under the name of the Wilkinsburg Flower Shop, while Mr. Shackelford has taken over the store of the Frederick Floral Co., East Pittsburgh, Pa.

George C. McCallum and Homer Wood, of the McCallum Company, are spending the week visiting the branch stores in Cleveland, Detroit and Cincinnati. C. C. Phillips, in charge of displaymen's supplies department, spent the week in Chicago and Cleveland ordering special machinery for his department.

The A. W. Smith Flower Stores Co. reports more plants sold than ever before, with their cut flower sales running away ahead of last year. With the coming of warm weather, their large force will be kept busy with landscape work.

Mrs. E. A. Williams displayed some of the finest combination plant arrangements ever seen here, but they did not last long, as they were usually sold as fast as they could bring them from the greenhouses.

Jos. Feinberg, owner of the Pitt Floral Company, is in the Passavant hospital, having undergone an operation, the second in the last three months.

Randolph & McClements report no letup, as they have been kept busy with after-Easter decorations for balls and parties.

G. P. Weaklin, The Alpha Floral Co., Zieger Co., and Miss Maxwell, all report the largest Easter sales in their history.

HEAVY EASTER DEMAND.

Easter trade was all that could be wished for. There was an abundance of seasonable stock, the weather was delightful, and the public were eager buyers. Every store, no matter how small, made lavish displays of giganteums, both cut and pot grown. Cut lilies wholesaled from $6.00 to $12.00 per dozen stems. Pot stocks averaged about $18.00 per dozen. Nearly all the stores cleaned up completely. Rambler roses, in variety, shared the public favor with lilies. There was a very heavy supply and nearly all stock that was not too forward, sold well. The demand, as usual, ran to medium priced plants, retailing at from $7.50 to $10.00 each. Ericas were featured largely, and quite a few varieties were offered, but melanthera was easily the favorite. Rhododendrons were another popular item and quite a few azaleas, principally Hinodigiri, were noted. This stock sold out completely. There was a heavy supply of nearly all varieties of roses, with the exception of Russell and American Beauty. Ophelia, Columbia, Hadley, Shawyer, Aaron Ward and Cecile Brunner arrived in large quantities and sold at very reasonable prices. Carnations were very plentiful, the best bringing $2.00 per 100. The quality offered by the carnation growers was very poor, which accounts in a large measure for the low prices received. Laddie, when obtainable, brought from $8 to $12. The first herbaceous peonies received this season arrived Easter week. The stock was very fine and they wholesaled at $3.00 per dozen. Violets were plentiful and cheap. Sweet peas were in great demand. All outdoor stock sold quickly at $1.75 per dozen bunches, wholesale. Cattleyas were scarce and retailed at $2 each. Lilac from outdoors sold well. Fruit blossoms entered largely into all the decorative and basket work.

NOTES.

Podesta & Baldocchi have purchased a fine pair of Italian cypress about 12 feet high, and have placed them in front of the entrance to their store on Grant avenue. This firm did a wonderful Easter business, disposing of great quantities of high grade pot plants.

Carlo Matraia, of the Art Floral Co., figured in one of the largest realty deals of the week, when he purchased the corner of Mason and Dikeman streets. This property is in the heart of the hotel district. Mr. Matraia will erect a large hotel on the property.

Eric James, of Elmhurst, reported a strong demand for French hydrangeas this Easter. The pink varieties were more popular than the white ones. His ericas were perfect and received much favorable comment.

Walter A. Hoff, of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., is receiving the sympathy of the trade in the death of his mother, which occurred in Oakland, April 3. The deceased was a native of Russia, age 57 years.

Victor Ferrari had his plant houses just right for the Easter trade. He had several thousand giganteums, which were marketed in pots, also a fine lot of cattleyas in bloom which were sold as specimens.

The principal source of supply of Russell roses at present is the McLellan greenhouses at Burlingame. The firm's distributing store on Bush street is now handling some excellent stock of this rose.

J. A. Axell did a large shipping trade. Great quanities of roses were sent out of town. Lilies were also in great demand, and fine prices were received.

At Joseph's, a large force worked all Saturday night to get out orders. Steamer trade has increased greatly here during the past few months.

H. Plath's greenhouses show the effect of the holiday trade. The great demand cleaned up a large quantity of decorative and foliage plants.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. report a splendid Easter trade. Their large stock of pot plants and lilies were completely sold out by Sunday morning.

JAMES T. LYNCH.

State Florists Association of Indiana.

F. T. D. CONVENTION PLANS.

The 1920 meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association will be held at Indianapolis, Ind., October 12-15, it was announced at the April meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana in that city, April 6. The dates have been ratified by the F. T. D., and may be accepted as definite.

The tentative programme arranged by the Indiana organization provides for an expenditure of about $3,000 for entertainment purposes, and none of those who attend the annual meeting will have cause to repine over lack of diversion. The usual banquet will be given at the Claypool hotel, while two luncheons and a theater party are other features planned.

A. F. J. Baur, chairman of the show committee, reported that the local hotels were unable to accommodate an exhibition which would be open to the public, and for this reason this feature of the F. T. D. meeting will be strictly a trade affair. It will, however, be given plenty of publicity, and anything which may be lost through the inability to have a flower show, will be atoned for by elaborate competitive window displays. The Indianapolis department stores will be given an opportunity to participate in the display contest, according to present plans. In addition, the three local high schools will be invited to submit advertising posters for the F. T. D. meeting, and a substantial cash prize will be given for the posters selected as the best.

E. E. Temperley, outlining plans for the theater party at a local vaudeville house, suggested that a special act be given, featuring flowers, and emphasizing the value of the telegraph delivery idea. The moral would be sufficiently disguised to prove of interest to a general audience, though it is believed enough florists and their ladies will be present to fill the theater fairly well.

H. H. Dietz, of the staff of the state entomologist, attended the meeting, and spoke of advances made in combating the various pests found in Indiana. Rather a new insect in the flower trade, he said, is the strawberry root worm, best known, as its name indicates, by strawberry growers. Mr. Dietz suggested that the work of this and other insects had been somewhat aided by pruning. The remedy, he believes, is the sterilizing of shears before being used on rose and other bushes. While many proprietary insecticides are effective enough in the main, he believes that eventually most growers will prepare their own insecticides, since most of those on the market are adapted to general work, and in some instances, damage greenhouse stock, though perfectly innocuous in orchards. He urged the florists to spray early in order to prevent serious damage to growing flowers. There is always evidence of the presence of insects, even when the flowers are young, he said, and control may be gained at this stage without harm to the stock. Irwin Bertermann suggested that insecticides be sweetened in order to attract the insects, and Mr. Dietz endorsed this method.

O. E. Steinkamp, secretary, was authorized to extend the sympathy of the association to Arnold Nehrling, popular florist of Crawfordsville, in the loss of his wife, which took place just before Easter. Owing to the rush of business, many florists who are intimate with Mr. Nehrling, did not learn of his bereavement. The funeral services were held at Crawfordsville the day following Easter, with interment at Mrs. Nehrling's former home at Jasper, Ind.

Mr. Steinkamp was instructed to send the association's regards and condolences to W. W. Coles, of Kokomo, and to accompany the letter with a box of cigars. Mr. Coles sustained a broken ankle recently, and will be confined to his bed for some time. He is vice-president of the association, and an active worker in its behalf. M. E. C.

Columbus, O.

LULL FOLLOWS EASTER RUSH.

The past week has been rather quiet in the florist business in this city; several factors entered into the market to bring about these conditions. In the first place, a severe snow storm prevailed for several days, and the weather was generally unfavorable to trade. Then, there was also a necessary reaction from the activity of Easter week, which always appears. On the whole, business was as brisk as could be expected under the circumstances, and prospects for the coming month are unusually bright. In cut flowers, the demand was largely towards violets, sweet peas and roses. Violets are more plentiful than was the case during Easter week and sell for about $1.50 per bunch. Sweet peas are also plentiful and sell about the same as violets. There is a fair call for roses, which retail from $4 to $10 per dozen. There are all varieties of excellent quality. Jonquils are in good demand, and there is a good supply. Lilies are also good sellers at this time. In plants, a good sale is reported for primroses, lilies and hydrangeas. Prices are about the same as usual, and no tendency to advance is noted. Funeral work has not been active. Party work is better now, with quite a few social functions scheduled in the near future. Some weddings are taking place, and there will be quite a few more during May. J. W. L.

Horticultural Society of New York.

On Wednesday, April 21, at 8:15 p. m., at the American Museum of Natural History, 77th street and Central Park West, there will be a meeting of the society, at which J. Otto Thilow, Philadelphia, Pa., will deliver a lecture on "Annuals and Perennials for the Garden," illustrated with lantern slides. This is a timely subject, as it is now time to prepare for the coming summer garden. Mr. Thilow will have much of interest to communicate on this subject.

GEORGE V. NASH, Sec'y.

The Late James C. McLeish.

James C. McLeish, veteran gardener, and widely known as a horticulturist, died at his home in Newport, R. I., March 27, after a short illness, age 76 years. The deceased was born in Scotland, coming to this country in 1867, and in his early years here served as head gardener on several large estates at Hamburg and Westchester, N. Y., and later was in charge of the grounds of the late Aaron Stevens at Newport. In 1877, he went into business for himself as a grower, meeting wtih great success. He was president of the Newport Horticultural Society, having been one of its charter members and was prominent in civic and political affairs.

OMAHA, NEB.—S. B. Faulkner celebrated the seventieth anniversary of his birth, April 13. Mr. Faulkner should be good for another 25 or 30 years, being a descendant of two ancestors who lived to be over 90 years, and one who passed the hundred mark.

RAILROAD conditions at Chicago were reported almost normal April 14.

PRICES of plant stakes and labels have advanced in line with increased cost of lumber.

SHIPPERS of goods should prepare to pay higher freight rates, 25 per cent being possible.

THE senate at Albany, N. Y., has passed a bill limiting the size of motor trucks to eight feet in width and 12 feet, six inches in length, and the combined weight of truck and load not to exceed 25,000 pounds.

IT is said German chemists have discovered that fertilization of air increases crops. The use of carbonic acid gas, purified of sulphur in greenhouses, produced amazing results in yield and quality of tomatoes and potatoes.

Bulb Grades.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

I notice some dealers advertise bulbs as "first size," naming no measurements. Can you tell me if the Society of American Florists has established bulb grades for freesias, so I may know what to expect to receive if I order "first size?" FORCER.

The Society of American Florists has not established any bulb grades for freesias or any other flower that I know of. JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Pacific Coast Business Active.

Vice-President Fenton, of the National Bank of the Republic, Chicago, just back from California, reports business on the coast very active. Bank deposits are at the highest level, and an extensive building boom is on in southern California. A surprising, but needed, movement has started on behalf of agricultural interests to import oriental labor under immigration safeguards. Californians are reversing their former position, as European labor has largely gone home.

Hail Damage at Fort Smith, Ark.

A severe hail storm which passed over Fort Smith, Ark., and vicinity, March 30, did considerable damage at a time when florists were busy with their Easter preparations. At the flower shop and greenhouse of George Rye, the damage amounted to approximately $250, of which $75 represented loss to stock bruised by hail after glass was broken. At B. B. Freeman's range, the damage is estimated at $125, while several windows at the Quality Flower Shop were cracked, and glass broken and plants injured at the company's houses at Prairie View.

Toronto Growers and Retailers.

The florists of Toronto, Ont., having for their aim the placing of the business on a higher plane and the full co-operation of growers and retailers for the further advancement of the trade, will hold an important meeting in the rooms of the Toronto Florists' Club, 12 Adelaide street, April 19, at 8 p. m., which will be of interest to all in the profession. Supper will be served and well known speakers will address the meeting, among them, George Asmus, Chicago; Wallace Eiss, Buffalo, N. Y.; W. E. Groves, Hamilton, Ont.; T. W. Duggan, Brampton, Ont.; F. C. W. Brown, Cleveland, O.; John H. Dunlop, Toronto, and others.

Rose Red Columbia.

Joseph H. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., was in Chicago a few hours April 8, with one bloom of his new red rose, sport of Columbia, a brilliant flower, with all the good qualities of the parent, and without the "neck" of that variety. The sport is said to be quite fragrant, though the bloom shown here had but little odor, having been several days in the ice box. The present plan is to offer the new rose in 1922, the stock now consisting of some 200 plants. Twenty-five thousand plants were sold during Mr. Hill's short stay in the city, having been suddenly called to St. Louis, Mo., where some of his plant shipments had been delayed, the railroads refusing to forward them to destination or to return them to Richmond.

The rose was exhibited at the regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club in the evening, and was favorably commented upon by the growers and others in attendance. The club, however, took no official action on the exhibit other than to thank Mr. Hill for presenting it, one flower evidently being considered insufficient for criticism or award.

American Iris Society.

The American Iris Society was recently organized with an initial membership of 250 enthusiasts representing many sections of this country and many lines of iris development. With the enforcement of Quarantine 37, the opportunities for using Spanish, English, or Dutch irises are few and far between. They are used largely as a florist flower, but have much garden value as well, and we wish to obtain all the information possible in regard to their culture and handling, where they may be obtained, and what opportunities there may be for growing them in this country. We should appreciate cooperation and wish to be in a position to keep members informed of what is accomplished. Other varieties or species of iris seem less adapted to a commercial use as cut-flowers, but they are used to advantage in many homes, and may, if properly handled, be useful in the show window, but here again information is lacking. The annual dues are $3.00, but it will prove a good investment.

At a meeting held in New York, January 29, temporary officers were elected as follows: John C. Wister, Philadelphia, Pa., president; William A. Peterson, Chicago, vice-president; R. S. Sturtevant, Wellesley Farms, Mass., secretary; trustees, James Boyd, Dr. H. A. Gleason, H. A. Norton, Bertrand H. Farr, I. S. Hendrickson, E. C. Shaw, Regional vice-presidents, B. Y. Morrison, east; Mrs. S. Taft, central; T. A. Kenney, west; S. B. Mitchell, Pacific coast; Floyd Bralliar, south; Dr. F. E. Bennett, Canada.

Latham-Nash.

Announcement is made of the marriage April 3 of Lieut. John Cridland Latham, well known nursery manager of Tarrytown, N. Y., to Miss Alice Witman Nash, daughter of George V. Nash, curator of Bronx Park botanical garden, New York, and secretary of the Horticultural Society of New York. Lieut. Latham served with the old Seventh N. Y. regiment, and is the possessor of five war medals.

Seattle, Wash.

SPLENDID EASTER BUSINESS REPORTED.

General satisfaction is expressed over the way the Easter demand turned out, although all conditions were not exactly what the trade could have wished. Weather conditions were against the sale of cut flowers, as the two days preceding, and Easter Sunday, were marked by rain. However, there were a number of big funeral orders on hand, and the loss on cut stock was accordingly reduced. There were more than enough lilies on hand to supply all orders, and some houses had stock left over, this being due to the rain. The lilies were so far superior to those sold last year, that they could hardly be compared, but the oversupply caused one retailer, in particular, to become nervous and cut prices sharply on Saturday evening. Those who failed to follow, closed out just as well and received the full price for their flowers. Hydrangeas were probably the second best sellers in the list, with mixed baskets a close third. The sales of pot stock were so brisk that two of the stores had to secure extra rooms for the Saturday rush. There was a fairly slow opening for the early part of the week, but this was overbalanced by the rush of business at the close. The only Easter novelty was pot rhododendrons, which sold at probably the highest prices of any offering in the market and this short supply was cleaned up very early indeed. The trade in corsages was generally good and taxed the local growers' supply of violets. The red carnations have shown a very marked improvement of late, both as to color and stem, and the Pink Enchantress also draws trade comments over the better condition of arrivals. Laddie, mainly from Spokane growers, continues the market leader, but several of the local greenhouses report an increasing cut of this variety. The crop of orchids has fallen off a little, but not enough to inconvenience the trade, while the supply of gardenias, lily of the valley and forget-me-nots has been steadily increasing.

NOTES.

The Hollywood Gardens was one of the seven local firms given honorable mention in the Easter week window competition, conducted by the retail trade bureau of the chamber of commerce. Snapdragons, roses, hyacinths, ferns and daffodils were used in this prize winner. This firm reports a greater demand for corsages and pot plants than for cut flowers, and baskets were big sellers as well.

Rosaia Bros. had a distinct increase for the better in the quality of the local roses coming from their greenhouses, and found it easy to dispose of all their stock. There was a generous supply of lilies as compared with a year ago, but the quality was so much better that those who sat tight in the face of price cutting, showed good returns.

Harry Crouch, of the Woodlawn Flower Shop, reports that not only was there a splendid Easter business enjoyed, but that after-Easter trade has been better than was to be expected. A good increase over last year's sales was noted, and the better offerings were the first sellers.

McCoy's occupied their new home on Second avenue for the three days before Easter, as well as their old location on Third avenue, and Fred H. Rowe reports that the stock at both establishments was cleaned up as well as could have been asked for.

In order to accommodate the Easter rush, Kenney's Home of Flowers took an extra store room on Pine street, and William Goldberry reports that the general run of stock cleaned up in fine style.

The Woodland Park Floral Company, formerly the Orpheum Floral Company, more than doubled the 1919 Easter business this year.

QUIET FOLLOWS BIG EASTER.

The usual period of quiet trade immediately following a big holiday with heavy and general buying of flowers, has followed the big Easter business we all enjoyed. The echoes we heard on all hands the past week confirm strongly the statements made previously that this was the greatest Easter in volume of trade ever experienced by the local florists. The inclination of the public, which leaned generally to plants, was, it appears, because of the great variety offered which ranged so nicely in prices from the dollar hyacinth or tulip to the more pretentious rhododendrons and big marguerites, as well as the lilies with three and four plants to a pot, commanding as high as $15 each. Then, too, while the cut flowers were high, the quality of many of them were far out of harmony with the prices demanded, and plant growers are encouraged to devote still more glass to plants for this and other big events. The past week has been exceptionally dull with most retailers, and cut flower stock has, in consequence, accumulated, especially in bulbous flowers, some of which were late for Easter. Sweet peas, too, was another item that was in over supply in spite of special sales inaugurated by some in an effort to move them. Violets, also are meeting with the same fate, while carnations and roses are not so conspicuously in excess of the limited demand.

NOTES

The Gust H. Taepke store, 95 Gratiot avenue, will be abandoned, May 1, after a continuous active business at that location for 26 years. Walter Taepke, who has purchased the interests of the other members of the family, will continue the business at the greenhouse establishment at 450 Elmwood avenue. Here, a modern store will be built, connecting with the greenhouses, and facilities added, which will, it is hoped, maintain the former big business of the firm.

Harry Taylor, secretary of the florists' club, and for several years past, manager of Breitmeyer's David Whitney building branch store, has severed his connection with that firm and bought the business of Henry C. Nustrow, the Highland Park florist, and will take possession about May 1. Harry has the good wishes of all in the local trade, in his new venture.

The sympathy of the trade is extended to George S. Balsley, whose wife died, April 8. The funeral was held from her late home, 216 LaSalle boulevard, April 9, with interment in Woodlawn cemetery. Among the many beautiful floral offerings was a wreath from the florists' club.

Harry Balsley, who with his brother, George, retired from the flower pot manufacturing business, is now making his home in Florida. He was called here to attend the funeral of his brother's wife, but will return at once to his adopted southern home.

E. A. Fetters arrived home April 12, after an extended visit on the Pacific coast. He was in company with Thomas Browne, who it is reported also arrived home.

The L. Bemb Floral Co. received successfully a big consignment of flowering plants for Easter from the Thos. Roland greenhouses, Nahant, Mass.

Thomas Browne, the Grand River avenue grower, who has been on the Pacific coast the past winter, arrived home, April 12.

The continuous cold weather is causing anxiety among the local growers, whose supply of coal is running very low. J. F. S.

"Hamburg Late Pink" Chrysanthemum

Picture was taken Dec. 28, 1919, and will give a good idea of what "Hamburg Late Pink" looks like when grown to single stems and planted six inches each way.

"Hamburg Late Pink" is an improved late pink Maud Dean, having more petals, and if grown for late will hardly ever show an open center.

The average grower of chrysanthemums must have varieties which are easy to handle, and from which he can cut as near 100% of perfect blooms as possible. "Hamburg Late Pink" has been grown for the last four years, and produces a very high proportion of good flowers. It is not an exhibition variety, but, for late pink, one of the best for commercial purposes. It can be had in bloom the latter part of November by taking an early bud, but some of the flowers will show open centers; but by selecting late buds, after October 1st, most of the flowers are cut during December, and would advise to select late buds, as the later buds will hardly ever show an open center, and some flowers can be had even in January.

Keeping qualities are excellent, and where a graceful pink flower is wanted, "Hamburg Late Pink" cannot be surpassed.

"Hamburg Late Pink" will be disseminated in the spring of 1920. Plants ready now and orders filled in rotation.

EASTER TRADE NEVER BETTER

Easter business was never better than this year, although the exact percentage of increase has not been definitely determined as yet. Lilies were never finer, and there was no shortage. Plants that sold from $3 to $10 were the leaders, the offerings including cyacinths, jonquils, tulips, genistas, primulas, deutzias and bougainvilleas, the latter very fine plants. Ramblers, hybrids and Tausendschon were the rose plants. A few good azaleas were also on sale and commanded good prices. Rhododendrons were never better than this year. The call for handsome baskets of plants and matted pots was larger than in any previous year. The demand for cut flowers was about as usual, the call being for roses, sweet peas, orchids and lily of the valley. There was a heavy trade in corsages. Jonquils, tulips, mignonette, snapdragons and daisies were popular items. Quality was excellent.

NOTES.

W. J. Palmer & Son's two shops had attractive Easter displays and S. A. Anderson's stores, both on Main street and Elmwood avenue, made a fine showing. The Colonial Flower Shop, W. H. Grever, Felton's Home of Flowers and the Wm. Scott Co., made a fine appearance. Charles Schoenhut, J. V. Metz and Wm. Sievers attracted excellent business with their well displayed stocks.

Jerry Brookins & Son, Orchard Park, and Wm. Ehman, of Corfu, supplied the market with fine sweet peas. From H. Christensen, of Eggertsville, came excellent roses and carnations, while Chas. Guenther, of Hamburg, also sent in quality rose stock.

J. B. Wiese, at the Chippewa market, had a fine supply of flowering plants from Schwert & Berner, Forks, N. Y.

STOCK IS PLENTIFUL.

Stock of almost all kinds is plentiful at this writing and business the past week has been rather quiet, but is gradually improving at present. The wholesalers are having considerable difficulty making shipments to out-of-town points owing to the railroad strike, but conditions are gradually improving and it is expected that the situation will right itself in the near future. There has been a fairly good demand for wedding and funeral flowers the past week, which helped out a little and the city demand which has been somewhat quiet since Easter, is improving with the sales for Saturday, April 10, being very encouraging. American Beauty roses are none too plentiful and command good prices. Mrs. Chas. Russell, Columbia and Premier are having a good call and clean up nicely considering the general market conditions. Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, White Killarney, Sunburst, Champ Weiland, Ophelia, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Montrose, Mrs. George Shawyer and My Maryland are in good supply and the same holds true for Cecile Brunner, Nesbit, Elgar and Baby Doll. Carnations are in heavy supply at all the houses but are in stronger demand at this writing, owing to the special sale this week by the members of the Allied Floral Association, who are offering them to the public for three days at 75 cents per dozen or three dozen for $2. Lilies are plentiful and are obtainable in quantity lots at attractive prices. Some fine callas are seen and are in fair demand. Sweet peas are cleaning up nicely each day at good prices and the same holds true for orchids, which are a little on the short side. Gardenias are a trifle more plentiful, but are disposed of quickly. Snapdragons are to be had in larger supply and some particularly fine iris is now included in the offerings. Vio-

Albert Koehler, of the American Bulb Co., in a recent letter from Germany, says the demand for cyclamen seed in that country far exceeds the supply. The growers of lily of the valley pips are preparing for a big American demand, but find the present packing requirements exceedily difficult and the cold storage shipping facilities inadequate. Labor is very scarce and high, and German merchants will take payment for their goods only in American dollars, cash to accompany order. Mr. Koehler, when he can get out of Germany, which was impossible at the time of writing on account of the revolution, expects also to visit Holland, France and England, in the interest of his firm.

John Spiros, who conducts a flower stand in one of Kresge's stores, has brought suit against a local wholesaler for failure, he claims, to deliver 1,000 outdoor jonquils at $6 per 1000 two days before Easter. It is interesting to note, while Mr. Spiros claims a loss of $60, any number of stores were selling their jonquils in even small quantities at the rate of $5 to $7.50 per 1000 with an almost unlimited quantity available. Some were thrown out altogether for lack of buyers.

Tony Einweck, of Rock River, Wyo., arrived here this week to attend the wedding of his brother, Joe Einweck, of the Bassett & Washburn force, to be solemnized this month. Tony was employed in the local wholesale market several years ago, but at present holds a responsible position in the western oil fields.

The Ernst Wienhoeber Co. had the Peacock wedding this week, which included the bridal bouquets and the decorations for the church and home. Mr. Wienhoeber and daughter have returned from a pleasant visit to California.

Allie Zech, of Zech & Mann, has a letter in regard to the coal situation that is of interest to every grower. They are at liberty to read it at any time they desire, or may receive a copy of same upon application.

Bassett & Washburn report business good, considering conditions, and are looking forward to an early settlement of the railroad strike which is improving rapidly at this writing.

Peter Reinberg is cutting quite heavily in roses and carnations, which are moving as nicely as can be expected, considering the present shipping and market conditions.

George Wienhoeber had the order for the Mills wedding this week, which included the bridal bouquets and church and home decorations.

gineering personnel of this company, we were finally led up to the signing of a contract for a new range of greenhouses. The "I Will" spirit of this city was evident in every scene. Next was presented a series of actual production scenes inside the manufacturing plant, showing various operations of, and in connection with, the construction of iron, steel and wood materials. These pictures were a revelation to many, as the most minute details were clearly shown. Power riveting machines, multiple drills, automatic punches and manifold mortising machines were shown, also other appliance in operation. Many types of greenhouse were reproduced on the screen, including exterior and interior views of large and small commercial establishments, and finally the reel was completed, showing an actual scene in a modern retail flower store with greenhouses attached. The reel at its final turn announced the national slogan, "Say It With Flowers." President McKee, of the American Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., kindly promised to repeat the exhibition at the May meeting on request of the members.

President Waters announced that the Elks' national convention will be held here July 5-10, bringing over a quarter of a million visitors to the city. The Elks are planning to furnish 10,000 to 20,000 corsage bouquets during the convention, and growers as well as retailers should prepare for this work. Mr. Waters also reminded members that the national republican covnvention, which is to be held here in June, should stimulate the demand for flowers.

Chairman Morton, of the garden committee, reported the completion of all arrangements for an active campaign to encourage more home gardening, and announced the printed matter will be ready for distribution the second week in April.

Treasurer Paul E. Weiss, who is closely identified with coal interests, gave some interesting fuel facts in the programme of the meeting, which will be found in our issue of April 10, page 650.

President Joseph Kohout, of the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago, presented a very remarkable message on the promotion of the growers' interests, which we hope to print later.

Chairman Guy W. French, of the good-of-the-club committee, announced plans for a May dance, particulars of which will be given later.

STRIKE AND BLIZZARD DEMORALIZING.

Both growers and retailers here have experienced the worst Easter on record, with profits knocked sky high by a combination of circumstances as unavoidable as the big tornado that swept over this section a week ago. Until Friday of Easter week, everything was lovely, and with the greatest demand of years in sight, everybody was happy. Then, on Friday, a gale of biting cold wind shut off business like a clam. On Saturday morning, like a bolt out of the blue sky, came the street car strike, paralyzing traffic, and those people who persisted in going downtown were forced to use the perilous jitney service. Despite this handicap, business on Saturday was surprisingly good, better in fact than on the same day last year. Then, to cap the climax of the florists' woes, a terrific blizzard, with high winds, snow, hail and rain, descended upon the city Sunday morning and continued throughout the day. It was so bad that only a few people ventured out of doors. The result was that florists' ice boxes were jammed Monday morning with cut flowers, which they had expected to sell on Sunday. Bulbous stock, more plentiful than ever before, met the same fate. Florists in the outskirts did not suffer to the same extent as those downtown. Despite all these untoward circumstances, business was about equal to that of last year. No particular plant seemed to be a favorite ,and great quantities of lilies, tulips, hyacinths, daffodils, genistas, hydrangeas and cinerarias were sold. There was a lively call for corsages before Sunday, but few had a chance to wear them. Telegraph orders were more numerous than ever. Due to the great supply, prices were about the same as last Easter. Very little advertising was done, most florists taking the demand for granted. Considering what developed, there is no doubt that had a united effort been made to push stock during the forepart of the week, that a more favorable story could now be told.

NOTES.

Schramm Brothers, who grow most of their Easter plants, had the biggest display they have ever had. To push this stock, they ran a half-page ad in both of the daily papers, which was the largest ever used in this city by any florist. To promote early ordering, a special one-day sale of pot tulips was offered for Thursday, and quite few were sold. Business up to Sunday morning was great, according to Frank M. Schramm, and he was well satisfied.

Max Spanner used his large basement to put on his annual Easter flower show, and had a wonderful assortment of plants. He displayed an exceptionally fine lot of rose bushes, hydrangeas and tulips. Max showed the writer an ice box full of cut flowers on Monday morning, the sale of which was prevented by Sunday's storm.

Metz & Bateman report a fine trade up to Sunday, but, like other retailers, had a big surplus of cut flowers and plants.

Harry Heinl sent in some fine lilies, but lost many during Easter week, when they blasted. A. C. K.

Milwaukee, Wis.

SUPPLY EXCEEDS FAIR DEMAND.

Business during the past week was brisk, but not enough so to take care of the large amount of stock which arrives daily. The cut of roses, carnations, bulbous stock and lilies, both Easter and callas, is considerably greater than for the same period in 1919. Sweet peas seem to be the most popular cut flower thus far, and while many are cut daily, more could be moved. The weather conditions for the past week were mostly cloudy and cool, which in a way, is a blessing in retarding some of the crops. Yet, after the long siege of winter, we all would like to have it somewhat warmer, especially during the nights. Even the greatly reduced prices all down the line do not seem to have the desired effect.

NOTES.

Fred Gutermuth mourns the loss of his mother, age 58 years, who was relieved by death, April 5, after a prolonged siege of sickness. She is survived by her husband, two daughters and one son. Interment took place at Union cemetery, April 8, from the home, which adjoins the greenhouses at 20th street and Atkinson avenue.

James Livingstone, who served the local florists' club in the capacity of treasurer for a long time, had the misfortune to sprain his right ankle a short time ago, and it has caused him much pain and inconvenience ever since.

Shortly before Easter, burglars, who gained entrance through a basement window at the Edlefsen-Leidiger Co's. store, 419 Milwaukee street, rifled the cash drawer, and were rewarded to the amount of $7.25.

Gimbel Bros.' cut flower department reports an 80 per cent increase for Easter over that in 1919. The many outgoing and incoming telegraph delivery orders were nearly equal in quantity.

We have learned that Mrs. Seaman, who has been very sick since last fall, was well enough to accompany her sister to Chicago, where she will make her home for the present.

The strike of the railway employes has not yet (April 12) affected local perishable stock, which is forwarded by the express companies.

Many local sweet pea growers report a drop in their daily cuts the past week, due to the falling off of the buds.

E. O.

Racine, Wis.

The Brux Greenhouses have been making a fine display of stock since the opening of their new range and store. Fire of unknown origin early in the morning of March 16, destroyed the entire upper story of the Brux residence, adjoining the houses, did not cause loss in that quarter and repairs to the dwelling are now under way.

Swen Olsen, landscape gardener at the Mound cemetery greenhouses, has resigned his position and will go to California. His many friends in this city regret his departure and wish him success in his new location.

The old North Side Greenhouse has been sold again, this time to Milwaukee parties who will remove it to that city. The same interests have purchased the Cuthbertson range.

The Flower Shop, formerly located on Main street, was moved to more commodious quarters one block away on Wisconsin street.

FINE SUPPLY WITH VERY WEAK DEMAND.

The market is flooded with stock of fine quality for which there is little call. Roses are offered at from eight to 20 cents, with Shawyer, Ophelia, Wasatch, Helen Taft, Hoosier Beauty and Columbia, bringing 10 to 25 cents. Carnations are exceptionally fine and are quoted $5 for splits and $8 for fancy, Laddie bringing $15. A few gladioli are seen at $2.50-$3 per dozen. Sweet peas are not in heavy crop due to dark weather and hold up to two cents. The plant market is practically cleaned up in good Bostons, Whitmani and asparagus. There are, however, a few bulbous offerings left. On account of the dark, cold, stormy weather, hydrangeas were too green for Easter but are now coming into their own, which will enable the retailers to have something besides ferns to show.

NOTES.

The Miller Floral Co's. force is taking a little rest after the big rush. Funeral work is now a big factor. Miss Rice, of Burley, Idaho, is now a student at the store, and is fast mastering the details of the business preparatory to taking charge of the flower department of the Miller Drug Co. in that city. Robert Miller was a recent visitor from Farmington.

Mrs. Eunice Frontzes has taken a position with Bailey & Sons, in the capacity of saleslady. Mr. Uno, of the above firm reports excellent business, all stock moving well.

The Evans Floral Co. says a basement location makes no difference as the trade gets to them anyway. All conditions are favorable to good business.

The Salt Lake Floral Co. has some fine snapdragons in colors which clean up easily. Carnations are plentiful at this range.

The Lambourne Floral Co. is having a heavy call for funeral work, which is very welcome after the Easter rush.

Miss Childs, of the B. C. Morris Floral Co., has no complaint to offer, business being very satisfactory.

Emil Lund, of Bountiful, and M. Daunelfelzer, of Sugar House, have large crops of fine carnations.

EXPRESS EMBARGO WORKS HARDSHIP.

The past week's demand has not been very encouraging; the stores stocked up with good supplies, and there was a fair out-of-town business reported by the wholesalers, but the snap that puts life into things, was lacking. As an offset, the supply was rather short in nearly all lines; even Easter lilies, which are generally freely offered after an early holiday, are not any too plentiful. Roses, in the face of the light demand, are selling up well, as are carnations, and realizing very good prices for the season. The quality of both is fine. There are still violets, but they will soon be off the list. Snapdragon is now at its best. Calendulas of the higher grades sell fairly well. Lily of the valley, from genuine German pips, appears almost as good as ever, and is more plentiful. White lilac, which has played such a part the past season, is about done. Cattleyas are short of the demand and bring top prices from $1.00 up. Asparagus is a good crop; any kind of a fair bunch now brings 75 cents. Adiantum is also up 50 per cent.

April 12.—The express companies, owing to the strike of switchmen and other railroad workers, have refused all shipments, with the result that cut flowers, ordinarily sent or received by express, have to be moved by motor trucks or parcel post. The situation is serious, as if not immediately remedied, considerable loss will result to growers, who will not be able to market their stock.

CLUB MEETING.

The April meeting of the florists' club was too close to Easter for most of the members, and the attendance was not up to the standard. The talk on advertising by Charles Bloomingdale, an advertising expert, was short, but very much to the point. He is a great believer in continuous publicity as he has numerous clients who have found it most beneficial. The slides of Penn's Boston advertising were wonderfully fine and full of excellent ideas in publicity for all seasons of the year. All are splendidly illustrated, with good cuts of decorated plants, arranged baskets of cut flowers, bride's shower bunches and other wedding arrangements, a number showing the bride holding her bouquet. Valentine bunches of violets, and at other seasons were a feature. All public events and anniversaries were connected up in the store publicity. The text and descriptive matter was excellent, the national slogan, "Say it With Flowers," and "Leave it to Penn" is clever and was frequently used. Such splendid work cannot help but bring business to Penn, and to other florists as well.

NOTES.

Transportation is now the great drawback. There is not sufficient room in the limited express car service of many of the trains to carry all shipments ready for forwarding; when the cars are full, packages left over have to wait three or four hours, and longer, for the next chance. Shipments of violets from New York for the Easter trade were many of them from four to six days on the way, and of course, worthless. Conditions described by a New York shipper in explaining delays are as follows: "Everything in the transportation line seems to be tied up by strikes, lockouts and embargoes. Not a single railroad will accept shipments for transportation, and all boat service on the river is tied up. Express companies will accept only shipments that suit them, and these for very few localities, and only subject to delays."

James Heacock, Robert Jamison, and Karl Corts, of the Joseph Heacock Co., paid a visit the first of this week to John H. Dunlop & Son, Toronto, Ont., to see the new rose, as grown by the originator. The new house at Roelfs is soon to be planted with roses, and the Dunlop is likely to be one of the new ones to take up considerable space. Catch crops in this house, not finished until October, are sweet peas, calendulas and Godfrey callas, all of which turned in splendid cards, and are now at their height in production.

Latest Easter reports are all most favorable. One of the wholesalers says: "Everybody must have had a wonderful Easter as we have never had bills paid as promptly before. Generally when prices are high there is a lot of complaints of one kind or another in efforts to have the bills reduced, but this year checks are coming along in full, with only satisfactory comment."

There are rumors of a growers' market, for this city on the lines of the growers' association of Chicago. The old dame is always busy talking, but seldom delivers the goods. However, she does come across sometimes, and this may be one of the exceptions.

Berger Bros. have to move as their present building, 1225 Race street, has been rented over their heads. They have taken a lease on the property, 1609 Sansom street, which will be occupied as soon as the necessary alterations can be made.

The Holland bulb men are on the job, booking orders for next fall's delivery. Prices on daffodils are $30 per thousand on Golden Spur, and $32 for Emperor, payments cash on delivery, with three per cent off.

The Leo Niessen Co. is strong on American Beauties, which for the next month, will be very fine. Carnations and sweet peas are also quantity stocks.

Carnations, snapdragons and sweet peas are features of the Edward Reid stock. Ophelia and Columbia roses of good quality are in demand.

M. J. Callahan is much pleased with his branch store, 20th street, near Spruce, formerly Reizer's, where he found a fine Easter demand. K.

Kansas City, Mo.

Probably in no former year was the Easter supply of lilies so plentiful or of better quality than during the Easter period just passed, and in spite of their generous numbers, many more could have been sold had they been available. Quite a number were sent out with one bud opening at the request of customers. The price in pots was 75 cents per flower, while cut stock brought $7.50 per dozen. On Saturday, this city experienced the worst blizzard of the year, but in spite of severe handicaps the trade met the situation and everything moved in perfect harmony. M.

AFTER-EASTER TRADE DULL.

No great amount of business is ever expected for a week or two following a great holiday trade, and the rule was not broken during the past week. Possibly, it was better for the wholesalers that the weather was very cool. Throughout the week, the temperature seldom went much above 40 degrees, and on several nights, it went down to 30. The supply of stock was consequently reduced, which prevented any noteworthy decline in prices. Both roses and carnations cleaned up fairly well at good figures. The cool weather was also fortunate for the flowering bulb trade, as stock arrived in good condition. It was not "violet weather," so the street men got into the game; but for that matter, after the short and dark days of early winter, they are seldom out of it. A heavy stock of cut lilies has been arriving. Exceptionally fine stock of the longiflorum nobilis has been noticed, which wholesaled at $2 to $2.50 per dozen, buds and flowers. As much of the stock for this market now arrives by automobile trucks it is hoped that even if the railway strike continues, it will not seriously cripple the flower trade.

April 12.—The weather continues cool, and stock is arriving in good condition. Quite a heavy supply of roses was received this morning, but prices are fairly firm. The Ulrich Brunner roses are now arriving and as a spring and early summer variety, they usually meet with favor.

NOTES.

The next event of importance after the club meeting on the night of April 12, will be the removal, April 26, of 20 wholesale firms—20, count 'em—from West 28th street to the Siegel-Cooper-Greenbut building, Sixth avenue, 18th to 19th street. Carpenters have been busy for several weeks in fitting up the ground floor for their reception. The arrangement is somewhat different from the majority of large markets. Broad aisles run through the building, and partitions have been put up between the stands, which it would seem, is an improvement, as it gives each firm, to a certain extent, the same privacy enjoyed in a separate store. It is believed that this market will be a success from the start. It is conveniently located relating to the main transportation lines, and everything in the way of cut flowers that retailers use, will be found there.

As the florist, seed and nursery trades have in the past few years had their share of annoyances from strikes, it seems in order to here refer to such matters. It must be plain to business men that by some means the chaotic conditions that have from time to time deranged all lines of trade, must be reduced to a minimum. It is not merely a question of the rights of employers and employes, but a larger question of the rights of all the people. An industrial court, such as now exists in the state of Kansas, seems to be the sanest solution of this problem. It has been noted that several men have recently been jailed for disobeying the orders of that court. That seems to be the proper place for any man—capitalist or laborer—who refuses to recognize the authority of a lawfully constituted court.

The so-called "outlaw" strikers are living up to that name. On April 11, the east bound Chicago Express, on the Erie R. R., was abandoned by its crew at Port Jervis, N. J., 90 miles from this city. After attending a meeting, and spending several hours in conference, it is said that the crew agreed to come on with the mail and milk. The train will probably reach here today—unless they have to hold another confernce.

Calling recently at the range of the Charles H. Totty Company, Madison N. J., we found a large force engaged in grafting and potting the new varieties of roses for which this firm has become justly famous. They were for a time held up by the non-arrival of their grafting stocks, and have to be lively to make up for lost time, as the orders have been heavy.

We have received from Secretary Vick, of the American Dahlia Society, the April number of the society's bulletin, which is now published at Newark, N. J. It contains much interesting information for dahlia growers.

Phil. Kessler, of the Cut Flower Exchange, is receiving from Jos. Rafferzeder, of Teaneck, N. J., fine stock of new varieties of snapdragon.

Theodore Schultz, a florist and landscape gardener, has opened an attractive retail store at 584 Lexington avenue.

A. L. Miller, of Jamaica, is shipping to Traendly & Schenck, a fine quality of cut lilies.

Edward Brenner is receiving fine stock of the Ulrich Brunner roses.

Hentz & Nash, Inc., are handling a good stock of Spanish iris.

A. F. F.

New York Florists' Club.

The New York Florists' Club met in its hall in the Engineering building on the night of April 12. President Henshaw in the chair. As there was a light attendance at the opening, the president said he was in doubt whether it was a "survival of the fittest" or of the best walkers. However, members kept dropping in until there was a good attendance. On motion, J. P. Mossman, of Hackensack, N. J., was, so to speak, given the right of way to read his paper on orchid culture. Mr. Mossman was interesting, and held the attention of those present, a number arriving too late to hear the paper read. A short discussion followed, in which Joseph A. Manda and others participated. Mr. Mossman was given a rising vote of thanks.

Roman J. Irwin reported on the dinner held at the Hotel Biltmore on the night of March 17. The number of tickets sold was 375, and there were 68 invited guests. This report was accepted, and he and his committee were given a rising vote of thanks. The report of the flower show committee showed that there will be a comfortable balance, at least $9,000, to divide between the club and the Horticultural Society of

New York. There will be a final report at a later date. The transportation committee reported progress. A final selection of a route to Cleveland and was deferred to next meeting. A suitable memorial of the death of F. W. Bruggerhof was read.

The following were elected to membership: J. N. Champion, New Haven, Conn.; D. A. Laird, Brooklyn, N. Y.; K. H. Zeevat, New York; H. Berkowitz, New York; J. M. Nitschke, New York; H. M. Cooke, Plattsburg, N. Y.; F. A. Heffner, Hoboken, N. J.; M. J. Watson, New York; Herman Mamitsch, Rockville Center, L. I.; A. H. Brown, Greenwich, Conn.; H. Bergman, Far Rockaway, N. Y.; D. A. Dawson, New York. Eight names were proposed for membership.

When new business was called for, Max Schling took the floor and entertained the members. Others followed. A public market previously mentioned in these columns, was discussed. Mr. Schling advocated support for the market, which has been proposed by Park Commissioner Gallatin, but the plan does not seem to be generally favored by any branch of the trade.

P. F. Kessler exhibited a vase of the snapdragon, Ruth Brewster; awarded cultural certificate. J. A. Manda, West Orange, N. J., exhibited Brasso-cattleya, distinct variety; silver medal. Also C. labiata; silver medal. Geo. Schlegel Broklyn, N. Y., exhibited a collection of Miltorica bluena grandiflora; silver medal for the collection. Louis Strauss, Brooklyn, N. Y., exhibited Dendrobium nobile alba; hornorable mention.

Out-of-town visitors were Richard Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md., and Louis Alene, West Haven, Conn.

BUSINESS FAIR WITH LOWER PRICES.

With Easter gone, and Mothers' day on the horizon, everyone is getting straightened out and renewing supplies used during the holidays. The commission men did the best business in their career. Flowers are down to everybody's price now, and while business is good, the general public does not warm up. Perhaps the Easter holiday had something to do with it, a few dull days always following a holiday business. Wedding decorations are unusually numerous, and much southern smilax has been used. Roses are in good supply and barely clean up. Carnations are good and bring from $1 to $2 per 100. Sweet peas are very poor even at $7.50 per 1,000; a few bring a little better price. Lilies are an uncertain article to quote, as prices range from $8 to $20 per 100. Violets are done for. Snapdragon is fine, but the prices are still above a breaking market. The retailers all did well at Easter time, considering the high advance price asked, and the deluge of stock the last minute. The Sixth street market folks were selling carnations Saturday night before Easter as low as $1 per dozen, retail. Still every one is satisfied. Mothers' day goes big here, and everyone is getting ready to reap the golden harvest.

NOTES.

H. W. Sheppard's Easter business was 25 per cent better than last year. Funeral work and over 200 corsages kept every one interested. Wedding work is a daily occurrence here.

Julius Baer was hard pressed with funeral work the past week. Easter business was the best ever.

Robt. Kelley did a big Easter business. All plants sold out early. Corsages were a big feature.

T. W. Hardesty & Co., sold out everything for Easter in plants and cut flowers.

American Seed Trade Association.

E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, 216 Prospect Avenue, S. E., Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer.

The thirty-eighth annual meeting will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June 22-24, 1920.

VISITED OMAHA: J. C. Vaughan, Chicago.

THE price of bags at Chicago, April 14, was $64.

ONE Chicago seedsman expressed 80 bags of onion sets per day for five days last week.

WINTER WHEAT condition, April 1, was reported 75 per cent normal as against 100 per cent the year before.

THE property of the late Gnud Gundestrup, Chicago, fixtures, seeds, etc., was sold April 10, realizing some $1,800.

ALEX. HENDERSON, of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, is an enthusiastic golfer, but says Sunday is the only day he can find time to play.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—President E. C. Dungan, of the American Seed Trade Association, returned to his desk, April 7, after an illness of four months.

MUSCATINE, IA.—The floods here last week seriously threatened the premises of the J. E. Hoopes Co., well known seed growers and market gardeners.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district have been moving slow the past week on account of transportation difficulties, prices remaining about $3.00 to $3.25.

LAST week, at the time of the drop in price of red clover, carlots of this item are reported expressed from Omaha and other points as far east as Toledo.

THE Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y., writing this week, say shipping conditions are fierce there, being in some instances unable to ship by freight, express or mail.

SEEDSMEN are experiencing a good demand for seed corn, which is expected to continue for several weeks. A few instances of difficulty in obtaining satisfactory seed stocks are reported from the northwest.

BOARD OF TRADE—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade, April 14, were as follows: Timothy, $9.00 to $12.00 per 100 pounds. Red clover had a big drop from $45.00-$53.00 to $35.00-$46.00.

ACCORDING to the London Times, increases in ocean freight rates from the United Kingdom to North America will take effect April 19, and will range from 25 per cent on lower classes of goods to 50 per cent on more valuable articles.

TOLEDO, O.—Clover seed was weak and prices lower, April 12, opening quotations ranging from unchanged figures to a drop of 35 cents. Cash was offered at $29.50, April $29.50, October $23.40, and December $22.50. Cash timothy was slightly cheaper with futures steady. Cash, 1919, was quoted $5.75, April $5.75, May $5.70, September $6.10, October $6.00, and December $5.87½.

NEW YORK.—The unseasonably cold weather, April 5-10, to some extent checked counter trade, but it gave the seedsmen a chance to catch up with their orders. On April 10, they were facing, in common with the rest of the people, a more serious situation than cold weather, in the strike of railway men. On that day, an express embargo was declared, and the strike extended to the Hudson tubes, which are now largely depended upon for rapid communication with the Jersey shore.

Market Gardeners Cautious.

W. Atlee Burpee & Co., write as follows, March 26: "Business has been very satisfactory this month. One condition stands out prominently in our business. There is an abnormal demand for grass and clover seeds and less than normal demand for garden seeds from truckers. We are given to understand that many market gardeners are curtailing their acreages of truck crops this season through unwillingness to pay high prices for labor, and are putting their land into hay and grain crops instead. If this condition prevails over any considerable part of the country, it seems to us that a shortage of vegetables is likely to occur next summer.

"Spring has come very suddenly in Philadelphia the last few days, and the change in weather has started things moving very rapidly in the line of garden and flower seeds."

Secretary Meredith on Free Seeds.

Secretary Meredith, of the department of agriculture, went on record as opposing the appropriation of $250,000 for the distribution of free seeds, but the house would not heed his suggestion. The senate committee did, however, and took it from the bill. If the item goes back in conference, the country, in the judgment of Mr. Meredith, will have a splendid opportunity to determine the good faith of a congress that on the one hand chops a quarter of a million dollars from the most vital items which have to do with production, and, on the other hand, leaves in the bill a quarter of a million dollars "for seeds to send free to prospective voters in the fall elections."

There may be a good deal of agitation for a business man for president of the United States, but if Mr. Meredith's experience is a criterion, a business genius in the White House, will be helpless without some business sense in Congress.

Here are some of the reasons advanced by senators, in a recent discussion, why they are against the continuation of the free seed graft:

"There is no pretense that the distribution aids the farmer, and it is recognized as a means utilized by congressmen to keep their memories green in the minds of their constituents."

"The farmer's little daughted, carrying a watering pot in one hand and an American flag in the other, devotedly planting the seeds sent by a beneficent government, does not exist and never did."

"The distribution holds congress up to ridicule and contempt."

"The seeds do not grow, anyhow."

California Weather in March.

March, 1920, was a month of very favorable weather from an agricultural and horticultural standpoint. The temperature was about the normal for the month, and there were no damaging frosts in the valley and foothill sections. There were no marked warm or cold spells and the month was one of good growing weather. The 1st and 2nd were rainy and the balance of the week fair, but rain began again on the afternoon of the 8th, on the north coast, and by the morning of the 10th, it had spread over the entire state. From this time to the end of the month, there were frequent rains with intervening fair weather, which permitted the maximum amount of rain to soak into the soil and do the most good. It was the first month since September, 1919, when the monthly amount of precipitation exceeded the normal in all portions of the state, and in which any considerable amount of snow fell in the mountain regions. At the beginning of the month, the water situation was very acute in all sections, especially in the northern portion of the state, where the deficiency was very marked. The precipitation during March was sufficient for all plant growth, penetrated well into the ground, and in a great measure, helped to replenish the reservoirs and mountain lakes which furnish water for power and irrigation purposes. While the rainfall has not been sufficient to insure the crops, it has been ample for present purposes, and with normal conditions during the remainder of the season, good crops will be secured.

Vegetable Seed Acreage, 1920.

In the prospective commercial acreage of vegetable seed crops for 1920, compared with last year, marked reductions are noted in the acreage reported for dwarf snap beans, all beet, carrot, lettuce, onion seed, radish, spinach, sweet corn and tomato seed, while a slightly increased acreage is reported for garden pole beans, cucumber, muskmelon, watermelon, parsley, pepper, pumpkin and Swede turnip seed.

Nitrate of Soda.

The senate has just passed a bill, authorizing the secretary of war to turn over to agricultural fertilizer distributors or users in this country, such quantity of the nitrate of soda held as a reserve supply by the war department as, in his opinion, can be spared consistently with the military needs of the government. This action by congress is being taken to meet the existing emergency in the shortage of fertilizers, and the stocks so turned over are to be replaced by the recipients with an equivalent amount of nitrate at a later date, under such guaranties as the secretary of war may prescribe.

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

E. A. Dunbar, Ashtabula, O., President; Louis F. Miller, Toledo, O., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; H. J. Cheney, Grand Rapids Mich., Treas. Next annual convention September 1920.

IT is reported that owing to the tie-up on the Southern Pacific railroad, some 70 cars of Mexican tomatoes will become a total loss.

IN the south, farm work is further delayed by extraordinary weather, snow being reported in parts of Georgia, and freezing weather over the Easter holiday, down to the gulf.

ROCK GROVE, ILL.—Farmers in this vicinity have partially solved the labor problem by bringing from Switzerland, 20 young men who will receive from $35 to $50 per month with room and board in payment for their services.

WALLA WALLA, WASH.—The Walla Walla Market Gardeners' Association, which markets its onions under the Gloria brand, will this year harvest about 600 acres instead of 500 as in 1919. The average yield is about 500 sacks to the acre.—H. M.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, April 14.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen box, $4.00 to $5.00; celery, Florida, crate $4.00 to $4.50; leaf lettuce, per tomato box, 27½ to 30 cents; radishes, per dozen bunches, $1.00 to $1.10; tomatoes, per crate, six baskets, $4.00 to $6.00.

New York, April 12.—Celery, per crate, $2.00 to $4.50; cucumbers, per dozen, $1.00 to $2.75; mushrooms, 75 cents to $2.00 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 25 to 50 cents; lettuce, per dozen, 12 to 30 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $4.00 to $8.00.

Flats.

With the coming of spring the plant business will require attention. Whether we grow for our own use or for market, there are times and places where flats are a big help. These days, with scarcity of materials of every nature, shortage of labor and fuel, every factor must be considered. One of the methods gaining in many places is to produce plants in flats under glass, and as soon as permissible, to run these out into cold frames to make room for others inside. The advantages of this plan are such that anyone interested will see them without dwelling on this subject. We have for some years looked around for a cheap source of material for flats, of a uniform, convenient size, and have found this souce in the bushel apple boxes of the Pacific northwest. We can obtain them in any quantity at a nominal price, and by ripping them crossways, into two and a half or three inch strips we make either three or four flats out of every box; the tops, sides and bottoms being uniform will also fit for the bottoms of our flats, hence the whole job is a speedy one at a minimum cost. These flats are cheap enough to permit of the sale of plants in the flat, thus doing away with return troubles. For our own use, we use them extensively as it is so handy to run out plants to harden them off. We prefer a two and a half inch flat, wishing to reduce weight as much as possible. By using a good compound, we can produce nice plants in this depth of soil. For most subjects we make them to hold five dozen plants per flat, but for a cheaper trade, probably eight dozen could be grown. We find that in the last stages of growth, if the plants seem to stop, we can give them a nice thrifty finish by watering with ammonia water—one ounce sulphate ammonia to one gallon water. This ammonia is milder and steadier than nitrate of soda, and where plants are offered for sale this treatment puts that attractive green on them that appeals to the buyer. "Thrifty" plants is what the public terms them. MARKETMAN.

Vegetable Markets.

Reports to the bureau of markets of the United States department of agriculture for the period April 4-10, show irregular market conditions, with cabbage slightly lower and potatoes making strong advances. Most cabbage markets were full, the stock generally ranging $80-$100 in most consuming centers. Chicago and Cincinnati were somewhat weaker at $65-$70 and $70-$75 respectively. Supply continued heavy in St. Louis and a break at the end of the week took the closing range down to $35-$40 per ton. California Winningstadts in 80-pound crates sold at $4-$4.75 in Cleveland and $3.50-$4 in Detroit and Chicago. Florida Wakefields declined about 75 cents in eastern consuming markets. Shipments of old cabbage were small. Michigan and Minnesota potato markets became very strong and active but movement was limited. Prices of sacked round whites opened above the previous week's highest point at $6.20-$6.50 per 100 pounds and continued to advance, reaching $7-$7.50 at the close. All consuming markets advanced generally 80 cents to $1.50 for No. 1 round whites. St. Louis and Kansas City, which have been leading the market, made greater advances of $1.80-$2.50, bringing prices to $8-$9 at the close of the week. Other middle-western markets closed at from $7-$7.65. Eastern markets closed $6.35-$8. Maine Green Mountains closed in Boston at about $6.25 per 100 pounds.

URBANA, ILL.—About 20 students of the department of floriculture of the University of Illinois visited the wholesale flower market in Chicago, recently, where they studied methods of shipping, packing and storage.

J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa., President; Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President; John Watson, 400 Nassau Street, Princeton, N. J., Secretary; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Iowa, Treasurer.

Forty-fifth annual convention will be held at the Congress Hotel, Chicago, June 23-25, 1920.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—C. E. Gysemans, of the Evansville Nurseries, reports unusually strong demand for nursery stock in all lines.

VISITED CHICAGO: Robert Chase, of the Chase Nursery Co., Chase, Ala., returning from Rochester, N. Y. Mrs. Chase is visiting Herbert Chase and wife at Delta, Colo.

THE quarantine against fruit stocks from the Orient, prohibiting the importation of fruit stocks, cuttings, scions and buds, from Asia, Japan, the Philippine Islands and Oceania, a hearing on which was held in Washington, D. C., March 9, mention of which was made in our issue of February 14, page 206, becomes effective June 1, 1920.

JOHN WATSON, secretary of the American Association of Nurserymen, addressed the convention of the Agricultural Editors' Association at Chicago, April 6, on "Keeping the Boys on the Farm by Making Rural Homes Attractive." Mr. Watson told of the educational publicity work being done by the association, and outlined the standardization programme under way. It is significant that the activities of the association should have attracted attention that brought an invitation to have the association's secretary take part in the programme of a convention of editors of farm papers. In the evening, Secretary Watson met some of the local nurserymen at the Hamilton club, guests of Alvin Nelson.

France Beautifying Argonne Cemetery.

More than 140 skilled French government gardeners, under the direction of Europe's foremost landscape artists, are at work beautifying the Argonne cemetery in France, where 23,000 American war heroes lie, according to Red Cross workers who returned recently. They said it is the desire of the French government to make this spot one of the most beautiful in France.

Before entering the cemetery there is a plot of ground several feet lower, which forms an approach to the burial ground. This will be laid out as a formal garden and banked with flowering plants and shrubs, they said.

On each side of the steps, the name "Argonne Cemetery" will be inscribed in flowers. Flower-bordered paths will lead to the central bed in the shape of a star of flowers, changed according to seasons. In the spring, it will bloom with daffodils and crocuses, in the summer with yellow daisies and asters, and in the autumn with chrysanthemums.

As the cemetery is many miles from the nearest town, the American Red Cross has established a motor bus service, which will be at the disposal of visitors to the graves of American soldiers.

Unfair Practices.

President J. Edward Moon, of the American Association of Nurserymen, in a recent communication published in the National Nurseryman, under the title, "Is Our House in Order," calls attention to the fact that many nurserymen are incensed by charges of unfair practices of nurserymen in several states which affect the entire industry and have resulted in a loss of business. President Moon and Executive Secretary John Watson of the association have urgently invited those making the charges to submit the facts in their possession to the vigilance committee, as the constitution of the American Association of Nurserymen provides a means of ridding its membership of persons found guilty of such offenses. The officers of the organization are intent on running these charges down, and in the meantime, are issuing articles for garden publications, assuring the public of honest dealings if members of the association are patronized. It is also hoped that there may be opportunity to have a representative of the association on the programme of every horticultural meeting possible.

Apples for Wisconsin.

"Due to the great variations of climate found in different portions of Wisconsin, it is very difficult to name varieties of apples suitable for growth in all portions of the state," says J. G. Moore, horticulturist at the University of Wisconsin. He divides the state into three climatic divisions where different varieties of apples may be grown. In the northern and colder portions he recommends the Lieland Raspberry, Duchess, Patten's Greening, Longfield, and the Hibernal. In addition to these, the McIntosh, Fameuse, Northwestern Greening, and the Windsor Chief may be grown in the more moderate climates of the state. In the southern and in the extreme eastern sections which border Lake Michigan, the Westfield, Salome, Hubbardston, King, and the Delicious may also be included. The Whitney, Virginia, Martha, and Hislop are suitable varieties of crabapples for all parts of the state.

EASTER TRADE SETS RECORD.

The Easter business in this city was "best ever," with prices higher than ever before. The supply of good stock, both pot and cut, was fully equal to the demand, and quality was excellent. Lilies did not have the size that we have had in the past, but were good enough and plenty of them, too, at the price of 50 cents per bud and bloom. Pot plants with four to six blooms were most plentiful. Few cut flowers of them were used. Hydrangeas were well grown and there were plenty of them. Pot roses were few, with a good call for them. Primulas had a very good call, but are being overdone—too many for holidays. Cyclamens just the right supply offered. Other pot plants offered had less of a demand than usual. Cut flowers were higher in price than ever before, with plenty of them, especially carnations. Fine weather conditions with unusual lot of sunshine brought in a big supply and it helped local roses also, both in quantity and quality. No better roses can be produced anywhere than we get from some of the local growers. The best sold at $5 to $10; carnations, $1.50; sweet peas, 35 cents; violets, 50 cents a bunch—all other flowers were in proportion. Most all day Saturday it rained and was cold. Sunday was worse, so it had quite an effect on total sales, but not cold enough to interfere with deliveries, all being easily made. For 10 days the weather has been cold and disagreeable—so bad that buds that were coming out, are just standing still, and garden making stopped. Bulbs are in bloom generally throughout the city, lilac buds just showing color.

NOTES.

The California Florists had the largest stock ever offered by one store in the city; most of it sold out by Sunday evening. Business kept 12 or 15 on the hustle for several days. They handled probably 3,000 pot lilies and several hundred hydrangeas, other stock in proportion.

The Hayden-Watson Co. had a fine supply of home grown stock and sold out about as close as they could spare, and have sufficient left for the funeral orders booked ahead. We missed the familiar face of Mrs. Hayden.

Louie Tschunko, who does somewhat of a local business, and grows for the trade, cleaned out entirely. He grows very few pot plants, but always comes in with a good supply of carnations that are best of quality.

The Northwestern Floral Company is entirely out of the florist business in this city. It dismantled the greenhouse range located at North Eleventh and Tacoma avenue, and left this locality entirely.

H. H. Hinze, located on K street, did a fine local business and sold an unusually fine lot of pot plants. Sold out to the limit on cut flowers, and did some decorating in several churches.

The Smith Floral Co., on Broadway, sold out entirely; closer than any, if one could judge from the store full of empty space, and nothing in the windows.

The Tacoma Floral Co. had a fine call and sold out entirely, both in cut blooms and plants.

H. W. Manike moved all of his pot plants and had fine call for cut blooms.

CLUB MEETING.

Reports made on Easter trade at the April meeting of the florists' club showed that the growers and retailers were satisfied. of protest at the prices charged this year. They say that violets at $5 a hundred and sweet peas at $8 a hundred, retail, is one of the ways to kill the florists' business, and that people will simply do without flowers at such prices, or will greatly curtail their orders. Roses of all kinds, lily of the valley, orchids, sweet peas, violets, gardenias and spring flowers moved best in cut blooms. In plants, hydrangeas sold largest. Rose bushes and combination baskets were in good demand. Some dealers were unable to fill orders from customers for plants of moderate price—they have practically disappeared. The new pink hydrangea, "Trophy," was a favorite with many buyers.

The club voted to purchase one of the large signs, "Say It With Flowers," offered for $50 by the publicity committee of the S. A. F. The sign will be set up on the nursery grounds of Fred A. Danker on the state road between Albany and Schenectady where it will be seen by thousands of automobilists through the summer. The club voted also to give $25 to the S. A. F. national publicity fund.

H. C. Newbrand, representing R. A. Vanderschoot, 299 Broadway, New York, Dutch bulb importer, spoke of a grower in Washington, D. C., who sowed seed of Lilium longiflorum and L. giganteum in his greenhouses in February, transplanted them into the garden in the spring, and in the fall brought them into the greenhouses, where the following Easter, he was rewarded with fine plants bearing four, five and six buds and flowers.

William Maver, gardener for Henry Manning Sage, at Menands, had on exhibition a calceolaria in an eight-inch pot. The plant had 15 stems loaded with clusters of flowers. It was a beautiful specimen. The club voted to give Mr. Maver a certificate of merit for his exhibit.

GOOD DEMAND WITH LOWER PRICES.

The week following Easter brought great activities in social circles and a corresponding impetus in the florist business. Weddings have commenced to come with a rush and pre-nuptial affairs are calling for many flowers. Stock has been plentiful and prices have dropped considerably, fully 25 per cent below Easter figures. Lilies, which are quite abundant now, may be had for $6 per dozen. Roses now have $8 for the maximum price and carnations may be had for $3. The snapdragon is the favorite and retails at $3 per dozen. This is the first season this attractive flower has been produced successfully in this city, the Joy Floral Co. growing quite a stock which immediately sprang into popularity. In pot plants, prices have also declined to about one-half pre-Easter figures. The weather, which has been cold since Easter, is warmer now and the Saturday market house display again shows to the front. During the past week, there was the usual heavy demand for funeral work. The weather of the past week has held vegetation in check to some extent, but in spite of the cool nights, lilacs are in bloom and hyacinths are flowering out of doors. M. C. D.

MOTHERS' DAY, MAY 9.

Congress Authorizes National Observance

Of all the holidays of the year, Mothers' day is the most personal. Christmas, while essentially a church festival has gradually developed into a season of gift giving, until it is now the universal custom throughout the civilized world, the florist prospering alike with other tradesmen. Easter, another church festival, one of the greatest in the florists' calendar, affects mainly the sale of plants and flowers, the beautiful custom of exchanging Easter greetings with floral offerings having now, become firmly fixed in the celebration of the day. The growth of the gift-giving features of the above holidays has required years to attain its present magnitude. The writer of these lines can remember when there was practically no celebration at Easter, aside from the decoration of churches. Exchanging greetings with plants commenced only in a moderate way about 1880.

The feature that has had most to do in increasing the gift giving at these two periods is, that those who receive, feel obligated to return in like measure. The spirit of Mothers' day is, however, entirely different. It is nationally a day of love, homage and adoration for mothers of the race, and individually for one's own mother, the best mother who ever lived.

Mothers' day is founded on a sentiment, the strongest and most perpetual of any in the human breast. When Miss Anna Jarvis, moved by the great grief in the loss by death of her mother, first conceived the idea of Mothers' day, and that it should be nationally observed, she struck a popular chord that reverberated and was heard and felt by other hearts in unison, all over the land. The first celebration was held in her mother's church, in which she had always been an active member, on the second Sunday in May as this was nearest the anniversary of her death. As white carnations had been her mother's favorite flower, she advocated as a feature of the day, that every person should honor their mother, or her memory, by wearing a white carnation. This visible recognition was at once adopted and grew to such an extent that white carnations, which had always been a drug on the market during May, were in such demand that they brought the highest prices of the year. Miss Jarvis in her enthusiasm, worked very hard in having the day recognized, and its celebration endorsed by state and city officials, and did not rest until it was finally given a national observance by action of congress in a bill passed, which was duly signed by the president. This directs that "Old Glory" shall be displayed in honor of Mothers' day, as on all other national holidays.

With this nation-wide endorsement of a holiday, whose observance encourages and has for its feature the use of flowers, founded with little or no effort on the part of the trade, except to try and meet the unexpected demand, there is presented to the craft a great opportunity to encourage and make of this the most important floral event of the year. In numerous cities and large communities, where the trade have featured the event with co-operative advertising, backing up their newspaper publicity with store displays and literature, results have been wonderful. In a number of reports of the business of Mothers' day in these communities, it has repeatedly been said to have equalled Easter, and in some instances, the sales have been even greater. "Sold out clean; could have sold much more could we have obtained the stock," is a familiar phrase. The demand covered everything in stock plants as well as cut flowers. There is no longer such distinctions as, "red for the living, and white for those who have passed away. It is "the plant or flower your mother loves or favored," or "all are beautiful, one just as appropriate as another."

While Miss Jarvis originated the idea of Mothers' day, and was largely instrumental in its adoption throughout the country, it is in the communities where the enterprising men of the trade have featured the day with advertising and good publicity through the reading columns of the newspapers, that the greatest observance has been obtained. The reports of last year's event in all the centers where the interest has been aroused by the trade, were most satisfactory, showing an increase over the year before, and this in spite of the fact that Miss Jarvis, who has taken umbrage at the florists, had "decreed," that flowers should not be used.

There is a general apathy in certain sections or cities toward innovations of any kind; the motto appears to be "Let well enough alone." In Philadelphia, Pa., the home of Miss Jarvis, one would expect to find the greatest observance of the day, but as far as the use of flowers is concerned, there is no evidence in the stores of any extra demand, and practically no effort has ever been made by advertising or co-operative work in the trade, to feature the event as a floral holiday. The wholesale commission men find a greatly increased demand from out-of-town points, which generally boosts white carnations up to record prices. Street men, also, do a good business with carnations, and pay highest prices for them.

Mothers' day has no equal as a business opportunity for the retail florist; it affects every household in the country. Its observance is as yet scarcely noticeable; not one-tenth of the people know anything about it, or have ever given it a thought. If the trade in every community would work together to educate and arouse the people to the significance of the day, one full of exquisite memories; when in honor of one's own mother, the best mother who ever lived, she is presented with her favorite flower, or the same tribute is laid on her grave, if she has passed away, a tremendous impetus would be given to making this event a universal holiday.

Mothers' Day Publicity Literature.

The Florists' Publicity Service Bureau of the Society of American Florists, has prepared some splendid advertising matter which can be used to the greatest advantage by all retailers. There is a beautiful poster in four colors, 18 inches high and 12 inches wide, five of which are sold for $1.00. Stickers, or stamps, a reduced replica of the poster, of the same size as the Valentine stamps, should be used from now on with every piece of literature or package that is sent from the store. These cost $2.00 for 500, or 1000 for $3.25. A two-page folder has the Mothers' day poster design in four colors on the front page. It contains good advertising matter, and there is a space for the name and address of the firm sending them out, which imprint is included in the price. These cost $9.00 for 500, or $16.50 per thousand, complete. These fit the ordinary sized envelope, and should be included with all letters or bills, and placed inside all boxes or packages. Colored movie slides, for use in moving picture houses, cost $1.00 each.

The mothers' day advertisement of the national campaign, now in the magazines, is splendid in design, with perfect text. Electros of this for local newspapers cost $2.25. All these dealers' helps are to be obtained from the Florists' Publicity Service Bureau, 431 South Dearborn street, Chicago.

Telegraph Delivery Opportunity.

Mothers' day should afford the best business of the year for the Florist's Telegraph Delivery service. The sons and daughters that have broken home ties are innumerable, but the old home and mother is always uppermost in their thoughts, and if the significance of Mothers' day is brought to them and the ease and certainty with which their love and affection can be expressed in flowers, through the F. T. D. service, many will avail themselves of the opportunity.

The greatest benefit to themselves and to the association will come through the members who strive for outgoing business. The 20 per cent received is "velvet," as there are no demands on their stock, the money is in hand, and they run no risks whatever. It is this individual initiative that puts life and energy into the work, and if all the members will appreciate their responsibilities in this respect, and do their best to secure new business, Secretary Pochelon will have to invent a lot of new adjectives for his next report.

Owing to the present strikes of the various organizations of railroad employes, there is great uncertainty in shipping, either by express or parcel post. These conditions will add very materially to the business or number of orders to be handled by the association for the coming occasion, and all of the different branches of the trade should be prepared to co-operate with the F. T. D. in its work.

A special point should be made of the advantage of ordering early, as the telegraph service is also affected. If orders are received in time to be sent by letter, personally written communications can be forwarded at the same time to be enclosed with the flowers.

PLANT NOTES.

Asters.

The early and midseason asters should be planted out as early as the season will allow. If the plants are hardened off for two or three weeks in a cold frame and gradually given night air as soon as safe, they will endure the outside temperature much better than those carried directly from the warm greenhouse. The land should be prepared at once, and while asters will grow on almost any piece of ground, success or failure depends much on the proper preparation of the soil. Land that was manured last fall and plowed is by far the best, and all that will be required in the spring is a shallow plowing or disking and then leveling. It is well not to level off too large a tract at once, for heavy rains occur at this season which pack the soil down hard. Before planting, give the young plants a thorough watering, and if in boxes or the bench, cut through the rows with a knife a day before planting. Lay the field out in rows from 25 to 30 inches apart, giving the branching varieties the greater distance, with a wider space every fifth or sixth row to provide a walk when cutting the flowers, and set the plants from 12 to 18 inches apart. Plant with a trowel, for the plants set in a dibbled hole will not take hold as quickly, and with the early asters the slight difference in time taken in planting is more than made up in the early blooming; the dibble packs the soil around the plant and the roots do not grow into it as freely, and the roots are also contracted in the small hole made by the dibble. As soon as the field is planted, if possible, give the plants a good watering and then cultivate lightly with a wheel hoe to loosen up the soil.

Rambler Roses.

The rambler roses for Memorial day will demand constant attention, for at this season of the year aphis and red spider increase very rapidly if the conditions are propitious. It is far better to keep these insects down by proper culture than to be obliged to resort to measures to kill them. Give the plants all the ventilation possible, but drafts will often cause mildew on the soft foliage, so these must be guarded against especially and low ventilation, such as open doors with the wind drawing through the houses. Syringe thoroughly on bright days. There is no better prevention for red spider than a good syringing that will reach the under side of the leaves, which will quickly break up the colonies of spiders that gather there. If the plants require fumigation, it should be light, for often the young foliage is very tender and heavy fumigation with smoke quickly burns it. Where the pots are full of roots a watering with liquid manure or a mulch of sheep manure mixed with sifted soil will be found very beneficial and will add a lustre to the foliage and deepen the color of the flowers.

Primulas.

For plants of both P. sinensis and obconica, for blooming next spring, May is the best time to sow the seed, which germinates very readily at this time, but if this is delayed until June it will often be found quite difficult to get the seed to start well, and as the young seedlings grow very slowly they will require constant attention during the warm weather, for a few hours' sun when they are dry will cause the loss of all the plants. The soil should be sifted in a fine sieve, as the seeds are very small, and they should not be covered with the soil, but sown thinly on the soil when loose and then pressed flat with a board. Watering should be done with a very fine rose on the can, so as not to wash the seeds or soil. At this season of the year the seed will germinate readily in almost any greenhouse, but it is well to cover the seed pan or box with glass to prevent too rapid evaporation, and until the plants begin to make growth, keep the pots well shaded. Many growers wrap a piece of paraffine paper around the glass that is placed on the seed pan. This allows plenty of light to germinate the seed and will prevent the direct rays of the sun from burning up the young seedlings when they start to grow. As these young plants grow very slowly, some soils will often become caked or scaly, and if this occurs the top should be carefully broken up to allow the air to enter. As soon as three or four leaves are formed, pot in 2½-inch pots, not too deeply, but yet deep enough to have them stand erect. They should then be placed in a cool house, and much of the success of their culture depends upon the care and watering in their early growth. They are a moisture-loving plant and should never become dry, yet they are easily overwatered and will not make a good growth if continually kept soaked; frequent and light waterings are the best. A lightly shaded frame with the pots plunged in the soil and the sash lifted at top and bottom for free circulation of air is the best location for summer culture.

Pansies.

The sale of pansy plants will soon be at its height, and there is nothing that the florist or grower sells upon which more time is wasted than in selecting a small order of pansies if the customer is shown a frame of a few thousand plants. The better way is to have boxes or baskets holding a dozen plants all made up for the customer. It is not necessary to put up more than will be required for one or two days' sale, but as fast as sold keep the stock replenished. There are many patrons who will be well satisfied with a good selection already placed in a basket who will take an hour of a salesman's time in making their choice out of a frame. Any late seedlings should be planted in the frames at once, and these will make fine plants for late May or early June planting when the older plants are either sold or have become too large for bedding purposes.

Antwerp Horticultural Exhibitions.

In connection with the great exhibition to be held at Antwerp this year, arrangements have been made for holding a series of horticultural exhibitions, and the dates upon which these will be held, together with their special features, are as follows: May 1-9, azaleas, rhododendrons and orchids; May 15-19, tulips, irises, and other early flowers; May 22-30, cacti and ferns; June 5-7, cut flowers, principally perennial subjects; June 12-15, roses; June 19-22, fruits and vegetables; June 26-29, liliums and sweet peas; July 3-6, carnations; July 10-13, roses; July 17-21, begonias and gloxinias; July 25-27, floral designs; July 31-August 3, cut flowers; August 7-10, annuals; August 14-17, gladioli; August 22-24, dahlias; August 29-September 1, pelargoniums, fuchsias, palms, and ferns; September 4-8, vegetables; September 11-14, orchids; September 18-22, general horticultural exhibits; September 25-29, fruits; October 3-10, preserved fruits, and fruits packed for market, and October 17-21, chrysanthemums. — London Gardeners' Chronicle.

our body. To secure these ends, we hope to obtain the favorable viewpoints of the commission wholesaler, the retail florist and the public at large, and thus gain an insight how other branches of the trade conduct their business, since we operate on such a different basis than those with whom we deal to maintain an outlet for their products. The grower is the backbone of the florist business, yet we have trusted a larger part of our interests to somebody else. There is the commission man, who always derives his profits from the work of the grower; there is the retailer, who gets his profit by adding his cost of selling to his purchase price, while the grower takes his chances on a possible profit of the unregulated law of supply and demand; hence, his sphere lies in creating a demand for his products that will lead to a profit over the annual average cost of greenhouse production. Some day, I hope to see a maximum selling price at holidays, because of the extra demand and a minimum price on an overabundance, whether because of heavy production or a small demand; in either case, we should establish an equilibrium, or a law of average, to safeguard a margin of profit to continued successful flower production. Stock dumped, has cost us millions of dollars, and finally, we believe we have the solution in employing the power of advertising to reduce such losses. Supply in excess of the demand, starts unstable and erratic prices to the public, while demand in excess of the supply, has the tendency to make returns more uniform. If the retailer can be brought to harmonize his selling figures with his purchase price on an established basis of the market, selling on a minimum and maximum price, such regulation might reduce the waste in the sales and distribution of the growers' products. The national organization could well branch out as a result of our success in Chicago, since this city's geographical location lends an influence to support the activities of establishing a resident organizer, so as to further effect state or sectional organizations among the growers.

Our plan of organization, adopted along national lines, will bring to other growers the remarkable progress we made within a year's time. Our preliminary experience is available to growers surrounding other centers of distribution. After these various bodies have been perfected, one section of the country will learn from the other. It is surprising how the Chicago growers overcome trade jealousies and suspicion, and get together toward friendly cooperation. On a national basis, our organization will co-operate with the scientific and theoretical experimental work in floriculture. We can deal safely with positive results and leave the experiment stations to do their investigations.

Disease control, soil fertility, heating and refrigeration, rotation of crops, crops to grow, marketing, cost of production, labor, employment of women and children, long hours, advertising; all these, and more, can be brought to a new phase to the advantage of the growers as a whole.

A national organization can give us an exchange of the best cultural methods, of the best markets and supply the different local organizations with instructors and organizers for every prospective and permanent organization, and to do our own advertising and create a growers' publicity fund, to organize dollars to boost us all along. As our industry advances, we become individually more ready to surmount difficulties and make our profession in keeping with the most approved methods in practice in other industries. Our national organization will stand out like the rock of Gibralter, to husband our resources, to meet any emergency.

"In Union there is Strength."

DISCUSSION.

In the discussion of this paper J. E. Pollworth spoke as follows:

The paper just read, is further proof of the grower's ability to combine his ideas with those of the other branches of the trade. As a wholesaler, I recognize the needs of an overhauling of our business, and it is getting it. The reference to a maximum and minimum wholesale selling price is not unsound. The great differences in cut flower prices to the public, permits fault finding by that class against the retail dealers, and it also counteracts all the good that advertising might do to make buyers, and to create good will favorable to greater uses of cut flowers. As we now conduct the wholesale market, it is the instinct of the wholesaler to exact all he can when the retailer needs the stock, and the retailer at the first chance lays down on his purchases to "bear the market," only to play into the hands of the department stores at glut times—one of our leaky methods of distribution. Department store competition, at such times, tantalizes the legitimate retail dealer, and brings discord where cooperation is most needed. We should eliminate the evils attending a short market, and the garbage barrel on a long market. When prices are high, the grower is playing in luck; when prices are low, we wonder how long they will last. Inflated high prices, either because of an extreme scarcity or a strong demand, await a reaction towards lowest prices when the supply becomes plentiful or the demand is light. The law of supply and demand can be stabilized, even under the present competitive democratic system of wholesale distribution of the growers' products. Competition cannot be throttled, but it can be regulated. The perishable nature of our products, does not prevent the pooling of the market's resources, so far as it relates to either extreme—a high or a low price. Sales should not be entirely based on what we are offered, but what they are worth as far as it is consistent to be put under control. Such prices, eventually lead to an equilibrium to safeguard the margin of profit to the grower and the retailer in accordance to the stimulating effects of the advertising of cut flowers. The demand would have a price limit fixed by a board of wholesalers, such board to be in a position to adjust itself, with the advertising bureau, to cope with the every day problems of the market, ready to meet the crises of a short market or a surplus of stock and thus open up the opportunities of our local advertising for response, and be effective when wanted. A maximum and minimum price market is worth trying.

FLORISTS' FERNS.

Spring Care.

To the fern grower, Easter is a less important season than Christmas, from the fact that the former is essentially a flower festival, while the latter finds the use for both flowers and foliage material, and when flowers are excessively high in price, as sometimes occurs at the glad Christmas season, the modern flower dealer is usually able and willing to call the attention of his customer to the beauties of a well-filled fern dish, a well-grown Boston, holly fern, or a cibotium. Then there are the tremendous numbers of nephrolepis, pteris and adiantums that are used as fillers in basket work, and these form quite an important portion of the Christmas stock in a progressive store. Of course, there are some ferns very happily used in Easter decorations, but comparatively little effort is made in this direction by the fern grower.

Owing to the frequent use of small plants of Asparagus plumosus and A. Sprengeri in table ferneries, many growers carry these plants along with their ferns, and in some cases perhaps descend to the use of the localism of calling them "Asparagus ferns"—a term that seems to have originated in some of the department stores. But be this as it may, the various asparagus are frequently found as a side issue in the fern houses, and not always a profitable one, from the fact that they occupy space for a much longer time than a crop of small ferns, and are frequently sold at very low prices.

However, there are many other things to claim the attention of the fern grower at this season, and one of them is the preparation of a crop of well-finished Boston or Scottii in readiness for the spring and summer trade, for notwithstanding the enormous numbers of nephrolepis that are ready for sale in the autumn, there is almost invariably a shortage of these useful plants in the spring, and a fair to good demand for them for use in porch and window boxes, in vases, and as single specimens for the decoration of the porch table.

To produce plants that are adapted for such purposes, they should be grown in light and well ventilated houses, given feed enough to keep the plants in good color, but not to make them soft, and these plants should be either pot of tub grown stock, for it will never do to dig up plants from a bench and then send them out for porch use before they are properly established.

The sun is now powerful, and it is generally needful to give a light sprinkling of shading material on the glass in March, but a very light shade, indeed, will be all that the nephrolepis require to keep them from burning, provided that the watering is attended to as often as may be necessary.

The young stock of table ferns for next fall's sales should now be in condition to pinch off from the seed pans to trays, and these tender young plants will need more shade than the nephrolepis already referred to, for it must be remembered that these tiny plants have not yet developed much of a root system, and consequently, are unable to withstand full exposure to the sun or strong wind from the ventilators. This does not mean that they must be everlastingly coddled, but simply cared for with a little common sense during the early stages of their career.

Fresh air is an essential to fern growing and the ventilation should be adapted to the condition of the weather, giving some air every day, and night ventilation when the outdoor temperature permits, bearing in mind that our climate is a very changeable one in March, and also April, and that night ventilation may need some attention.

Most of the ferns that are used commercially are not very particular in regard to soil, ordinary potting compost answering well in most instances, but for the benefit of the young seedlings, it is a good plan to have some lighter compost in the trays, to which they are transplanted from the seed pans, nor does this compost need to be pressed down as hard as a propagating bed, this open soil encouraging the roots of the young plant.

There is a certain fascination about fern growing, possibly in part owing to the fact that the ferns are among the oldest forms of vegetation on the face of the earth, and then their reproduction from seeds that form without any flowers appearing, makes them somewhat mysterious.

There is always the possibility of the appearance of seedling variations in the stock, this having been the origin of many of the favorite trade varieties, and a new variety of merit may prove to have considerable value. PTERIS.

American Dahlia Society.

THE EXHIBITION PLANS.

A meeting of the executive committee of the American Dahlia Society was held April 12, at the Pennsylvania hotel, New York, for the purpose of taking up the business of the autumn flower show. Notwithstanding the fact that the railroad strike was at its height at that time, there were present Richard Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md.; George L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I.; C. Louis Alling, West Haven, Conn.; I. S. Hendrickson, Flowerfield, N. Y.; William Noonan, Locust Valley, N. Y.; James Duthie, Oyster Bay, N. Y.; I. N. Sailor, Richmond Hill, N. Y.; and E. C. Vick. George W. Kerr, Doylestown, Pa., was expected to attend. He was ready and at the station, but was unable to get a train to New York. Professor George W. Fraser, of the Connecticut Agricultural College, was unable to leave the college at this time. The well attended meeting, under the adverse circumstances, shows the spirit of the committee.

It was decided that there would be three classes of exhibitors, namely: Commercial growers, those who grow tubers for sale; private growers, those who employ gardeners, but do not sell stock, and amateurs, those who grow their own plants, individually, except the work of plowing or spading and handling the fertilizer, who grow dahlias for their own pleasure and not for sale.

The dahlia show will be held September 27-29 at the Pennsylvania hotel, New York.

Garden clubs will be limited to 100 square feet at a flat rate of $10.

Competitive exhibits may be displayed in the trade space, so that exhibitors who enter flowers for display only, and also flowers in competition, can keep all their exhibits together to make the best possible general display.

The price of trade space is to be $1 per square foot.

Admission, 50 cents. Trade tickets will be sold at $25 per hundred. Unused tickets will not be redeemed. Each exhibitor shall have three season tickets.

A schedule committee was appointed, consisting of James Duthie, C. Louis Alling, I. S. Hendrickson and William Noonan, with the suggestion that the schedule be prepared as soon as possible, to include dahlias, in the various classes, also other autumn flowers, fruits and vegetables.

The following trade space was taken at the meeting: I. N. Sailor, Richmond Hill, N. Y., 50 square feet; John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, N. Y., 150 square feet; C. Louis Alling, West Haven, Conn., 100 square feet; George L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I., 109 square feet; William Noonan, Locust Valley, N. Y., 50 square feet; Richard Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md., 100 square feet. As there are only about 2,000 square feet of trade space to be sold, it will be seen that a quarter of it has already been taken.

THE TRIAL GARDEN.

The trial garden of the American Dahlia Society will be conducted again this season at the Connecticut Agricultural College, Storrs, in charge of Professor George W. Fraser. Dahlias will be entered by the raiser or introducer, and the tubers may be sent by mail to Storrs, Conn., or by express to Willimantic, Conn., prepaid, until June 1; plants up to June 25. The clumps will be returned at the end of the season, if desired. Tubers and plants will be properly planted and taken care of throughout the season, the name of the raiser and introducer posted on the stake. Many visitors from New York, Boston and other points were at the garden last year making notes, and the attendance this year will probably be larger than ever.

A charge of $1 is made for each variety entered. Not more than three tubers or plants of any one variety can be accepted. Flowers scoring 85 will be awarded the society's certificate of merit, and the flowers exhibited at the show of the society.

All correspondence in reference to the trial garden should be addressed to Professor George W. Fraser, Storrs, Conn. EDWARD C. VICK, Sec'y.

National Publicity for Flowers.

A second time within a week or two we are pleased to note the progressiveness of Michigan florists. Albert G. Boehringer, treasurer of the Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society, writes: "The Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society, by a resolution, instructs me to write a cheque for $25 and mail it to you as our subscription to the national publicity campaign for this year."

Doubtless, there are many other trade organizations in the country which could follow the example set by the two Michigan bodies.

THE SLOGAN BILLBOARDS.

It is a splendid time now to install one of the "Say it With Flowers" billboards. Many a florist's establishment furnishes an ideal location for a board, and it might also serve to hide in a way an unsightly shed or outbuilding. These billboards are very attractive, painted in the official colors, and serve their purpose admirably. They are supplied at actual quantity cost, $50 each, delivered—and are worth this amount for the material in them. A large number of these boards are now complete, and ready for immediate shipment. The Cleveland Florists' Club recently ordered 20 billboards, and they were shipped on the day the order was received. Many other clubs could use a similar quantity. It would be a great thing for our campaign if 500 of these signs, distributed throughout the country, were flashing to a million or more people daily our message, "Say it With Flowers."

CHANGE OF ADMINISTRATION OFFICES.

Owing to lack of sufficient space for the requirements of our administration offices, the society has taken larger quarters in the old Siegel-Cooper building, 41-43 West 18th street, New York, and the offices will be located there, on and after April 26. In the same building, will be a concentration of wholesale florist interests, a realization of what has been the dream for years of many in the trade. Visitors to New York, who look over this new market—and, of course, all will do so—are cordially invited to call at our offices on the mezzanine floor. All the facilities of the offices are at their disposal, and mail and telegrams may be addressed there at any time. Our members will be made to feel quite at home, as, indeed, they should be.

MOTHERS' DAY.

Any florist who has not received a broadside descriptive of the publicity helps for Mothers' day business should write for one to the Florists' Publicity Service Bureau of the S. A. F., 431 South Dearborn street, Chicago.

THE CAMPAIGN FUND.

As far as can be learned, the florists throughout the country did an unusually large Easter business, resulting in greater profits to the trade. It might be expected that many of those who have not yet contributed to the campaign fund, would now come across with the subscription so long anticipated from them. But it looks as though we may go on expecting. Expectancy is a bad habit. For years and years, the florists have made expectancy the basis of operations. Now, when we have an active movement to turn expectancy into actuality, most of those who are to benefit, seem unwilling to support the fund that is making the change. They are not helping to help themselves. Our committee cannot pay our publicity bills with expectations. Why not help them toward materialization. Send a cheque right away for any amount circumstances will permit, and it will be found to be a mighty good investment.

The following subscriptions have been received, and are in addition to those previously announced, annually for four years unless otherwise stated:

Wm. Schumann, Newport, Ky., (addl.)	$ 5.00
J. E. Matthewson, Sheboygan, (addl.)	5.00

Trees.

I think that I shall never see
A poem lovely as a tree.
A tree whose hungry mouth is prest
Against the earth's sweet flowing breast;
A tree that looks at God all day,
And lifts her leafy arms to pray;
A tree that may in summer wear
A nest of robins in her hair;
Upon whose bosom snow has lain,
Who intimately lives with rain.
Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree.

our body. To secure these ends, we hope to obtain the favorable viewpoints of the commission wholesaler, the retail florist and the public at large, and thus gain an insight how other branches of the trade conduct their business, since we operate on such a different basis than those with whom we deal to maintain an outlet for their products. The grower is the backbone of the florist business, yet we have trusted a larger part of our interests to somebody else. There is the commission man, who always derives his profits from the work of the grower; there is the retailer, who gets his profit by adding his cost of selling to his purchase price, while the grower takes his chances on a possible profit of the unregulated law of supply and demand; hence, his sphere lies in creating a demand for his products that will lead to a profit over the annual average cost of greenhouse production. Some day, I hope to see a maximum selling price at holidays, because of the extra demand and a minimum price on an overabundance, whether because of heavy production or a small demand; in either case, we should establish an equilibrium, or a law of average, to safeguard a margin of profit to continued successful flower production. Stock dumped, has cost us millions of dollars, and finally, we believe we have the solution in employing the power of advertising to reduce such losses. Supply in excess of the demand, starts unstable and erratic prices to the public, while demand in excess of the supply, has the tendency to make returns more uniform. If the retailer can be brought to harmonize his selling figures with his purchase price on an established basis of the market, selling on a minimum and maximum price, such regulation might reduce the waste in the sales and distribution of the growers' products. The national organization could well branch out as a result of our success in Chicago, since this city's geographical location lends an influence to support the activities of establishing a resident organizer, so as to further effect state or sectional organizations among the growers.

Our plan of organization, adopted along national lines, will bring to other growers the remarkable progress we made within a year's time. Our preliminary experience is available to growers surrounding other centers of distribution. After these various bodies have been perfected, one section of the country will learn from the other. It is surprising how the Chicago growers overcome trade jealousies and suspicion, and get together toward friendly cooperation. On a national basis, our organization will co-operate with the scientific and theoretical experimental work in floriculture. We can deal safely with positive results and leave the experiment stations to do their investigations.

Disease control, soil fertility, heating and refrigeration, rotation of crops, crops to grow, marketing, cost of production, labor, employment of women and children, long hours, advertising; all these, and more, can be brought to a new phase to the advantage of the growers as a whole.

A national organization can give us an exchange of the best cultural methods, of the best markets and supply the different local organizations with instructors and organizers for every prospective and permanent organization, and to do our own advertising and create a growers' publicity fund, to organize dollars to boost us all along. As our industry advances, we become individually more ready to surmount difficulties and make our profession in keeping with the most approved methods in practice in other industries. Our national organization will stand out like the rock of Gibralter, to husband our resources, to meet any emergency.

"In Union there is Strength."

DISCUSSION.

In the discussion of this paper J. E. Pollworth spoke as follows:

The paper just read, is further proof of the grower's ability to combine his ideas with those of the other branches of the trade. As a wholesaler, I recognize the needs of an overhauling of our business, and it is getting it. The reference to a maximum and minimum wholesale selling price is not unsound. The great differences in cut flower prices to the public, permits fault finding by that class against the retail dealers, and it also counteracts all the good that advertising might do to make buyers, and to create good will favorable to greater uses of cut flowers. As we now conduct the wholesale market, it is the instinct of the wholesaler to exact all he can when the retailer needs the stock, and the retailer at the first chance lays down on his purchases to "bear the market," only to play into the hands of the department stores at glut times—one of our leaky methods of distribution. Department store competition, at such times, tantalizes the legitimate retail dealer, and brings discord where cooperation is most needed. We should eliminate the evils attending a short market, and the garbage barrel on a long market. When prices are high, the grower is playing in luck; when prices are low, we wonder how long they will last. Inflated high prices, either because of an extreme scarcity or a strong demand, await a reaction towards lowest prices when the supply becomes plentiful or the demand is light. The law of supply and demand can be stabilized, even under the present competitive democratic system of wholesale distribution of the growers' products. Competition cannot be throttled, but it can be regulated. The perishable nature of our products, does not prevent the pooling of the market's resources, so far as it relates to either extreme—a high or a low price. Sales should not be entirely based on what we are offered, but what they are worth as far as it is consistent to be put under control. Such prices, eventually lead to an equilibrium to safeguard the margin of profit to the grower and the retailer in accordance to the stimulating effects of the advertising of cut flowers. The demand would have a price limit fixed by a board of wholesalers, such board to be in a position to adjust itself, with the advertising bureau, to cope with the every day problems of the market, ready to meet the crises of a short market or a surplus of stock and thus open up the opportunities of our local advertising for response, and be effective when wanted. A maximum and minimum price market is worth trying.

FLORISTS' FERNS.

Spring Care.

To the fern grower, Easter is a less important season than Christmas, from the fact that the former is essentially a flower festival, while the latter finds the use for both flowers and foliage material, and when flowers are excessively high in price, as sometimes occurs at the glad Christmas season, the modern flower dealer is usually able and willing to call the attention of his customer to the beauties of a well-filled fern dish, a well-grown Boston, holly fern, or a cibotium. Then there are the tremendous numbers of nephrolepis, pteris and adiantums that are used as fillers in basket work, and these form quite an important portion of the Christmas stock in a progressive store. Of course, there are some ferns very happily used in Easter decorations, but comparatively little effort is made in this direction by the fern grower.

Owing to the frequent use of small plants of Asparagus plumosus and A. Sprengeri in table ferneries, many growers carry these plants along with their ferns, and in some cases perhaps descend to the use of the localism of calling them "Asparagus ferns"—a term that seems to have originated in some of the department stores. But be this as it may, the various asparagus are frequently found as a side issue in the fern houses, and not always a profitable one, from the fact that they occupy space for a much longer time than a crop of small ferns, and are frequently sold at very low prices.

However, there are many other things to claim the attention of the fern grower at this season, and one of them is the preparation of a crop of well-finished Boston or Scottii in readiness for the spring and summer trade, for notwithstanding the enormous numbers of nephrolepis that are ready for sale in the autumn, there is almost invariably a shortage of these useful plants in the spring, and a fair to good demand for them for use in porch and window boxes, in vases, and as single specimens for the decoration of the porch table.

To produce plants that are adapted for such purposes, they should be grown in light and well ventilated houses, given feed enough to keep the plants in good color, but not to make them soft, and these plants should be either pot of tub grown stock, for it will never do to dig up plants from a bench and then send them out for porch use before they are properly established.

The sun is now powerful, and it is generally needful to give a light sprinkling of shading material on the glass in March, but a very light shade, indeed, will be all that the nephrolepis require to keep them from burning, provided that the watering is attended to as often as may be necessary.

The young stock of table ferns for next fall's sales should now be in condition to pinch off from the seed pans to trays, and these tender young plants will need more shade than the nephrolepis already referred to, for it must be remembered that these tiny plants have not yet developed much of a root system, and consequently, are unable to withstand full exposure to the sun or strong wind from the ventilators. This does not mean that they must be everlastingly coddled, but simply cared for with a little common sense during the early stages of their career.

Fresh air is an essential to fern growing and the ventilation should be adapted to the condition of the weather, giving some air every day, and night ventilation when the outdoor temperature permits, bearing in mind that our climate is a very changeable one in March, and also April, and that night ventilation may need some attention.

Most of the ferns that are used commercially are not very particular in regard to soil, ordinary potting compost answering well in most instances, but for the benefit of the young seedlings, it is a good plan to have some lighter compost in the trays, to which they are transplanted from the seed pans, nor does this compost need to be pressed down as hard as a propagating bed, this open soil encouraging the roots of the young plant.

There is a certain fascination about fern growing, possibly in part owing to the fact that the ferns are among the oldest forms of vegetation on the face of the earth, and then their reproduction from seeds that form without any flowers appearing, makes them somewhat mysterious.

There is always the possibility of the appearance of seedling variations in the stock, this having been the origin of many of the favorite trade varieties, and a new variety of merit may prove to have considerable value. PTERIS.

American Dahlia Society.

THE EXHIBITION PLANS.

A meeting of the executive committee of the American Dahlia Society was held April 12, at the Pennsylvania hotel, New York, for the purpose of taking up the business of the autumn flower show. Notwithstanding the fact that the railroad strike was at its height at that time, there were present Richard Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md.; George L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I.; C. Louis Alling, West Haven, Conn.; I. S. Hendrickson, Flowerfield, N. Y.; William Noonan, Locust Valley, N. Y.; James Duthie, Oyster Bay, N. Y.; I. N. Sailor, Richmond Hill, N. Y.; and E. C. Vick. George W. Kerr, Doylestown, Pa., was expected to attend. He was ready and at the station, but was unable to get a train to New York. Professor George W. Fraser, of the Connecticut Agricultural College, was unable to leave the college at this time. The well attended meeting, under the adverse circumstances, shows the spirit of the committee.

It was decided that there would be three classes of exhibitors, namely: Commercial growers, those who grow tubers for sale; private growers, those who employ gardeners, but do not sell stock, and amateurs, those who grow their own plants, individually, except the work of plowing or spading and handling the fertilizer, who grow dahlias for their own pleasure and not for sale.

The dahlia show will be held September 27-29 at the Pennsylvania hotel, New York.

The exhibits of amateurs shall be admitted free.

Garden clubs will be limited to 100 square feet at a flat rate of $10.

Competitive exhibits may be displayed in the trade space, so that exhibitors who enter flowers for display only, and also flowers in competition, can keep all their exhibits together to make the best possible general display.

The price of trade space is to be $1 per square foot.

Admission, 50 cents. Trade tickets will be sold at $25 per hundred. Unused tickets will not be redeemed. Each exhibitor shall have three season tickets.

A schedule committee was appointed, consisting of James Duthie, C. Louis Alling, I. S. Hendrickson and William Noonan, with the suggestion that the schedule be prepared as soon as possible, to include dahlias, in the various classes, also other autumn flowers, fruits and vegetables.

The following trade space was taken at the meeting: I. N. Sailor, Richmond Hill, N. Y., 50 square feet; John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, N. Y., 150 square feet; C. Louis Alling, West Haven, Conn., 100 square feet; George L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I., 109 square feet; William Noonan, Locust Valley, N. Y., 50 square feet; Richard Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md., 100 square feet. As there are only about 2,000 square feet of trade space to be sold, it will be seen that a quarter of it has already been taken.

THE TRIAL GARDEN.

The trial garden of the American Dahlia Society will be conducted again this season at the Connecticut Agricultural College, Storrs, in charge of Professor George W. Fraser. Dahlias will be entered by the raiser or introducer, and the tubers may be sent by mail to Storrs, Conn., or by express to Willimantic, Conn., prepaid, until June 1; plants up to June 25. Co-Operative Publicity for Toronto Florists

The Toronto Retail Florists' Club meeting, April 19, to which the growers were invited for an amicable discussion for the further advancement of the profession, mention of which was made in our issue of April 17, page 696, brought the best evenings of enlightment, with out most of the members and one of such good publicity men as Geo. Asmus, of Chicago; F. C. W. Brown, of Cleveland, O.; and Wallace Eiss, of Buffalo, N. Y., as headliners. The programme was a most attractive one. Following these, were the local lights, J. H. Dunlop, of Richmond Hill, W. J. Gammage, of London; W. E. Groves, of Hamilton; Orlando O'Field, of Grimsby; E. B. Hamilton, of London; Walter Musson, of North Toronto; Thos. Manton, of Eglinton, and other men high in the profession. H. C. Dillemuth acted as chairman, and in his introductory remarks, after welcoming the guests and thanking his fellow members for their loyalty in coming out in such large numbers, promised them a treat in the further insight of the florist business.

Geore Asmus made a wonderful address, giving plans followed in Chicago and Milwaukee, Wis., whereby the growers and retailers have entered on a plan of co-operative advertising together, and worked out plans for disposing of surplus stock. In opening his address, he stated that he had been glad to come to Toronto in the hopes of imparting some knowledge which would assist the Canadians in clearing up some of their difficulties, and he hoped that it would enable them to build up a bigger and better business. He said in part: "The whole florist business is built up on the people's love of flowers. The child and the sick love flowers, and people generally like to be remembered with flowers. Due to that fact, the floral business exists, and not to any effort put forth by the florists themselves. If the florists put forth a united effort, they would greatly increase their business and make greater profits. Co-operative advertising is one form of getting together which has produced results. That was shown in the advertising scheme carried on lately by the S. A. F. in the United States and Canada. It was carried on the voluntary plan. It has been critized, but no one has said that it was not a success. The immense campaign with its wonderful slogan, "Say it With Flowers." brought excellent results at small cost, and it also brought many inquiries from men in other lines. These men were surprised when they heard how the campaign was conducted, and learned that $75,000 was all that the whole campaign cost. The growers can make a living if they create a demand. To do that they must advertise; the greenhouses are maintained because the people love flowers, but growers are not selling all they can grow. If the Quaker Oats company left its advertising exclusively to the retailer, sales would be but a fraction of what they are, after their scientific advertising campaigns. In Chicago, a plan has been worked out by which the growers join in advertising flowers. Seventy-five per cent of the florists have signed up. Chicago florists will spend $60,000 this year, and they will get back 100 per cent on the investment. There are some who sell cheap flowers and have bargains. Forget them. You are entitled to more money for the flowers because of the service you give. When I came to Toronto, I bought a local paper, and I did not see a line of advertising. You think because you know all about flowers, that the people do. Teach them to "Say it With Flowers." The commercial side of the plan, how to raise the money for advertising, should be shared by all, for all benefit. In Chicago, one per cent is collected from the growers on all flowers bought for sale in Chicago. This same plan is used in Milwaukee. As a result, the grower sells more flowers, because he helps the retailer to sell more, and both make more money. Some florists think it needs a calamity to make a market for flowers. They have the wrong idea. Flowers are not used only for funerals, and florists who think that, may be referred to as the terrible example. Scientific advertising will create a demand which will increase the profits of all the florists, and prevent the accumulation of stock.

"To get rid of the accumulation of flowers in Chicago, we have adopted a novel scheme. A central market has been formed with a high salaried man in charge, looking for markets to dispose of flowers when there is a glut. This is being done in the hotels and other business places at a reasonable price, and it is looked upon as a good advertising plan, and good policy to do this."

F. C. W. Brown, of Cleveland, outlined the constitution of the National Flower Growers' Association, with the idea that the Canadians might wish to organize a similar body. He gave its aims and objects, and drew lessons from the present situation in the floral business. He said that in other lines of business, the retailer fills his shelves with stock, but in the floral business, the growers carry the stock, and the retailers merely order as there is a demand for it. If the grower has a poor season, he has a lot on hand, but in the analysis, he has himself to blame for the situation, for he ought to advertise and not leave it all to the retailer. The grower and retailer have a common interest to make a living out of the sale of flowers and should co-operate to get the best results. With co-operative advertising in creating a demand in a big way, any oversupply will be easily sold. The retailer will carry more stock, for he, too, will feel the increased demand, and have to carry a large quantity of flowers. In advertising, tell the people the truth, always. Get up some plan of co-operative advertising. Start a plan, and any corrections may be made after a start is made. The growers have 90 per cent invested in the florist business, but they leave it all to the 10 per cent to create the business, which is to give them returns on the investment. This is not right. The grower should take his share, and should start now. Wallace Eiss outlined the Buffalo plan, where $11,000 has been raised by voluntary contributions from 61 retailers and 50 growers. It was raised on the plan that the man who gives $40 gets the benefit of the whole $11,000.

W. E. Groves, of Hamilton, gave an excellent address on co-operation and several others followed, including E. B. Hamilton, Orlando O'Field, John H. Dunlop and W. W. Gammage.

Then Walter Muston was called upon. He stated that he had absorbed a lot of information. All the statements were truthful, and the point of it all is to get together and act. If all get together any desired end can be reached. It was at this point that George Asmus called on the gathering to show if they were solid on the idea of co-operation and advertising, and all voted by standing vote that they were ready for action. President H. G. Dillemuth then announced that a meeting would be called immediately for the purpose of getting together on a common basis of co-operation.

The club rooms were nicely decorated with Canadian cedar, combined with the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack. The new Dunlop rose was prominent everywhere, and a vase of specimen Columbia from the Dale estate was given much attention. The ladies of the club, of which Mrs. Moore was on the refreshment committee, delighted the palate, so that with songs included, nothing was lacking.

Among those visiting from out of town were: George Asmus, Chicago; F. C. W. Brown, Cleveland, O.; W. Randall, Chicago; Wallace Eiss, Buffalo, N. Y.; W. W. Gammage and E. B. Hamilton, London, Ont.; W. E. Groves, E. Grey and Frank Smith, Hamilton, Ont.; W. Wilson, Woodstock, Ont.; Orlando O'Field, Grimsby, Ont., and others.

Detroit Florists Adopt Publicity Plan.

The meeting of the Detroit Florists' Club, held at the Hotel Statler, April 13; with "Publicity" scheduled for the subject for consideration, brought out a large attendance, over 40 members being on hand to greet the speakers of the evening. J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill., was present in the dual capacity of secretary of the American Flower Growers' Association, and advocate of publicity by florists in a co-operative way, such as has been adopted in Chicago, Milwaukee, Wis., and Buffalo, N. Y., and H. V. Swenson, of the Florists' Publicity Service Bureau of the S. A. F., was also in attendance, and spoke on the Chicago plan and progress.

Albert Pochelon, secretary of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, and chairman of the local publicity committee, opened the discussion, and related his experiences while in Chicago, when the Allied Florists' Association adopted a plan of collecting funds for both the local and S. A. F. national publicity. He was followed by Philip Breitmeyer, who made a strong plea for united action by all the club members, and approved of the equitable plan of assessment that, in its operation, receives the support of retailers, wholesalers and growers. Some discussion of the plan followed before the principal speaker of the evening, J. F. Ammann, delivered his address, speaking first on advertising and the merits of the plan suggested, and at the conclusion, outlined the merits of the new growers' organization. It has often been the pleasure of the members of the trade in Detroit to listen to Mr. Ammann on phases of florticulture and subjects of general interest, all ably presented by him, but on this occasion, he excelled his previous efforts to a degree that inspired everyone present. He eloquently described the great benefits of advertising as practiced co-operatively by other interests than the florists' trade, and held out great hopes, supported by logical arguments for splendid results if the Detroit club and all clubs, adopt the plan suggested.

Addressing the growers present, particularly, he outlined the progress of the American Flower Growers' Association, its aims and condition of membership. His enthusiasm and sincerity, coupled with his well known interest in all that is beneficial to the trade, completely settled the matter in the minds of all present, that there was wisdom in following his counsel in the two issues presented, and after rounds of applause, all signed the agreement to adopt the plan for publicity which will be in full operation May 1.

To arrange the final details of the system, and to consider the proportion of the funds to be assigned to national publicity through the S. A. F., a committee was appointed consisting of Robert Rahaley and H. L. Blend, representing the wholesalers; A. J. Stahelin and Joseph Streit, for the growers, and Peter Papes and Robert Jean, for the retailers. This committee, co-operating with the permanent publicity committee, will hold a meeting at 2 o'clock on the afternon of April 24, at the store of the L. Bemb Floral Co.

EASTER TRADE.

PEORIA, ILL.—B. Juerjens says that while prices were much better than last year, the severe snowstorm held business back, although total sales for the 1920 Easter trade showed a little increase in money value. In plants, Easter lilies were the only item in short supply, and these with bulbous stock had the best call. There was a good showing of cut flowers, enough for all needs, with carnations, callas, lilies and bulbous stock most sought. Business the early part of the week with excellent weather, was very satisfactory.

SPOKANE, WASH.—Hoyt Bros. report a 30 per cent increase, with prices better than a year ago and with an adequate supply of both cut flowers and plants to meet the Easter demand. It could not be called a good cut flower Easter, roses, carnations and violets being offered in the best quantities. In plants, the degree of popularity, ranged from lilies, tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, hydrangeas, roses, cinerarias to primulas. It was a lively plant Easter.

BOISE, IDAHO.—The Boise Floral Co. reports Easter business about 25 per cent greater than last year with prices somewhat higher. The supply of pot lilies was slightly below the demand, but cut flowers in general were plentiful enough to permit a good cleanup. When lilies were exhausted, everything else moved freely. In cut flowers, roses and carnations were leaders in favor. Business in general has been keeping up well, with stock of good quality.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—With prices higher than in 1919, Henry Smith reports a 10 per cent increase in this year's Easter trade. There was an ample supply of plants, with lilies moving slowly, although there were enough to meet the demand. Roses, hydrangeas, primroses, etc., moved freely, but the call for tulips, hyacinths and daffodils lagged. In cut flowers, the favorities were sweet peas, choice roses, violets and lilies.

RACINE, WIS.—With prices of lilies about on a par with last year and cut flowers higher, the 1920 Easter trade showed an increase in volume of sales of about 50 per cent, compared with a year ago. In plants, lilies and bulbous stock fell short of requirements but cut flowers were equal to all needs. In the latter, the heavy call was for Easter lilies, callas, roses, carnations and sweet peas, according to the Brux Greenhouses.

TORONTO, ONT.—With Easter prices showing about the same level as in 1919, this year's business, according to Dunlop's, recorded a 35 per cent increase. There was a good supply of plants, the smaller offerings least salable, the favorities being lilies, azaleas, hydrangeas and genistas. With violets and sweet peas most in favor, all cut flowers moved freely, with enough for all needs. Business in general throughout the city was very good.

MONTREAL, QUE.—With prices on pot stock higher than in 1919, J. Luck had a 15 per cent increase in the volume of 1920 Easter sales. With a shortage of violets, sweet peas, lily of the valley and orchids, the cut flower supply sold out completely. In plants, hydrangeas, not being well colored, did not move well, the best demand being for lilies and hyacinths.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—The Joy Floral Co. recorded a gain of 38 per cent in Easter business compared with the corresponding period of 1919. The supply in both cut flowers and plants was equal to the demand and higher prices were paid without complaint. Pot lilies were the best sellers, with tulips and hyacinths meeting with limited favor. Roses and carnations showed fine quality.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—J. M. Fox & Son, Inc., report an increase in Easter sales as compared with 1919, although prices were not advanced, and from appearances they are declining each year in cut flowers. The supply in all lines was ample. Plant baskets moved off slowly while there was a good call for pot stock. Spring flowers led the demand with a limited call for roses.

DOVER, O.—Easter business was much larger than a year ago and prices more satisfactory, according to C. Betscher. The plant supply was ample; in fact, larger than in previous years, and everything sold in fine shape. The same condition prevailed as regards cut flowers. From all indications spring business and the Mothers' Day demand will be most gratifying.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The Louise Flower Shop had a greatly increased volume of Easter sales, with an adequate supply of both plants and cut flowers of fine quality. With prices much better than last year, it surpassed all corresponding periods since the opening of this establishment. Everything enjoyed a brisk demand.

SAVANNAH, GA.—With prices higher, A. C. Oelschig & Sons, had a 10 per cent better Easter trade than in 1919. Pot plants were plentiful with Easter lilies leading the call. There was a heavy demand for corsages and roses, and the cut flower receipts were limited. Business Easter morning was interfered with by a heavy rain.

PORTLAND, ORE.—Clark Bros. report 25 per cent better Easter business than last year with prices slightly higher. There was an ample supply of cut flowers as well as pot plants. Easter lilies dominated in the latter even at the high figures at which they sold. Corsage and small flowers had a heavy call.

TAMPA, FLA.—According to the Tampa Floral Co., 1920 Easter business was about 25 per cent better than last year at normal prices, with a good supply of both cut flowers and plants, flowering varieties of the latter being most in demand. Taken as a whole, business was very satisfactory.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Abele Bros. report that a shortage of stock in both plants and cut flowers made it impossible to pass last year's Easter sales volume, notwithstanding the fact that prices ranged a little higher than in 1919.

SPRINGFIELD, O.—A 20 per cent better Easter trade than in 1919 and prices more satisfactory is the report of the Leedle Rosary. This firm makes a specialty of cut roses exclusively, and no plants were handled.

DES MOINES, IA.—James S. Wilson, who has been on the sick list for some time, is recovering slowly.

ABERDEEN, SO. DAK.—C. A. Pilkington, who has been with Ben Siebrecht here for sometime, expects to start a growing establishment of his own in the near future.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—W. H. Seel, Milwaukee, secretary of the Wisconsin State Florists' Association, will be asked to address the florists' club of this city on co-operative advertising and publicity.

BOSTON, MASS.—The Massachusetts Gladiolus Society has elected officers for the ensuing year as follows: Chas. Fairbanks, Lexington, president; S. E. Spencer, Woburn, and John Zeestratten, Ashland, vice-presidents; C. W. Brown, Ashland, treasurer; Robert R. Walker, Mansfield, secretary.

OBITUARY.

Joseph Hall Campbell.

In the death of Joseph H. Campbell, who passed away April 16, age 85 years, Philadelphia, Pa., loses one of its oldest and most esteemed members of the trade.

Mr. Campbell's entry into the business was, when 13 years of age, he became an errand boy for Daniel Maupay, who had greenhouses at Allegheny and Germantown avenues. After serving an apprenticeship here, and continuing with Mr. Maupay, and afterwards for a time in seed stores, he in 1871 went into business for himself at Germantown avenue and Venango street, where he purchased an acre of ground which he gradually covered with his greenhouses and store. He was a good grower, handling a general line of stock, much of which he retailed in his store.

In 1891 he retired, and the business was carried on by his sons. Some years later, the property was sold and greenhouses erected at Pennlyn, Pa., while the retail business was conducted at 3530 Germantown avenue. This is managed by his oldest son, Chas. H. Campbell, while his brother, Joseph K. Campbell has charge of the greenhouses at Pennlyn. George E. Campbell, another son, is in business for himself as a rose grower at Flourtown, Pa. He also leaves two daughters, Clara M. Campbell and Mrs. J. C. Miller.

Mr. Campbell was a pleasant, affable gentleman, with whom it was a pleasure to do business. He was a hard worker, and in the early days, for many years in the spring time, sold plants on the Market street curb near 13th street, when such privileges were allowed. His funeral was held April 21 from his late residence in Ambler, Pa. K.

Charles Ammann.

Charles Ammann, for many years well known in New York and vicinity as a successful florist and nurseryman, died at his home in Yonkers, N. Y., April 17, age 80 years. He was born in Heidelberg, Germany, and came to this country in 1857. For several years, he had greenhouses in the Harlem section of New York, and had planted many trees for the city in that neighborhood. For the past 20 years, his attention had been given to his nursery on the Tuckahoe road, Yonkers. He is survived by his widow, one son and three daughters.

John M. Lewis.

John M. Lewis, well known as a propagator of new peonies and gladioli, and a life-long resident of Copenhagen, N. Y., died at San Diego, Calif., March 27, age 73 years. The deceased, accompanied by Mrs. Lewis, went to California early in January, in the hope that the change of climate would benefit his health, but he gradually grew weaker and died as the result of an operation. Funeral services were held April 9 with burial in the family lot in Riverside cemetery, Copenhagen.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—The Apollo Flower Shop, 4 East Eleventh street, has been purchased by the Kansas City Floral Co., which will conduct both stores.

PEMBROKE, N. Y.—Arthur A. Kirchhoff has purchased the entire stock of the new gladioli, General Pershing. Prof. A. C. Beal and Gloxinia, originated by W. E. Kirchhoff, Sr.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Fred Haupt, florist, has purchased the three-story office building at 506 West Jefferson street, the consideration being approximately $50,000. He will lease the building to a realty firm.—H. G. W.

COAL miners are to receive a 27 per cent increase. This means higher coal prices, another burden on railroads.

SPANISH IRIS blooms are reported on sale in the Milwaukee market, and some growers are wondering whether the plant quarantine was violated in the importation of the bulbs.

SECRETARY MEREDITH, of the department of agriculture, is being spoken of as a presidential candidate, and action to have his name presented to the democratic national convention was taken, April 16, at a conference of Iowa party leaders.

OFFICERS of 70 large corporations with an aggregate capital of $5,000,000,000, including the Pennsylvania railroad, Standard Oil, American Telephone & Telegraph, Goodyear Rubber and Du Pont Powder interests, conferring in Philadelphia, Pa., with executives of 100 colleges agreed to furnish 620 American universities with definite specifications of the training required for those industries, and to co-operate financially and otherwise in training men for technical executives.

New York Flower Show Committee.

President A. M. Henshaw of the New York Florists' Club, has appointed Chas. H. Totty, W. H. Duckham, A. L. Miller, W. R. Pierson, Max Schling, F. H. Traendly, John Young and A. M. Henshaw as the flower show committee. This committee will cooperate with a similar committee, appointed by the Horticultural Society of New York, and when this joint committee is organized, will have full power to arrange for the eighth national flower show to be held in the spring of 1921, and to carry out all details in connection with same. JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Spring Buying Brisk.

Dun's report of Chicago trade for the week ending April 17 says: "Freight congestion due to the railroad strike has been a serious hindrance to business this week and has made necessary the shutting down, wholly or in part, of a number of industrial plants. There is no let up, however, in the pressure to buy from both retailers and wholesalers, and if April should fail to keep up the succession of monthly high records for trade, it will be only because the goods cannot be obtained or shipped. Spring-like weather again has brought out the shopping crowds and a rise in the flood of orders from the country for merchandise of all kinds. Naturally with these conditions prices have stiffened again and advances are more numerous.

Hands Up!

Master plumbers of Birmingham, Ala., are required to furnish chauffeurs to drive union plumbers to and from work, and the chauffeurs are not permitted to do any plumbing work, according to findings of a committee of allied civic clubs which investigated the recent demand of the union men for a wage of $12 a day. The committee said its inquiry had also disclosed that 67 journeymen plumbers dominated the plumbing work of the city; that use of apprentices in union shops was forbidden with a view to restricting the number of available plumbers, and that unskilled labor was not permitted to work on plumbing jobs even where no skill was required.

Government Jobs Unattractive.

A wide observer says: "Did you notice how quickly the real business men of this country left Washington when the war was over? I figured that several men in Washington were giving their services to the government at $1 per annum, while their aggregate earning power was $35,000,000 per annum. I would like to know, particularly, why Rosenwald dropped his government job in Washington as quickly as possible and climbed out for Chicago. I heard he was disgusted with government service."

Another able business man—among the ablest in this country—tells his friends: "I would like the scientists to name the bug or microbe that gets into a man who works for the government. During the war, I found myself under government salary and direction. I found that there was no responsibility over me, and that I was working for nobody. You talk about the government of the United States, but who and where is it? Let any man try to find the government of this country.

"Does the government recognize efficiency or inefficiency? Does it discharge for laziness or promote for good work? I found myself near the danger point. The government bug was getting under my skin, and I knew I would soon be a tax upon society or the national treasury. Thank God, government control over me ended, and I am once more a free citizen—free to do an honest day's work, and take a conscientious interest in it."—The Wall Street Journal Straws.

American Rose Annual for 1920.

The American Rose Annual for 1920, edited for the American Rose Society by J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa., which is just off the press, contains much in its 188 pages that will make it a welcome addition to the library of any rose lover. The book is handsomely illustrated, the frontispiece being a color reproduction of the new unnamed American hardy everblooming climbing rose, "66 H. 1916, originated by Captain George C. Thomas, Jr. The scope of the annual has been broadened considerably compared with previous issues, there being 45 articles included in the contents, ably handled by well known authorities, whose topics have been well chosen and cover a wide range, among which are "The Work and Aims of the American Rose Society," by its president, Robert Pyle: "Outdoor Rose Growing as a Recreation," by Rev. Edmund M. Mills; "Rose Breeding Notes," by Dr. W. Van Fleet; "The Hardy Everblooming Climber," by Captain George C. Thomas, Jr.; "Night Growth of Roses," by A. W. Greeley; "Can We Have Plant Patents?" by J. Edward Moon; "The Story of Baby Ramblers," by F. L. Mulford; "Five Years' Experience With Own-Root vs. Budded Roses," by Wm. P. CHARLES H. TOTTY COMPANY, Madison, New Jersey

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The regular meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, N. Y., April 14. President Thomas Twigg occupied the chair and Joseph A. Winsocki and Robert Purcell were elected active members and six petitions for active membership were received. Henry Gaut, James MacDonald and Joseph Adler judged the monthly exhibits and their awards were as follows: Three heads lettuce, James McCarthy, 1st: three heads cauliflower. Peter Smith, 1st: 12 mixed antirrhinum, Peter Smith, 1st. President Twigg's special prize for table decoration, brought out lots of competition with Louis Hubbard, first. William Milsted, second, and Peter Smith, third. A vase of roses, exhibited by George Wood, received honorable mention.

A letter was received from the Park Garden Club, inviting the society to attend the iris and tulip show they intend to hold at Flushing, L. I., in the near future. Mr. Van, grower, of Holland, and James Sperling, of New York, were present, and both of them gave a short talks. This was one of the best meetings ever held by the society, both in attendance and exhibits.

The exhibits for the May 12 meeting will be Darwin tulips, 12 pink, 12 mauve and 12 mixed.

PLENTY OF STOCK TO GO AROUND.

There is plenty of stock to go around at this writing, but the market is gradually improving, and an advance in prices on almost all items can be expected toward the end of this or the early part of next week. American Beauty roses are moving nicely, and the same holds true for Mrs. Chas. Russell, Columbia and Premier. Sunburst, Ophelia, Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, White Killarney, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Milady, Champ Weiland, Montrose, Mrs. George Shawyer, Hoosier Beauty, Richmond, My Maryland and a few other varieties, including some of the miniature kinds, are in large supply, but are moving better now than they have been the past few weeks. Carnations are still in good supply, and considerable pushing is needed to move them, even in quantity lots at reduced figures. Orchids continued to command high prices, and the same holds good for lily of the valley. Gardenias are plentiful, but clean up regularly. Sweet peas are seen in large numbers at a few of the houses, and some particularly fine stock is now obtainable in this line at very reasonable figures. Snapdragons are quite a factor in the market this week and are to be seen prominently featured in some of the window displays of the leading stores. Pansies and jonquils are selling in large lots at low prices, together with narcissi from the south. Violets are about done. Lilies and callas are to be had in quantity. A few freesias are seen. Calendulas, mignonette, iris, lupines, anemones, tulips, stocks and other miscellaneous seasonable flowers are available. Greens are in strong demand. Outside of the calls for wedding and funeral flowers, the local trade has been somewhat quiet the past week, but is much better at this writing.

ARBOR DAY NEXT WEEK, APRIL 30.

The funeral of the late Roger C. Sullivan, April 17, called for a large quantity of flowers, there being close to 1,000 designs sent to the home, notwithstanding the "please omit flowers" in the obituary in the local dailies. Wm. F. Schofield probably had the largest number of orders, followed closely by C. Frauenfelder, W. J. Smyth, Bohannon Floral Co., Lewis & Rocca, George Wittbold Co., George Wienhoeber and others. Arthur Weatherwax had charge of the flowers at the home, and Wm. F. Schofield from the home to the cemetery. There were easily $18,000 worth of flowers at the funeral, while some in the trade estimated it nearer the $25,000 mark.

Governor Lowden, in a proclamation asking for observance of "Ship by Truck" week, May 17-22, says the transportation system of the country will not be complete until highways are improved so as to permit the use of both passenger cars and trucks throughout the entire year and that all citizens interested in transportation should during that week give especial thought and attention to the economic development of such a highway system for the delivery of the products of our farms and factories.

EXTRA SPECIAL STOCK BILLED ACCORDINGLY.

Practically every florist in the city is boosting business for Mother's day. From present indications everyone will be using the stamps while large quantities of the posters have already been distributed. There is also a good call for slides, electros and folders. Any one of these items may be obtained through the wholesale houses or direct from the Florists' Publicity Service Bureau, 431 South Dearborn street.

The Perfecto, a restaurant long familiar to wholesale cut flower market visitors, closed its doors April 24, the building being slated to come down. Chris. Pederson conducts a retail store in the same building and will also have to vacate. He has a new location in sight.

All the retail florists who are members of the Allied Florists' Association are having a special sale on roses all this week at $1.50, $3.00, $5.00 and $7.00 per dozen. The copy appearing in the dailies was fine and the sale is proving a great success.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has a good crop of Columbia roses coming on as well as several of the newer varieties which will be ready for cutting in quantity soon. Some particularly fine yellow snapdragons are now being featured at this store.

Ben Levy, of the Zech & Mann force, who was on strike duty at Kewanee, the past week, with the battalion of the 11th infantry, Illinois reserve militia, is again attending to his job at the store.

Fred Burki and son, A. H. Burki, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.; who have been spending several months at Los Angeles, Calif., passed through here last week on their way east.

Art Dressler, with the Weiland-Risch Co., and Miss Cecile Marony, were united in marriage, April 17, and have the best wishes of their many friends for a happy and prosperous future.

Allan Gehring, of the Bassett & Washburn store force has quit the wholesale business to open a retail candy store and ice cream parlor on the north side.

Erne & Co. are looking forward to a big Mothers' day trade owing to the popularity of the occasion and the extra advertising that is being done.

The Van Buren Florist, located in the building at the southwest corner of Van Buren and Wabash, will have to vacate their quarters May 1.

John Fuhrmann, 3164 North Clark street, left last week on a visit to California. His son, Robert, is looking after the store.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. report business as good considering conditions and notice a great improvement in the demand this week.

The John Kruchten Co. has handled a fine supply of sweet peas all season and reports the sales of same as very satisfactory.

Eric Johnson says that the A. L. Randall Co. will have peonies to offer for Mothers' day again this season.

William A. Hansen, of the E. C. Amling Co., returned last week from a successful northern business trip.

At Peter Reinberg's store the receipts of roses are large and are moving nicely this week at better prices.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are moving a large quantity of jonquils in addition to its regular supply of stock.

Kennicott Bros. Co. is beginning to talk peonies, which reminds one that the season is pretty close.

Miss May Schultz, with the J. A. Budlong Co., is enjoying a pleasant visit at St. Petersburg, Fla.

W. H. Hilton, 1509 East Fifty-third street, says he will give up the retail florist business May 1.

George Asmus attended a meeting of the growers and retailers at Toronto, Ont., April 19.

FUNERAL WORK PRINCIPAL ITEM.

There has been quite a decrease in business since Easter, and with the exception of funeral work, there has been very little going on. Quotations on all stock have taken quite a drop in the wholesale market. There is a very large supply to be disposed of, and the wholesalers are not haggling over prices. The crop of roses is now at its height, and the very finest blooms may be had at low figures. Russell is about the only variety that is holding its own in price. There is very little demand for lilies, except for funeral work. Outdoor tulips are in heavy supply and very cheap. Carnations are in heavy supply. Much of the stock is showing the effect of the hot weather and it is somewhat difficult to obtain high grade blooms. Violets are still hanging on and are in but little demand except for shipping trade and funeral work. Some elegant peonies are to be had. These are priced at $3.00 per dozen.

NOTES.

The Alameda County Floral Society met during the past week in Oakland for the purpose of perfecting plans for its annual spring flower show, which will take place at the Hotel Oakland, April 25-27. (J. Seannavino) will have the management of the exhibition, which will be devoted to roses, carnations, bulbous stock and spring flowering shrubs. The president of the society is J. A. Kettlewell, and the secretary is A. F. Schulte.

The Menlo Park Horticultural Society will hold a sweet pea exhibition this spring, the date to be determined later. The sweet pea shows of this society have always been largely attended by the trade from the city, owing to the general excellence of the displays.

Alexander Rose, proprietor of the St. Francis Woods Nursery, reports a strong demand for flowering and ornamental plants this spring. He has specialized in ericas for a number of years and grows many thousands for the florist and nursery trade of this city.

The California State Floral Society held its monthly meeting, April 9. Installation of officers was the chief purpose of the session. There was a large attendance ,despite inclement weather. Carl Smith lectured on the "Poetry of Flowers."

The Lynch Nursery Company, of Menlo Park, are busy propagating chrysanthemums for this coming season. They will plant 250 000 this year, all grown single stems. J. A. Axell of this city will handle the cut for his shipping trade.

M. H. Ebel, of Sacramento, was a visitor during the week. He says Easter trade with him was far ahead of expectations. Flowering plants were his best seller, although he noted a heavy call for cut flowers of every description.

Martin A. Poss, of the Floral City Nurseries at San Mateo, reports a wonderful Easter business. He was fortunate in having large stocks of flowering plants and lilies ready and sold out completely in all lines.

Nat Rolleri is handling a large cut of tulips from San Leandro and San Lorenzo. He shipped large quantities of bulbous stock during Easter week to Nevada and Washington.

The Francis Floral Company says that Easter trade this year showed a great improvement over previous years. The abundance of stock helped trade materially.

Edward Schwerin, leading adiantum grower, who has embarked in the growing of foliage and flowering plants, says he is greatly pleased over his Easter sales.

Fred C. Jaeger is a great admirer of Cibotium Schiedei as a decorative plant and always carries a large stock in various sizes at his store.

BUSINESS BACK TO NORMAL.

Trade has been about normal the past week. The earlier days found business somewhat dull, but the latter period made up the average. More stock comes into the market than can be disposed of, and as a consequence, the better grades go first. The Sixth street market was jammed with prospective buyers all day Saturday, and an enormous amount of stock was disposed of in this way. Roses are plentiful, except in the extra special lengths. War times have made many good flower buyers in this city ,and they want the best. Carnations of every grade are plentiful, and the prices they sell at cover a wide range. Greens are of uncertain quality, although there is enough coming into the market.

NOTES.

C. E. Critchell is popular, not only as a wholesale florist, but also as a rooter for the baseball team. He will be on hand in Chicago when Cincinnati plays in that city.

G. Brunners Sons have some fine rambler roses in pots. Too late for Easter, they are good stock now. White Perkins and Excelsa being most worthy of note.

On Vine street, Tromey's Flower Shop, Fred Gear, W. H. Gear and Eck Bros., all report exceptionally good business for the past holiday.

Chas. Jones, Walnut Hills, says his business is ever on the increase, a natural condition when one considers his untiring efforts to please.

Robert Kelly has been busy with corsage and wedding work. Mrs. Kelly is very skillful in arranging bridal bouquets. K.

GOOD CLEANUP AT NORMAL PRICES.

While the usual after-Easter lull marked the early part of the past week, there has been more than enough business to keep the dealers' floors clear of stock, and prices have been well maintained on all lines. The local greenhouses are now supplying practically everything used in this market, and in those cases where California is being drawn on, the arrivals show a 'tween season quality that makes sale at once necessary. The local cut of orchids, mostly cattleyas, Ophelia and Columbia roses and lily of the valley, has been especially good, and one of the greenhouses is sending in some of the best sweet peas seen here this season. There has been heavier delivery of lilies than is usual after Easter, due to slow blooming. Carnations are showing steady improvement, both as to strength of stem and depth of color, and there has been no difficulty in maintaining prices in the face of a much increased supply. The pot offerings are all selling well, although some report trouble in getting a full and varied assortment.

NOTES.

The store of Felix Rosaia was damaged to the extent of several hundred dollars last week, when the falling wall of the Hotel Lincoln, which was destroyed by fire, struck the back end of the block in which the shop was located. Water also caused a great deal of damage and prevented the opening of the store for a full day.

An odd case was presented in the local police court last week when Irwin Carter, landscape gardener, was fined $150, and given a suspended sentence of 90 days in the county jail, for ste-ing flowers from the graves at the Lakeview cemetery. The only defense the prisoner offered was, that he "loved flowers so much."

Rosaia Bros. handled all of the pot hydrangeas from the Thomas Floral Company last week, and were practically in control of this business for the town. The red tulips and Ophelia roses coming in for this firm were of top quality, and drew many comments.

Max Smith, of the Rotary Florists, at Portland, Ore., a visitor during the week, says that with the rose festival and the Shrine convention coming at the same time, florists of Portland are looking forward to the most active 10 days of their business life.

Henry Day, in charge of the Orpheum Floral Company, showed a novelty from a local grower last week, a cross between a jonquil and a narcissus, having a deep yellow double center and a paler yellow in the petals.

McCoy's are at last located in their new store on Second avenue. The storeroom is large, with an excellent set of display windows, and one of the finest refrigerators on the Pacific coast has been installed.

Some fine cattleyas and sweet peas are being cut at the greenhouses of the Hollywood Gardens, and both are cleaning up in nice shape. The carnations are showing steady improvement.

A surprising increase in the number of accounts over a year ago is one of the causes of rejoicing at the Woodland Flower Shop. Harry Crouch states that every line of business is good.

William Goldberry, of Kenney's Home of Flowers, spent the week-end in Vancouver. A nice business is reported for this shop. H. M.

LIMITED SUPPLY MEETS BRISK SALE.

Business during the past week has been good with an abundance of cut flowers, but a shortage of plants. The former have been closing out each day at good figures with the street merchants getting their share. Carnations are shortening up and the best command as high as $8 per 100, with seconds at $3 and $4. Indoor sweet peas are nearly over and short stemmed stock is about all that is in demand. Delphiniums and French irises are arriving in small quantities and are in great favor at $5 and $6 per dozen.

NOTES.

The florists' association held its meeting April 13 at the City club. After a hasty dinner, the chairman, called upon the salesmen of both markets to express their views regarding co-operation, but the discussion closed after a few short remarks. Professor De Chance of the Sheldon School of Business Science then gave a blackboard talk on "Salesmanship," which was very interesting.

William Thurston, the hustling manager of the Boston Flower Exchange, is getting his auto ready for a trip over the Mohawk trail.

John Cooke, manager for John O'Brien, is spending a week's vacation in Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington.

Charles E. Evans is experiencing considerable difficulty in securing sufficient labor for his establishment.

The Boston Floral Co. is having a fine demand for artificial wreaths for Memorial day trade. S. K. G.

BUSINESS IMPROVES AFTER QUIET PERIOD.

Trade has been rather slow the past week, but some improvement is now being manifested. There is an abundance of tulips, snapdragons, stocks, sweet alyssum, etc. Callas are almost a drug on the market. There are violets and orchids in abundance, and at present, an oversupply of sweet peas.

NOTES.

Wallace R. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., was entertained at dinner, April 16, when he was the guest of the Rochester Rose Society at which time he addressed that organization. The arrangements for the affair were in the capable hands of George B. Hart, E. P. Wilson and George T. Boucher.

Due to the railroad strike in the east, shipments of flowers from that section and along the Hudson river have been discontinued. Violets, however, are being received by parcel post.

At a meeting of the florists' association, April 19, it was decided to hold a flower show in November at which chrysanthemums and a general display of plants will be featured.

Horace J. Head is making an extensive business trip through the state of Pennsylvania.

Colin T. Ogston is kept busy with spring planting at the Kimball greenhouses.

H. P. Neun is growing excellent lily of the valley at his range.

STRIKE CAUSES SEVERE HANDICAP.

The past week has presented extreme difficulties, and brought about a situation unprecedented in the flower trade of this city. For the whole of this period, nothing has been received or shipped out by express, an embargo being placed on the receipt of all packages. The local parcel or package service, which is handled by the railroads, who transport boxes and baskets of produce and other goods to and from the city, if the same are delivered to them and called for at their destination, and which accommodation was largely used by all branches of the trade, was also suspended entirely for the first four days of the week, and was only partially restored the last two days. Under these conditions, extreme measures were necessary to keep things moving. The parcel post, which owing to the reduced train service was greatly handicapped, took packages, "subject to delay." Autos were used to the limit and helped out, both in bringing in stock and in its delivery within a radius of 25 to 50 miles, but all long distance shipments were held up until the resumption of something like regular railroad service. This, of course, means a great loss to wholesalers and growers. The cold rooms of the former were packed to the limit with first-class flowers of all kinds, there being two or three times as much stock coming in daily as could be handled locally. One of the large wholesalers said it had been the most disastrous week of the season, and nothing like it had ever been experienced before. With a number of prominent growers, roses were in full crop. Sweet pea men also were cutting excellent stock in quantity. Snapdragon was at its height. Callas, daisies, calendulas, in fact everything, was in full supply. There had been a lot of stock carried over from the week before, which it was thought might be worked off on Monday, but the sudden strike situation brought us up against a stone wall, and matters at once became worse instead of better. As cut flowers are shipped at purchasers' risk, they refused to take the chance, which at once cut off half the business. Had Easter Sunday fallen as it did last year, this would have been Easter week, and we have that to be thankful for. We are told there is likelihood that all embargoes will be lifted soon, which we hope will turn out to be true.

April 19.—The market opened with quantities of left over stock, to which were added heavy Monday morning shipments. There was a moderate local demand, and some from out-of-town, but most outside buyers were waiting for the good news that the embargoes had been lifted, which was known here early today and sent immediately to all important buyers, and others who depend on this market for their flowers. It looks now as if all transportation troubles are over, if the delayed shipments in all lines do not swamp the service for the time being.

NOTES.

Carl Corts in speaking of the Dunlop rose, as seen growing at Richmond Hill in the Dunlop greenhouses, said that no one could ask for anything better. It is a strong grower, apparently very free, and throws up strong shoots from the bottom. The flowers are wonderfully large, of good color and fragrant. All the varieties at this range were in splendid condition. Miller & Son, in the Toronto district, who have quite a range of glass, were very successful growers, their stock in all lines being such as any florist would be proud of. The federal horticultural board, although they agreed to admit novelties for the purposes of propagation, have refused John H. Dunlop permission to bring or sell any Canadian grown cuttings of his new rose into the United States. Fortunately there had been a little stock imported before the ban, and this is being worked up by the Chas. H. Totty Co., Madison, N. J., for Mr. Dunlop.

A very good lawn effect is seen in the east window of the Henry F. Michell Co.'s store. In front of a painted background of trees and shrubbery is a growing grass lawn, bordered with marguerites on one side and genistas, low plants in full flower, on the other. A miniature dwelling, leading to which is a white pebbled path, is a feature. Standing to one side, is a full sized figure of a lady dressed in spring costume. The arrangement as a whole is striking, and best of all, Philip Fruend, who arranged it, says it helps to sell grass seed.

Mothers' day is approaching, but there is as yet no indications of any concerted movement of the trade of this city to feature, or increase its popularity as a floral holiday. There are numerous examples of successful and profitable efforts in other communities, where returns have been most satisfactory, but this staid old Quaker village is a law unto itself, and only moves when the spirit prompts it. Some day it will—and then look out.

Berger Bros. moved, April 16, into their new store, 1609 Sansom street, one block west of the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co. and A. M. Campbell, and one block south of the Ludlow, Ranstead and Mole street centers. They have a central location, convenient to the Pennsylvania and B. & O. railroad stations and express offices.

K.

BANGOR, ME.—According to A. J. Loder, 1920 Easter sales showed an increase of nearly 60 per cent, with profits in about the same ratio. The plant receipts were below the demand, there never before being a time when it was as difficult to get stock to fill orders. Roses and carnations always were in heavy demand.

CAMDEN N. J.—Although the supply of pot lilies, azaleas and spiraeas was below requirements, James M. Thoirs reports a 30 per cent increase in the volume of his Easter trade compared with the corresponding period of 1919, with prices also more satisfactory. All pot stock sold especially well and there was a brisk demand for all cut flowers of good quality. The rush of F. T. D. business emphasized the fact that great care should be taken at such busy times, especially in small orders, much time as well as money being lost through incorrect addresses and lack of explicitness.

STRIKE CAUSES UNSETTLED BUYING.

While the strike has not prevented the wholesalers from receiving their stocks, most of it arriving by auto trucks, it has indirectly, had a bad effect on the florist business. Thousands of men in other lines of business are worried and annnoyed by the tieup Thousands of commuters are chiefly concerned about how they shall get to and from their business. It will be readily understood that so many people in an anxious and uncertain state of mind are not plunging heavily in flowers. The past week opened fairly well for business, but as it wore on, there was a marked reaction. Heavy supplies of stock kept arriving, till by April 17, there was a condition approaching a glut. In addition to heavy supplies of roses, carnations and cut lilies, the cool weather is keeping up a steady supply of tulips and narcissi. All conditions combined, necessarily caused a heavy drop in prices. Special American Beauty roses went as low as $40 per 100. Orchids, which were scarce at Easter, have probably somewhat increased in supply, but the real "jinx" is the falling off in demand. Carnations have gone as low as $2 to $4 per 100. As for violets, they seem now to be the particular prey of the street venders. An excellent quality of cut lilies is on the market, but the wholesalers are overstocked with them. In addition, there is a great supply of stocks, snapdragons, yellow daisies and other minor offerings that help to swell the surplus.

April 19.—Heavy supplies of stock are arriving and prices continue low. The weather is fair, with prospects of increasing supplies. It is said that the railroad strikers are returning to work, but in any event, it will be some time before traffic gets back to normal conditions.

NOTES.

The work on the new flower market at Sixth avenue and 18th street is progressing as fast as can be expected in these times, when to many people, work seems only a tardy and painful accompaniment to getting the money. As the interior finishings near completion, one is more and more impressed with the magnitude and excellence of the enterprise. It is hoped that by the time these lines are generally read, the wholesalers will be comfortably installed in the new quarters.

Our sympathy is with Leo Klein and wife, retailers of Lexington avenue and 60th street. Mrs. Fannie Siegel, mother of Mrs. Klein, who had made her home with them, dropped dead in the store, of heart disease, April 16. She was 56 years old, and is survived by six children.

Secretary John Young, of the Society of American Florists, and the New York Florists' Club, will soon remove from his present Broadway location to the mezzanine floor of the new market, Sixth avenue and 18th street.

William F. Gude, wife and daughters, were in this city the past week, and took a steamer for Bermuda, where they will enjoy a vacation. Many friends will be pleased to learn that the genial W. F. is looking well.

The New York Florists Supply Co., now located at 103 West 28th street, which does a large business in supplies, will at an early date, remove to the new market.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., was a visitor last week, and seems to be renewing his youth.

RAIL STRIKE SERIOUSLY FELT.

The railroad strike which has caused the shutting down of many mills and factories in this district, thus throwing thousands of men out of work, has also made it impossible to ship in or out of the city by express, and what few shipments have been received have come in by parcel post, and have been delayed anywhere from three to twenty-four hours. The demand has been very light, as the retailers have only bought what they absolutely needed, and consequently stock has accumulated and has had to be sacrificed in order to move it. American Beauties have been off color and of poor quality, while the tea roses have been excellent, especially the better grades, but owing to conditions they have not realized any more than the medium grades. Carnations are good property and clean up daily. Sweet peas are in heavy supply with a light demand. Snapdragon receipts are heavier than ever seen in this market before, but it is of such good quality that there is not much trouble moving them. All other stock moves slowly.

NOTES.

Sam Seligman, McCallum Company's representative, spent several days here last week, getting acquainted with their line. C. W. Brown, city salesman of the same company, acted as toastmaster at the annual banquet of the local chapter of window trimmers.

The Smith Floral Company, of McKeesport, Pa., reports the loss of their delivery car by fire.

TRADE IMPROVES WITH GOOD WEATHER.

With somewhat better weather prevailing, there has been a rather brisk demand in this city and the central part of the state. Conditions generally are satisfactory, and prospects for the future are considered good in every way. Flowers are now down to everybody's prices, and as a result, the market is expanded to a point where all of the florists will get the benefits of quantity buying. Roses are selling well, and the quality is excellent. There is also a good demand for carnations, which are of fine quality. Violets are lasting somewhat later than usual. Inside jonquils are out of the market, but the outdoor varieties are now coming in. In plants there is a good call with stocks rather scarce. Greens are plentiful. Snapdragons are arriving in limited quantities and prices are high.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, 216 Prospect Avenue, S. E., Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer.

The thirty-eighth annual meeting will be held at Milwaukee, Wis., June 22-24, 1920.

CATALOGUE paper prices continue to advance.

THE price of bags at Chicago, April 21, was $64.

WINTER wheat is quite badly winter killed in northern Illinois.

SPECIAL offers of vegetable seeds are showing a tendency to run lower with each successive offering.

THE Southern Seedsmen's Association will hold its annual meeting in Jacksonville, Fla., June 7-9.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—The Rudy Patrick Seed Co. is carrying certain stocks in Chicago for quick shipment.

THE seed trade is waiting and hoping to hear that the final knockout has been given congressional free seed distribution.

A. SCHRAVENDEEL, representing Segers Brothers, Ltd., Lisse, Holland, will sail for home on the S. S. Mauretania, April 24.

AMERICAN orders for Dutch bulbs are reduced this season, approximately to the extent of the increase in price, which is about 20 per cent.

GEORGE HOYT ALLEN, of Clinton, N. Y. is selling 33 of Allen's Egyptian lima beans for $1, said to make three beans grow where one grew before.

VISITED CHICAGO: A. M. Van Der Schoot, representing R. A. Van Der Schoot, Hillegom, Holland, who expects to sail for home the middle of next month.

SECRETARY WILSON has suspended immigration laws so as to admit laborers from Mexico and Canada to cultivate and harvest sugar beet crops in western states.

BOARD OF TRADE—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade, April 21, were as follows: Timothy, $9.00 to $12.00 per 100 pounds. Red clover, $35.00-$46.00.

THE Wing Seed Co., of Mechanicsburg, O., has filed papers with the secretary of state, increasing its capital from $200,000 to $300,000. The concern will enlarge its facilities.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—A. J. Brown, of the Alfred J. Brown Seed Co., left for California, April 17, Mrs. Brown accompanying him. Mr. Brown says the peas out there are in bloom.

ACCORDING to a Holland letter of April 1, the Dutch bulb crop is early, and the weather so far has been fine. Financial conditions in Europe are not favorable to heavy demand.

AN Ohio farm crops professor recently purchased a quart of grass seed at a novelty store, operated by a large corporation having a chain of stores within the state. The contents of the package, weighing 11 ounces, consisted almost entirely of chaff and weed seeds. A small quantity of timothy was found, but scarcely a trace of bluegrass.

MUSCATINE IA.—The J. E. Hoopes Co. has so far escaped the floods here, with only a little water on low places, saving their buildings and extensive hot beds. Many others, however, on both sides of the river, have suffered great loss.

CINCINNATI, O.—The latest reports from H. B. McCullough, of the J. M. McCullough's Sons Co., now in California, are to the effect that his health is improving as rapidly as can be expected. Mr. McCullough is planning to return in June.

L. W. WHEELER, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Calif., says the seed growers are still enjoying rains and that the annual crops are improving. Onion is showing some mildew, and the beet crop is very bad, much of it being plowed up.

THE regular semi-annual meeting of the Western Canners' Association was held at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, April 15-16, with a fair attendance. The out-of-town seedsmen were conspicuous by their absence, but local houses were well represented.

THE Berlin Tageblatt says that a number of American financial concerns which had offered to provide credits to help in the recovery of German trade have withdrawn their offers as a result of the recent Kapp coup. For the same reason, it says, negotiations which had been nearly completed for shipments of large quantities of potash to America have been indefinitely postponed.

TOLEDO, O.—Clover seed displayed added weakness, with opening figures April 19 ranging from 10 cents to $1 under final quotations of April 17, and a drop of $3.50 during the previous seven days. Cash was offered at $26, April $26, October $23.10, and December $22.35. Timothy held steady with cash, 1919, at $5.30, April $5.30, May $5.30, September $5.70, October $5.65, and December $5.70.

MISS W. E. LOW, daughter of the principal of Stuart Low & Co., London, Eng., is calling on the American trade this season, taking the place of the veteran, Harry A. Barnard, so well and favorably known to many of our readers. Mr. Barnard's advancing years compel him to take care of his health. Miss Low is probably the pioneer lady commercial traveler, visiting this country from Europe, in horticultural lines.

Canary Islands Onion Seed.

The exportation of onion seed from the Canary Islands to the United States during 1920 will probably be much less than usual, according to a report of the American consul at Teneriffe, dated February 25.

The greater part of each year's production is contracted for in advance with American seedsmen. The crop is planted in November and harvested in June, July and August.

According to exporting interests, plantings last fall were smaller by 50 per cent than the year before, and the crop will consequently be the smallest in many years. This condition was the result of two causes: First, the American market was well supplied with seed in 1919, and seedsmen postponed sending their contracts; second, onions for planting were 300 per cent higher in price than usual, which made the prospective profits from an onion seed crop an extremely speculative proposition.

Exports to the United States during the past two years were 94,045 pounds in 1918, and 69,592 pounds in 1919.

Chicago Seed Trade.

The seed stores all report brisk counter trade the past week, notwithstanding the very unfavorable weather. There is much complaint of delayed shipments and the losses of business and goods from this cause have been heavy. As we go to press, both the express and freight service is much improved.

A. Setterberg, of the Everette R. Peacock Co., has been elected director of the new Cook County State bank.

Carl Cropp, of Vaughan's Seed Store, says the flower seed demand continues well ahead of last year's.

A. Henderson, of A. Henderson & Co., who has been on the sick list, is better this week.

Red Top and Timothy Reward.

Charles Dickinson, vice-president of the Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago, has offered a reward of $25,000 for proof and conviction before the federal trade commission, of those interested in the understanding and combination concerning red top seed and timothy seed against the public, this to be completed before June 19, 1920, so that the matter may be placed before the seedsmen's association at Milwaukee the following week.

Onion Sets.

Ralph B. Howe, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, says recent railroad information is to the effect that the shippers of onion sets have been successful in having set aside the motion to charge a higher rate for less than carlot shipments.

The movement of sets in the Chicago district continues difficult, owing to the slow improvement of transportation facilities. Prices are about the same as last week, $3.00 to $3.25.

Grass and Clover Seed Prices.

The following were the wholesale prices in dollars per 100 pounds on timothy, Kentucky blue grass, red top and red clover, at principal points of distribution, April 10, 1920, as given by the Government Market Reporter of April 17, 1920:

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

E. A. Dunbar, Ashtabula, O., President; Louis F. Miller, Toledo, O., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; H. J. Cheney, Grand Rapids Mich., Treas. Next annual convention September 1920.

THE members of dandelion clubs are busy these days pulling up dandelion to pull down the cost of living.

GOVERNOR COOLIDGE, of Massachusetts, says he is very doubtful about the wisdom of the daylight saving bill, and considers its enactment would impose a real hardship on the farmers of the state.

THE freight embargo on various railway lines in New Jersey, due to strike conditions, has held up many shipments of seed potatoes from outside points to farmers in the state, and will consequently affect the summer crop.

AN Easton, Md., dispatch says many tomato canneries will probably remain closed this season, and some of the packers are offering their plants for sale, due to the unsettled condition of the canned tomato market. Some have had to sell stocks at a heavy loss.

THE head of the department of agriculture of Columbia University estimates there will be a reduction of one-third of a million acres of cultivated land this year owing to scarcity of help. Seventeen per cent of farm hands on 3,775 representative New York farms left their work in the year ending February 1.

THE Minnesota crop bureau estimates the supply of farm labor is 10 per cent less than normal. New York and Indiana both have a shortage of 17 per cent. For the whole United States the average is 12.7 per cent less than in 1918 and 27.6 per cent less than in prewar times. Wages are about 14 per cent higher than a year ago.

PRINCETON, IND.—W. J. Ritterskamp, for many years engaged in the nursery business here, has leased 100 acres of land in Knox county, on which he will this year grow plants for canning factories in southern Indiana and Illinois. His decision followed the request of canners in this section, as farmers are late in planting this season.—W. B. C.

SECRETARY MEREDITH, of the department of agriculture, farmers, and business men, in recent conferences, have expressed themselves in favor of amending immigration laws to admit law-abiding persons and help the workers from other countries to relieve the labor situation of various industries and on the farms, 5,000,000 such workers being now needed here.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, April 21.—Cucumbers, 2-dozen box, $4.00 to $4.75; celery, Florida, crate $4.00 to $4.75; leaf lettuce, per tomato box, 27½ to 30 cents; radishes, per dozen bunches, $1.00 to $1.10; tomatoes, per crate, six baskets, $5.00 to $7.50.

New York, April 19.—Celery, per crate, $3.00 to $9.00; cucumbers, per dozen, $1.00 to $2.00; mushrooms, 75 cents to $2.00 per three-pound basket; tomatoes, per pound, 25 to 50 cents; lettuce, per strap, $3.00 to $9.00; radishes, per 100 bunches, $4.00 to $8.00.

Potato Profiteers Indicted.

Detroit, Mich., April 17.—Two butchers and two potato merchants were indicted today by the federal grand jury on charges of profiteering in foodstuffs during the railroad strikes. Agents of the department of justice are investigating many other cases and more indictments are expected.

New York, April 20.—The federal grand jury today returned two indictments on testimony of the government's "flying squadron" of profiteer hunters. One was against Eugene A. Sullivan, known as a "potato king." The other named William H. Fleming and Henry Schulte of the New York & New Jersey Produce Company, also accused of profiteering in potatoes.

Strawberries Under Snowbank.

NUCLA, COLO., April 13.—Full-grown strawberries under a snowbank is the Paradox valley record claimed by Geo. Sly, of this town, who reports finding luscious berries as well as many blossoms on his ever-bearing strawberry plants under a drift of snow on his farm.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

J. Edward Moon, Morrisville, Pa., President; Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., Vice-President; John Watson, 400 Nassau Street, Princeton, N. J., Secretary; J. W. Hill, Des Moines, Iowa, Treasurer.

Forty-fifth annual convention will be held at the Congress Hotel, Chicago, June 23-25, 1920.

FRENCH nurserymen meet in June to fix prices on manetti stocks for the season.

BRIGHTON, N. Y.—Stock valued at between $25,000 and $30,000 at the establishment of A. H. Heberle, was destroyed by fire, April 9.

THE California Almond Growers' Exchange reports that owing to the lack of rain and damaging frosts, this year's almond crop will be considerably below normal.

ORLAND, CALIF.—W. Samuel Clark is establishing a large nursery here to be devoted exclusively to the Kadota fig. Large tracts of land are being planted with this variety in this locality.

American Associatian of Nurserymen.

The following communication from the American Railroad Association Commission on Car Service, Washington, D. C., which was issued and distributed, April 17, to all railroad officials, has been called to the attention of all members of the American Association of Nurserymen by John Watson, Princeton, N. J., executive secretary of the association:

"Complaints in considerable volume are reaching us, and the interstate commerce commission as well, from nurserymen in various parts of the country, indicating that there is little uniformity among the various roads with respect to exempting nursery stock, a highly seasonal and semi-perishable commodity, from embargoes. To establish a uniform practice, it appears to be important at this season, and it is therefore suggested, that whenever general embargoes are placed which exempt food, feed, perishable freight, live stock and fuel, that such seasonal articles as field and garden seed, seed grain, and nursery stock, be considered next in order of importance to receive preference in transportation.

W. C. KENDALL, Chairman.

Mr. Watson adds: "Since the roads were returned to private ownership and control, March 1, the American Railroad Association has occupied the only position of central direction, and while it acts in an advisory capacity, its suggestions have the weight of orders. It will be noticed that the urgency of the situation, gives nursery stock a far more favorable rating in priority than did Circular CS—A1 of the former classification under government control. Also, it gives special emphasis to nursery stock, by making it the sole subject of a general circular. This action was taken as the result of conferences with the secretary of agriculture, the interstate commerce commission, and at the request of various members of congress.

"Prompt handling of nursery stock now depends only on the physical ability of the roads to move their freight; our goods are given preferential handling only after such vital necessities as food and fuel.

TRADE BRAND MARK
MANURE

It is direct heat dried and sterilized, weed seeds, grass seeds, fungus and disease germs destroyed in a direct heat rotary drying process that does not change or destroy any of the valuable elements in crude manure.

Air dried manures cannot be sterilized and usually carry excess moisture that actually makes them cost more per ton than WIZARD BRAND even at the same or a lower price.

Look for the WIZARD BRAND Trade Mark tagged or printed on every bag. If it is not there you are not getting WIZARD BRAND protection for your crop and pocket book.

Your dealer can get WIZARD BRAND for you if you insist or we will quote with freight rate on any quantity from a bag to a carload promptly.

Pennsylvania Horticultural Society.

The last lecture of this season's series was given April 12, by Professor A. C. Beal of Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., the subject being "Gladioli." Professor Beal began his lecture by giving a very clear history of this useful class of bulbous plants, starting with the varieties found in southern Europe and in South Africa, giving an account of the work in France and Holland in hybridising, detailing the work and the results accomplished by European growers until the introduction of gladioli into this country, then, giving a list of the principal growers, who have been working in hybridising in this country, and showing the results they had obtained. These remarks were illustrated by some well colored slides, showing the older varieties and also those produced by hybridising from these varieties, leading on to the grand varieties that have been produced in the middle west, in the past few years. In closing his lecture, some five or six slides were devoted to the decorative uses of gladioli in planting around the house and as cut flowers in the home.

The exhibits staged at this meeting were of the usual high quality, those deserving special mention being some specimen Calceolaria hybrida, by A. B. Johnson, Rosemont, Pa. (Wm. Comfort, Gr.). These plants were in 8-inch pots, foliage standing 18 to 20 inches above the pot, the heads of the plants being about 26 inches in diameter, completely covered with well finished flowers. A collection of cut flowers of Gerbera hybrids (South African daisy) was exhibited by Mrs. E. V. Morrell, Torresdale, Philadelphia (Thomas Roberts, Gr.). There were 21 colors represented in this collection of flowers, which ranged from three to five inches in diameter. A collection of antirrhinum (Giant Flowering) was exhibited by S. T. Bodine, Villa Nova, Pa. (Alex. MacLeod, Gr.). The flower stems were about four feet tall, and the spike of flowers measured from 18 to 24 inches.

Prizes awarded at this meeting were as follows:

Hyacinths, 24 cut spikes, mixed.—Geo. H. McFadden, Rosemont, Pa., first; W. S. Ellis, Bryn Mawr, Pa., second.
